(Official Paper, Pennington County)

A FOOLISH ASSERTION

The campaign just closing has been singularly free from mudslinging, either by candidates or newspapers. Particularly have those aspiring to local offices escaped the usual broadsides of charges and countercharges such as have characterized former election years. When an unwarranted attack is made, it is therefore more noticeable than would be the case were such things of general occurrence.

It remained for the Warren Sheaf to kick over the traces and distinguish itself by making foolish assertions concerning the Thief River Falls candidates for district judge. The Warren paper takes a slap at both their methods and their qualifications.

No Thief River Falls paper has in any manner attacked the record of Judge Grindeland, whose home is in Warren. If there exists a doubt as to his fitness for the position, this has never been voiced by any publication in the district so far as The Times is aware. It seems to have been generally understood that the judgeship contest is one into which personalities should not enter.

The Warren newspaper evidently does not feel itself bound by these considerations. Last week it contained a slap at the candidates whose home is in Thief River Falls. The assertions made would be unworthy of consideration at any other time, being foolish in the extreme. Claiming that Judge Grindeland's opponents are not qualified for the position he now holds will not help that gentleman to any great extent where the facts are known. The people generally manage to keep pretty well posted on these matters and there is nothing much a newspaper can say that will have any effect upon their judgment.

Opposition to Judge Grindeland was brought out principally for the reason that his home town, Warren, is not the most convenient place in the district for the location of judicial chambers. In order to reach the court when it is not in session at one of the other county seats, it is necessary for a large percentage of the people in the district to make long journeys and be subjected to vexatious delays. At least one half of the people in Marshall county having business with the court must pass through Thief River Falls in order to reach Warren, and the same holds good in even greater degree for those residing in other parts of the district. This was the principal reason for urging a change. If the inconvenience were one felt in Pennington county alone it might be deemed of comparatively small importance, but it is a matter that concerns the greater part of the district.

Other reasons are advanced for making a change in the judiciary at this time, but these are well known to Times readers and need not be referred to.

The outstanding fact in connection with the judgship election is that one of the men elected should reside in Thief River Falls. This would mean a saving in time and money for a large number of people in the district and make it much easier to expedite court proceedings.

While the necessity for so doing may not be very apparent, The Times would like to remind the voters of Pennington county of the fact that northwestern Minnesota's only elective state official, Mike Holm, is up for re-election to the office of secretary of state. Judge Holm has more than made good during his first term and deserves re-election if a man ever did. The work of his office has been more than doubled by the new automobile tax law, but it has all been taken care of in a highly satisfactory manner under his supervision. Judge Holm has not had the time to tour the state in the interest of his candidacy this year, the work in his office requiring his attention, but the people know a capable official when they see one and it would not be surprising to find the Roseau county man leading his ticket. He should get all the votes in this section of the state.

Busy Bee School Notes

At the close of our first month of school our enrollment is complete and consists of 27 pupils. Thirteen of these are on the honor roll for perfect attendance, and their names are as follows: Ruby and Mildred Hall, Leonard and Burton Johnson, Alice, Esther, Margaret and Arnold Hanson, Grace Johnnie and Pearl Doran and Mildred Solback.

Five 100's in spelling entitles a pupil to a star. The leaders in the grades are: 7th grade, Mayme Evenson; 6th, Grace Doran and Annie Evenson, (tie); 5th, Clifford Johnson; 3rd, Margaret Hanson.

On Friday afternoon a spell-down was held in the 6th and 7th grades and in which Mayme Evenson won first place in 7th grade and Annie Evenson first in 6th grade.

War has been declared against the giant, "Bad English." Incorrect speech heard in or about the school is written on a slip of paper by the pupil overhearing same, and fed into the mouth of a hideous giant, pasted on a box. On Fridays the box is opened and errors talked about and corrections made. The pupils are very enthusiastic about correcting their speech. So far, the giant's diet has consisted chiefly of, "Aints," "I done," and "I seen." We hope to be able to starve him out before school is over.

A tooth brush drill was given the first of the week of school. Personal hygiene is being encouraged and also strictly supervised. Keen interest has been worked up in the coming election Nov. 7. Teacher and pupils are working to get every mother to use her right to vote.

MRS EBBA SAGMOEN,
Teacher.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

(Prepared and ordered published by John P. Pederson, Thief River Falls, in behalf of W. J. LaBree, candidate for sheriff. Regular advertising rates to be paid.)

Stick to LaBree

As an old friends of W. J. LaBree, our competent sheriff, I would like to say a little word in his behalf. It will be a long time before this county gets another sheriff like "Jesse" LaBree. All of us old timers know he has run the sheriff's office honestly and according to law, but at the same time he has gone out ~~of his~~ way and always will go out of his way to do a favor for the man who is unfortunate enough to fall under the heavy hand of the law. These are hard days for some of us and I think we can all remember acts of kindness and leniency by the sheriff that should cause us to stand by him at this time.

He is just like his father and mother was, always doing things for the needy and poor. Do you old timers remember old man LaBree and his wife? They never turned a deaf ear to anyone and many of the older settlers were helped over serious difficulties by their kindness. The same is the case with the sheriff. So let us get out and help him now when he needs it. I have nothing against his opponent, but neither he nor anyone else can give the tax payers better service in the office than LaBree has.

I am sure if all his friends get out and vote, LaBree will be elected by a big majority, and all should remember this is a poor time to trade an old and tried friend for one we know very little about.

It is so easy to forget,—that is a common fault with many of us,—but old friends should not be forgotten and cast off like an old shoe, that is why I am asking all friends to get busy for "Jess" LaBree.

Respectfully yours,

Industrial Harmony Promotes Better Service

LABOR controversies are productive of needless loss to employe, employer, and to the public. This basic fact has long been recognized by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and is one reason why the Company has stressed the necessity of industrial harmony within the organization. It knows that through such harmony it can render the public a better service, and that by rendering such service the Company, its employes, and the public will profit.

In the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) every man earns his job; none inherits it. Every man has confidence in the knowledge and experience of his superior. Every employe knows that when he has earned promotion he will be advanced, for this is the time-honored policy of the Company, and, naturally, creates a spirit highly favorable to excellence of service.

Every member of the Board of Directors of this Company holds his position because of his experience and because he possesses specialized knowledge of the oil industry. From the Chairman of the Board to the man who fills your tank at a Standard Oil Service Station, every employe is inspired by a real desire to make the Company of the utmost service to the community.

Industrial harmony within the organization is the goal toward which the entire organization is striving. Every man and woman knows that such harmony works for happiness and contentment, promotes efficiency, and increases their power for service.

Industrial harmony means industrial progress. Industrial progress is made through co-operation, not through antagonism; through peace, not through controversy; through conservation, not through dissipation of energy.

Industrial harmony inevitably results in profit to the public by reducing the prices at which commodities may be sold. This is well exemplified in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The conditions obtaining in this organization are not accidental; they are largely the result of a sane, constructive program "which avoids the foolish waste of radical experiment, the costly breaches of economic law, the unhappy consequences of social injustice."

MANY TUBERCULOSIS CAUSES

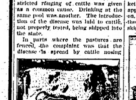
Department of Agriculture Receives Various Replies on Methods of Spreading Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What is the most common method of spreading bovine tuberculosis in your community? This question asked by the United States Department of Agriculture in the interest of establishing accredited tuberculosis-free herds brought many answers ascribing the spread of this disease to about a dozen causes.

In North Dakota, where range conditions are typical of those in many other states of the northwest, unrestricted ranging of cattle was given as a common cause. Drinking at the same pool was another. The introduction of the disease was laid to cattle, not properly tested, being shipped into the state.

In parts where the pastures are fenced, the complaint was that the disease is spread by cattle nosing each other at fence lines. One breeder advocated a double line of fence to prevent this means of contact. In this state, where purebred cattle are generally tested before being sold but grade cattle are not, much of the spread of the disease is laid to infected grade stock. Close housing in poorly ventilated buildings was given as a cause of disease by a few breeders. Some, from observation and experience, laid the spread of the disease to feeding calves and pigs, milk from tuberculous animals. From one source came the claim that it was spread from dead animals by dogs and hogs running at large and feeding upon the carcasses.



Such Cows as This Will Swell the Dairyman's Bank Account.

From Oklahoma came fewer reasons, but of the same type: Common pasture, importation of untested animals from other states and the sale locally of untested animals, foul stables, and contact with infected cattle in adjoining fields by breachy stock crawling through fences or stock nosing at fence lines.

Among the chief causes given in New England were the low price at which suspected animals are sold, the lack of testing hogs and grade cattle to be sure they, as well as purebred animals, are free from disease when sold, the breeding to a common bull, serving cows outside the herd, the common drinking trough, milk from diseased animals fed to calves and hogs, unsanitary barns, drafty barns, underfeeding, the common pasture or pasturing boarder animals, and nosing at and breaking through fence lines by cattle, some of which may be diseased.

The 12 causes of the spread of the disease reported generally were:

1. Unrestricted range or common pasture.
2. Common drinking pool or trough.
3. Introduction of untested cattle.
4. Nosing at fence lines.
5. Close foul housing.
6. Milk of infected animals fed to calves and hogs.
7. Trading of untested animals.
8. Dead animals eaten by dogs and hogs.
9. Breachy stock.
10. Breeding to a common bull.
11. Serving cows outside the herd.
12. Conditions unfavorable to health, as drafty barns and underfeeding.

PRODUCTION OF CLEAN MILK

Chief Causes of Bacteria Are Found in Unsanitary Conditions and Bad Management.

Health authorities agree that the way to get pure milk is to produce it pure rather than to try to purify it afterwards. The chief causes of bacteria in milk are found to be in the unsanitary conditions under which it is produced. These causes are: Dirty stables; dirty cows; careless, slovenly habits; improper handling, and insufficient cleaning of utensils.

POULTRY

MARKET SEASON FOR GUINEAS

Latter Part of Summer and Throughout Fall Is Best Time to Dispose of Fowls.

The marketing season for guinea fowl is during the latter part of summer, and throughout the fall. At this time the demand in the city market is for young birds weighing from one to two pounds each. At about 2½ months old guineas weigh from one to 1¼ pounds, and at this size they begin reaching the markets in August. As the season advances the demand is for heavier birds.

The usual practice in marketing game birds is to place them on the market unplucked, and in most markets guineas are sold this way. They appear more attractive with feathers on, and sell more readily. Dressed, the small size and dark color of the skin are likely to prejudice the prospective customer who may be unfamiliar with the bird's excellent eating qualities. For hotel and restaurant trade, however, guineas should be dressed in the same way as common fowl. Better ask the dealer, before shipping, whether he wants the feathers on or off.

Guineas Are Usually Placed on Market Unplucked.

If the feathers are to be left on the birds all that is necessary in preparing for market is to bleed them by severing the principal blood vessels of the neck, allowing them to hang head downward until bleeding is complete.

The customary daily wage for common labor is about 5 kroner while the necessities of life are in many instances almost as high as during the war. The crops this year were not very satisfactory and an early winter is expected.

It is impossible for me to interview every voter before election. Such a campaign would cost more than the salary of the office, and would mean only rich men could be elected. I appreciate the honor you gave me four years ago and have tried to represent those who elected me and be fair to all. If re-elected to the Senate, I shall work and vote against any increases in salaries and for economy in all departments so as to lessen our tax burden. I will support all progressive laws and especially do I favor an increase in the Tonnage Tax rate, the Guaranty of Bank Deposits, better co-operative marketing laws, reduction of interest rates, a state Cement Mill, State loans to farmers at cost, and am opposed to a State Constabulary and capital punishment, and for the reappeal of the Pre-primary law and the Brooks-Coleman law, and pledge myself to work and vote for every measure favorable to the farmers and laborers.

Besides making a very creditable record in football, the gridiron representatives of the Thief River Falls high school have to their credit another accomplishment that is worthy of more than passing notice. The members of the squad have set a record in scholarship that is unequaled in the history of this school, and we doubt if it is equalled by many other schools. In spite of the general supposition that activity in athletics must necessarily detract from interest in school work, the 1922 football squad has gone through the season without a single case of ineligibility. The eligibility rules are very strict, requiting a passing grade in at least four subjects.

During the first six weeks, which included the entire football season, the 15 members of the squad, regulars and first subs, earned a total of 65 grades without a single condition or failure. Of all the grades issued to the boys during the same period 9% were conditions or failures. Where the boys on the squad made a perfect record, 15 corresponding boys picked at random would have had 5 failures or conditions.

Does this justify the popular belief that our football players are our poorest students? It does not. Neither does it mean that we have an exceptionally brilliant team; the past records of these same boys would disclose a liberal number of red marks. But it does prove a marked change in attitude, whether it be due to the strict requirements for eligibility or to a realization by the boys that it is much more pleasant to go through school doing satisfactory work, than just sliding through on their playing record.

These improved marks have been the direct result of more studying, more concentration on their work, and more interest in class.

The strenuous exercise received in play and daily practice leaves the brain clear and active. One hour of concentrated, interested study will accomplish more than several hours of the lethargic, half-hearted grind that so many students call studying.

Are we justified in giving athletics such a prominent place in school affairs? If they mean a one-sided development at the expense of everything else, they should rather be discouraged; but if, as this year's record seems to show, they cause the participants to go at their school work as well as living their daily life with added zest and vitality, then we can still boost athletics to the utmost of our ability.

Central News

Mrs. Smith is taking Miss Week's place while the latter is attending the M. E. A. at St. Paul.

Herbert Meyers entered school this week.

The pupils in Miss Dodge's room surprised her very pleasantly on Friday afternoon with a "fruit shower."

Educators Meet At St. Paul Last Week

The Minnesota Educational association held its annual meeting in St. Paul from October 25 to 28, inclusive. The keynote of this session was, "Equality of Opportunity." Many notables in educational circles spoke on various subjects, but possibly the most impressive talk given the entire meeting was that presented by Supt. W. F. Webster of Minneapolis on "Whose is the Responsibility?" Mr. Webster is a friend of the boy and girl and lays the responsibility of education on U. of Minnesota, revealed some figures on public school finance that proved contrary to our supposition that we were making unusual advancement in educational facilities. To bring the subject close to home he presented the following figures in percentage increase from 1910 to 1920: Montana, 363%; Utah, 269%; South Dakota, which is a comparatively unsettled state with 203%, and Minnesota several notches away with 197%.

The present teachers' pension is bankrupt, and this also lays a task before the educators.

Another feature of the conference was the prominence of discussion on "Health Education."

Among the 8000 teachers that attended were Misses Thompson, Baumann, Skinner, Weeks, Kirk, Stapleton, Ruth Johnson, Maude Johnson and Supt. Simley of this city.

Is Democracy Practicable?

In attempting to govern a class on a democratic basis a class president is confronted with many difficulties. In the first place the class has no constitution or by-laws which regulate the powers of the executive and the power retained by the class as a body. Consequently if the class officers assume some authority and act on certain matters without first getting the vote of the class they are often accused of "steam-rollering." On the other hand, if a matter of importance is referred to a class of fifty or more, action is very certain not to result, if the issue is a personal one. The class will split up into factions, each of which will absolutely refuse to support the decision if the opposing group is in the majority.

Democracy in action means nothing more or less than acquiescence to the will of the majority. Unless the supporters of the losing proposition peacefully abide by the majority vote of the class, a direct referendum is impossible. Democracy is a great privilege, to be highly prized and jealously guarded. Do not jeapardize its existence by attempting to substitute anarchy.

Class activities would undoubtedly be materially facilitated if the class were governed by a written constitution. In the writer's estimation the person who draws up a set of by-laws satisfactory for high school classes will be deserving of a memorial as high as the Eiffel tower and as impressive as Bunker Hill monument.

Pay Up!

Pay your class dues to date and be square with yourself. Every class in this high school is in need of money and no doubt if every student would stop to think, he would realize the many obligations of his class. Everything costs real money in these days. Although we say that it doesn't bankrupt the class if we alone hold back, it is not true because that is the general attitude. The Senior class especially, needs the money to finance the Prowler. Cuts must be made and many other things too numerous to mention must be paid for long before anything can be realized from the sale of the book. Paying your class dues will take a big load off your mind. Just try it and see!

H. S. Second Team Wins From Mechanics' Eleven

The second team of the high school played the Smith Hughes football team Thursday and won by a score of 18 to 6.

The Smith Hughes with a part of the "First Team" could not carry the ball over for more than one touch down. The game was an interesting affair from kick off to finish.

The services of Stan Sorenson, star half back for the High School eleven, was secured by the mechanics, but he could not stop the steady march of the small but fearless seconds. Math Barzen, guard on the regular squad, played half with Sorenson. He made good line plunges but lacked the speed of brother "Ernie." Vorlicky, regular center, played full with Barzen and Sorenson.

The seconds did not play stonewall in the second quarter which resulted in Sorenson carrying the ball over for a touchdown. This was the first and only time of the game that Sorenson penetrated the Seconds' line of defense for any large gain.

In the second half the Seconds team tore loose and marched steadily down for their first touchdown. Placement kick was incomplete, and this evened up the score.

The Mechanics received the ball and started down the field. Sorenson made a pass to Paranteau which was intercepted by Sid Schutt. This turned the trick and the Seconds again were on their march for their second touchdown. Cliff Sorenson made a 30-yard pass to Schutt who completed the pass and carried it over for the second touchdown.

The Smith Hughes' squad again received the ball and tried desperately for another goal, but the tackling of Friedolph Gabrielson nailed the dashing backfield for losses.

In the fourth quarter of the game Sether and Keene showed some pep and made large gains in carrying the ball to the Mechanics' 15 yard line. Here Cliff humbled Brother "Stan," the star half, and went around him for the third and last touchdown of the game.

The seconds were outweighed 10 pounds to the man, but exceeding by good head work and accurate passing kept them on the long end of the score.

English Under-Estimated

A test of universal interest to high school students was recently given to the freshmen of a Kansas Normal school. It involved the simplest fundamentals of English grammar, yet the results were appalling and discreditable to high school graduates.

Out of 335 test papers involving 159 nouns only one word was not missed on any paper; five words were missed but once; the noun "use" was missed 229 times; the word "athletic" was called a noun 170 times; the noun "gentlemen" brought down 211 students; and of all the examinees, nine missed over 200 nouns each.

A freshman class in college is generally considered a select group of high school graduates, and an ordinary noun test is the most elementary knowledge of sentence structure. Obviously then, the all-important subject of tecklique in self-expression is not receiving the necessary attention in the high schools.

Freshman Meeting

The Freshman class called a meeting Tuesday to elect another class advisor and seargent-at-arms. Miss Mae Nair was chosen to assist Miss Skinner in guiding the destinies of the class, and John Mostue to help Lincoln Arnold preserve order. It was also decided that the Freshmen and Sophomore classes would send flowers to Clifford Overum, in the Clinic hospital recovering from an operation.

BEGIN BASKETBALL PRACTICE NEXT WEEK NOW INTENTION

The football season ended with a bang!—Bemidji vs. Thief River Falls, and now that football season is over, the all winter sport of basketball is ready to take its place.

Coach McFarlane has declared his intentions of starting basketball practice within another week. The general rule of selecting men for the regular squad will not be following this year. The coach intends to start the season with class basketball, and, after the inter-class games, pick his men from the class team lineups. The inter-class games will be played during this semester so that regular squad practice will start early.

The prospects for a real "honest-to-goodness" basketball team have never been brighter, and no doubt a championship team will be developed.

"Stein" Stanley Sorenson last year's "all district" guard will be back this year, and no doubt, will try for "all state" position instead of "all district."

"Chuck" Herron, former stellar man of two years actual experience, is back for the lineup. "Chuck" has decided to have a real team and no doubt he will do his best to accomplish the desired end.

"Speeder" Milford LaBree is going to be back for this season's battles, and will live up to his name in his usual fashion.

These and other players ought to develop a team that should furnish many thrilling games for the coming season.

The men at present all are in the best of physical condition, and there has not been a single case of scholastic ineligibility. With this combination of physical and educational ability, a successful season should be assured.

Start Work on Debate Question

Interest in debating received a sudden impetus last week, when one regular class period was devoted to a discussion of the season's state question, "Resolved that the Kansas type of Industrial Court of Arbitration should be established in Minnesota."

While the first clash is yet many weeks away, the public speaking classes are getting their first assignments in actual debate work. The "assignees" are busily conning all material at present available, in an attempt to gather all possible knowledge on the Kansas Industrial Court.

Prospects for a successful season this year are bright. Several reasons might be given for this; first, a class in public speaking, as above noted, has been added to this year's curriculum, thus providing an opportunity for those interested to gain a knowledge of forensics directly in high school; second, the question for this year is much more likely to arouse interest among the aspirants to the team than was the one of last year. The pros and cons of governmental regulation of coal have not as direct a bearing on the people of this section as have the merits or demerits of an arbitration court similar to the one now in operation in Kansas.

Looking back over the accomplishments of last season, we are convinced that much hard work is in store, if Lincoln high school is to be honorably represented in the State Debating league. Although we were eliminated from the state contest by Roseau, in the first start last year, we participated in two other verbal battles, one with Red Lake Falls, and once with East Grand Forks. In each case the decision was the same; but now, let us hope, Fate, with the help, on our part, of liberal applications of midnight oil, will see fit to reverse our fortunes.

Northrop News

The fifth and sixth grades enjoyed a Hallowe'en party Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Frissell visited Mrs. Eyde's room on Tuesday morning, and Mrs. Angell the fourth and sixth grades on Wednesday afternoon.

Clarence Gulseth has been transferred to the Washington school.

Hanson, second grade, has been absent a week on account of illness.

Doctor Froehlich visited the sixth grade last week.

The pupils of the third grade had a Hallowe'en party Friday afternoon while those of Miss Harvick's room will have their party on Monday.

Junior Class Meeting

For the express purpose of selecting class colors and a class flower, Melvin Englestad called his classmates together on Wednesday of last week.

After much debate and arguing among the fair members of the class, the colors of gold and white, were agreed upon. The class also took upon itself to decide upon a flower for their class, and did well by selecting the Jonquil.

The class also decided to send flowers to Miss Stavig who was ill.

The Library Classes

During the past week Miss Leavitt has been organizing library classes consisting of Senior and Junior students who have grades above C. Miss Leavitt has charge of three of these classes daily.

The pupils learn how to repair books, paste pockets and make shelf lists. Library work is very beneficial to those students who are planning to become rural school teachers, as this work is one of their requirements. The members of this class also assist in preparing the new books for circulation almost as quickly as they are received. In this way it helps the school.

Every student who intends to take the normal course should take advantage of this opportunity.

Wiener Roast

A wiener roast was held on Wednesday evening of last week, in a grove two miles south of St. Hilaire. Eskimo pies were served as a novelty dessert, Stephen Arneson winning the prize for the largest appetite. In the outing were Sybil McGinn Eileen Arneson, Myrtle Helgeland, Marion Hilden, S. B. Powley, Math Barzen, Jr., Stephen Arneson and Craig Halvorson.

Hallowe'en Party

A Hallowe'en party was held at the home of Miss Katherine Barzen, 303 Riverside avenue, last Saturday evening. The guests arrived in costume with a pumpkin as a ticket of admission. Upon arriving at the scene of revelry the guests were confronted with endless detour signs, ghosts, banging of doors and wild shrieks of terror. After braving many perils everyone at last reached the scene of action. The chief diversion of the evening was bunco. Lily Gran received high score and Lloyd Bennes received low score. Lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. The rooms were attractively decorated in orange and black and the tables for four also carried out the same scheme, with Hallowe'en novelties as centerpieces. The guests were the following: Esther Bennes, Ethel Bickle, Lily Gran, Gail Warner, Elizabeth DeCremer, Lyllan Arnold, Rose Flynn, Mildred Sullivan, Maxine Johnson, Dorothy Swedenburg, Maurice Holzknecht, Orrin Storholm, Henry Arneson, Francis Ohm, Clifford Storholm, Lloyd Bennes, Richard Zeh, Robert Halvorson, Allan Sorenson, Herbert Keene, Clifton Connet, Arthur Penney.

Class Rings

The Senior class has smashed another speed record. They have selected their class ring, and expect to be wearing their class insignia before Christmas. Customarily this is a very complicated process, and several months of argumentation must be spent before the class could finally get together. This year, thanks to the cool-headedness of the ring committee, the untiring efforts of the advisor, and the general common sense of the members of the class, the matter was disposed of to the satisfaction of at least a large majority without any serious disruption.

It may be of interest to the alumni to know how this could possibly be accomplished. To begin with, the class of '23 followed much the same course as has been followed by every other graduating class, getting designs from various companies and referring them to a ring committee for elimination. Then, after a few suitable designs had been selected, a secret ballot was taken, instead of permitting unlimited campaigning in the class meeting, which cannot but result in a hopeless deadlock.

Miss Martha Kleppe, graduate of Lincoln high school class of '12, and the eighth grade grammar teacher of the present Senior class is teaching at Fergus Falls, where she has held a position since leaving this city.

Harold Smithers of the Class of '21 has been pledged, Sigma Chi at Valparaiso University, Indiana.

Re-Elect
Geo. M. Gunderson
County Superintendent of Schools
FOR A SECOND TERM

WHY and HOW does the County Superintendent serve the tax payers of villages and centers?

THEY help maintain the office.

HE receives, files, places on record, and reports to the State Department of Education all village and city school clerk's annual reports on finance, school census and teachers' insurance and retirenemt.

HE likewise cares for village and city superintendents' annual reports on attendance of pupils belonging to village and city school systems. He records all teachers' certificates. HIS OFFICE is the CLEARING HOUSE for all matters pertaining to the county's educational systems.

For these reasons, city and village voters, as well as county voters, should be interested in retaining an experienced man in the position. "Co-operate!"

Sincerely,
H. P. RUED

The homesteader of 1896. Formerly Secretary of the Co-operative Store and Postmaster at Germantown, and Town Clerk and Assessor. Now President of the Village of Goodridge and Member of School Board. The home man, with a large family, who has always been and is now, a man of and for the people.

(Political advertisement, prepared and ordered published by H. O. Berve, to be paid for by him at regular political advertising rates.)

I hope that the farmers, workers, and the progressive people of this part of the state generally, will get busy and take hold and do a little work for their candidates during the few remaining days. Don't leave your candidates to do all the work and all the campaigning and carry the whole load. At least get busy and go to work in your own township and neighborhood during the next three or four days. And while we are out working for Magnus Johnson and Shipstead let us not forget our legislative candidates. It is just as important to elect a dependable progressive man for your Senator and Representative as to elect Magnus Johnson for Governor. While you are out working for Johnson and Shipstead, do not forget to urge the voters to vote for Naplin, Day and Fore. They are the regularly endorsed candidates of the farmers and workers of the district. The writer has known Senator Naplin and Representative Day for a good many years. It so happened that I was a member of the Legislature during one of the recent sessions and had a chance to see both Senator Naplin and Rep. Day at work. From what I saw I feel that they are both entitled to another term. They now have the experience and can be still more useful if re-elected. They are both honest, fearless and for the peoples' interests at all times. Remember, they stand by your other candidates and are out working for Magnus Johnson, Shipstead and the entire ticket. They were with you two and four years ago in the fight to elect Lindberg and Evans. They have gone through the fight from the beginning and showed that they can be depended upon.

So far as I am informed, none of the opposition candidates are supporting Shipstead and Johnson. They did not come out and support Lindberg and Evans four years ago. They are not in favor of a State Elevator and Mill, State Bank, etc. If you want to get a line on any candidate who claims to be progressive, find out where he stood two and four years ago, when the battle was hard and the going rough. Find out whether he is today supporting Preus and Kellogg, or Johnson and Shipstead.

It is popular and good politics today to claim to be a progressive. Preus, Kellogg and Mrs. Olesen are all today trying to steal the progressive ideas of the League program. But can you depend upon them? I for one will say that you cannot depend upon any candidate who was not with you in the fight two and four years ago. The man who was not with you four years ago, and who was ashamed of you then and out fighting Lindberg, Evans, and the other progressive candidates, is not with you now, and cannot be depended upon. Not one of the standpat candidates in this state has publicly announced that he will support Magnus Johnson and Shipstead. They make all sorts of promises to get your vote, but they are working for Preus, Kellogg, and the old gang. Remember that Kellogg was the man who introduced the resolution to have Senator LaFollette expelled from the Senate four years ago. Governor Preus has been going up and down the state insulting the leaguers and progressive people, with his tirade about radicalism, free love, and insinuations about irreligion. We have an old saying that "Actions speak louder than words," and it seems to me that we only need to look at the actions of Preus and Kellog and the standpat candidates to know where they stand and what to expect from them.

Yours very truly,

H. O. BERVE

Rev. and Mrs. Sweger Tendered Surprise Party

The Trinity Lutheran congregation appeared "en masse" last Sunday afternoon when they assembled in the church basement for the purpose of tendering a surprise on their pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. T. E. Sweger. The worthy couple were called to the basement at the appropriate time when everyone had arrived and an excellent program consisting of speeches and musical numbers followed, after which refreshments brought by the ladies were served to all present.

Mrs. Bernhard Knudsen was in charge of the day's proceedings, putting the audience into the spirit of the occasion from the very beginning. Attorney Theo. Quale gave an address in which he explained the reason of the gathering and presented Rev. and Mrs. Sweger with a dining room set, a lamp and a purse containing a neat sum of money, as a token of esteem and appreciation for the work they are doing in the congregation. Rev. Sweger responded in his usual pleasing and fitting manner, thanking those who took part and commending them on the spirit shown. Brief but forcefull and spirited talks were given by Supt. I. T. Simley, C. L. Hanson, and Judge Andrew Grindeland. A vocal solo by Mrs. O. F. Mellby, a duet by Mrs. Mellby and Roy Prytz and a violin solo by Master Henry Arneson, accompanied by Miss Eileen Arneson proved of a very pleasing nature to the attentive audience. Music was also furnished by a phonograph, a courtesy of the Thief River Music company.

The gathering was a splendid showing, practically every member of the congregation being present to take part in festivities.

Miss Agnes Stavig, instructor in the local high school, is confined to her home and has been quite ill as the result of an attack of influenza. She may be able to resume her duties at school next week.

Miss Johnston Entertains

Tuesday evening Miss Lillian Johnston was hostess at a party at her home, 524 LaBree avenue north, which was attended by twelve boys and girls. The decorations were suggestive of Hallowe'en and the evening which was spent at playing games, was concluded by refreshments.

Potato Prices Still Low Best Bringing Under 90c

Thief River Falls Potato Growers association has shipped out 32 cars of potatoes this season for which an average price of 72 cents per 100 pounds has been received. The best price was received by Arne Vik on a car of Triumphs, which returned him $321.40 after the freight had been deducted, or 89½ cents per 100 pounds. This was one of the last shipments made and the stock was of distinctly high grade. It also seems as if the Triumph is bringing a slightly better price than other varieties.

That the quality of the stock shipped from Pennington county this year is particularly high is evidenced by the fact that only two carloads out of the 32 shipped failed to pass as No. 1.

Local Concern Branches Out; New Store at Cloquet

Albert Lieberman, clothier, returned to the city Monday after an absence he was busy getting the enw store of the Lieberman company started at Cloquet, it being Mr. Lieberman's intention to divide his time between Thief River Falls and Cloquet in the future. Arrangements for new and larger quarters have been made in the last-named town as the new concern has already built up a considerable business there. Olaf Winger and Roy Seidel will be in direct charge of the business here, a fact which insures its being well looked after.

Buys Out Business Place

The soft drink and cigar business heretofore conducted by O. W. Carlson on the corner of Second and LaBree has been purchased by George E. Larson, who took charge the first of the month. Mr. Carlson has not definitely decided upon his future course but will in all likelihood remain in the city.

May Hold Railroads For Losses to Spud Shippers

Hugh J. Hughes, director of marketing of the Minnesota department of agriculture, told potato growers and shippers at Moorhead on Monday night that in his opinion railroads, as common carriers, could be held liable for loss resulting from their liability to supply necessary cars. He urged shippers to make their car orders in writing.

Buttermakers in Section Hold Annual Meet in City

NOTICE TO THE VOTERS

On account of adverse conditions for fall farm work the greater part of my time has been taken up in looking after my farming interests and as a result I have been unable to do much campaigning for the office of county auditor. Although I have been unable to see many of the voters personally I will most certainly appreciate the vote and support of all.

Respectfully,
THOS. H. BJERKE

MARIUS WALDAL

Candidate for the Legislature

Statement of Principles:

To the Voters of the 65th Legislative District:

Owing to the great amount of work on the farm at this time of the year, I find it will be physically impossible for me to meet any considerable number of the voters, hence I shall have to depend on the public press to bring my message to the voters.

If elected to the legislature it will be my purpose to oppose all measures giving privileges to the special interests of the state, including the so-called "Constabulary Law." Giving such added political machinery into the hand of any one man is to my mind dangerous and should be defeated.

If the Rural Credits Amendment is adopted, which I earnestly hope it will, I will give my assistance to the enactment of suitable laws which will give the farmers of the state the privilege of making long-time real estate loans at the lowest possible rate of interest.

It will be my aim and purpose to vote for the repeal of the present vicious pre-primary law and to uphold in every respect the old-time primary under which the voters may express their own choice of candidates.

The departments of the state government should be combined and co-related in such manner as to effect the greatest possible saving to the tax payers, and I believe further that a the automobile tax is badly in need of revision and equalization.

All co-operative marketing measures of merit will have my aid and support; the time may not be ripe for state controlled terminal elevators and warehouses, but if such a law should be attempted it will have my vote and support.

I want to make it plain that I stand unequivocally for the agricultural interests of the state, believing that the men and women who labor have not been treated with entire fairness in the past.

Believing I can be of service to the people of this district, as well as to the state in general, I respectfully solicit the aid and support of all voters at the coming general election.

[illegible]IVER REPORTS COMING UP FOR FINAL HEARING

Red Lake River Project to be Reported on in This City Saturday Dec. 7

Viewers' Supplemental Statement of Benefits on Clearwater Has Been Filed

Lands in Four Townships of Pennington County Added to Original List

Final hearing on the Red Lake river project of the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy commission will be held at Thief River Falls on Thursday, Dec. 7, and the adjournment hearing on the Clearwater project will be held at Gonvick on Dec. 4. The amended report of the viewers on the last-named project has been submitted to the board and the matter is scheduled to be finally disposed of by Judges Andrew Grindeland of the Fourteenth district, and C. W. Stanton of the Fifteenth district on the date named. The same judges will preside at the hearing in this city three days later. Formal notice of the hearings as well as the names of parties affected by the proposed improvements will be found on another page of this issue of The Times.

Besides a long list of individuals owning lands, the notice is addressed to the officials of Pennington, Beltrami and Clearwater counties, and the townships of Reiner, Goodridge, Kratka, Highlanding, Star, Hickory, and Deer Park in Pennington county, the town of Esplee in Marshall county and the cities of Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Crookston, and East Grand Forks, Grand Forks. All the power companies with plants on the river, the state of Minnesota and the United States are named as interested parties, as are the secretary of war, secretary of the interior, commissioner of Indian affairs and President of the United States. The reservation Indians are also included.

The lands assessed for the benefits in Pennington county are as follows: Sections 6 to 36 inclusive in Reiner township; all of Star township; sections 1 to 24 inclusive, Hickory township; sections 11, 12, 13,14,24,24,25, 26,31,32,33,34,35 and 36, Goodridge township; all of Highlanding township; sections 1 to 14 inclusive, Deer Park township; sections 11 to 36 inclusive, Kratka township, and sections 1 to 12 inclusive, Mayfield township.

Purpose is Set Forth

The official notice sets forth the purposes of the proposed improvements as follows: The straightening, widening and deepening of the Red Lake river by the construction of a ditch to form a channel therefore, partly along the old channel and partly across bends in the river, so as to shorten the course and the construction of such other improvements as are necessary to properly control and facilitate the flow of the waters of said river, especially in all that part of its channel commencing in section 18 of township 153, range 41, in Pennington county, and ending in section 28, township 152, range 36, in Clearwater county, and also the construction of a control dam at or near the outlet of Red Lake.

Clearwater Hearing

The final hearings on the Clearwater project, which was originally set for Nov. 14, has been adjourned to Dec. 4, at Gonvick. At a previous hearing a review of the lands affected was ordered and the viewers have now reported their findings. Forty-two names have been added to the original assessment list, small districts overlooked at the time of the viewing having been found in all counties of the district. In Pennington county sections 20, 21, 22, and 24 of Hickory township have been added to the lands benefitted by the proposed improvement.

Former Thief River Girl Dies At Oakland Hospital

A large circle of friends in this city will be sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Holger Nelson, formerly Miss Elsie Fellman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Fellman, who moved to Oakland, Cal. Mrs. Nelson passed away Oct. 27 at the early age of 25 years, at the Oakland Central hospital following a serious operation which had been performed the day previous.

Deceased was well known to Thief River people, having lived here with her parents for a period of about 18 years. She was born in Crookston but was educated in the schools here and graduated from the Lincoln high school with the class of 1916.

Following her graduation she went to Montana where she was united in marriage to Holger Nelson. They moved to Oakland where they were making their home when death occurred. Mrs. Nelson is survived by her husband and two daughters, Maxine, Luverne and Helen Norma; Also her parents Mr. and Mrs. Erick Fellman; sister, Mrs. Cyril M. Lundberg; and brothers, Walter, Wallace, and Lloyd.

Barber Opens in New Quarters

C. B. Bradley has resumed barber activities at the location next to O. W. Carlson's cafe on LaBree avenue. This place was for a brief period occupied by Forrest Ralston who conducted a shoe shining parlor.

Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Larson Tendered Surprise Sunday

Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Larson of the Zion Lutheran church, were completely taken by surprise last Sunday evening when they were called down into the church basement following the services and where practically the whole congregation had assembled to show their appreciation and good will towards their pastor and his wife. The event was a very pretty affair, everyone taking part in the festivities in the most cheerful spirit in spite of the disagreeable weather, and the packed basement was an indication of the cooperative spirit of the congregation.

T. M. Stageberg, deacon of the church, was master of ceremonies and gave a brief talk as he presented Rev. and Mrs. Larson with a gift from the congregation in the form of a substantial check. The recipients of the gift responded very fittingly. Brief but inspiring addresses were also delivered by Rev. Aug. Bredeson, C. L. Hansen and Hans Peterson. They all expressed the joint satisfaction in the work performed by the pastor and the worthy assistance of his wife, with hopes that they may continue their services for many years yet.

The party was concluded with the serving of refreshments which had been brought by the ladies.

Woman Injured When Autos Collide at Warren Crossing

A head-on collision which nearly cost several people their lives occurred last Monday at Warren when a touring car containing Mr. and Mrs. William Vanek of Key West, and a Ford coupe in which were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kjorsvik of Robbin, clashed into each other at the crossing by the Cities Service station. The Vanek car coming from the south turned east at the crossing just when the coupe came to that point from the east. The front of the Ford was badly damaged and the other car which barely missed going into the ditch, was also considerably smashed up. Mrs. Kjorsvik, who was quite badly bruised, was the only one of the occupants to be seriously injured, which was a miracle considering the nature of the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Kjorsvik were on their return from this city where they visited with relatives, when the collision happened.

No One Hurt When Auto Hits Corner of Bridge

Adolph Amundson had a narrow escape last Tuesday evening when his car struck the corner of the bridge as he was crossing over to the East side on Bridge street. Amundson came in his car from the west side on First street but did not make a sufficient turn and as a result struck the corner of the bridge with the front fender which was slightly bungled up. A sudden turn to the right, however, threw the rear end of the machine against the railing, breaking the left rear wheel and smashing the fender. No one was injured and the car was taken to the Peoples garage for repairs.

Opens New Grocery

Wm. Korstad, who has just completed the erection of a new store building on Sixth street between Main and Knight avenues, has opened for business and is handling a line of groceries. As yet he has only a small stock but expects to have a full supply within a short time. This will be the first store of its kind in the residence section of the west side.

Bank at Holt Resumes Business Under New Name

The Marshall County State bank of Holt, successor to Holt State bank, opened its doors on Monday morning, having purchased the building and fixtures of the last named institution, the affairs of which have been in the course of adjustment for about three months. Following are the officers of the new bank: J. W. Black, Minneapolis, president; A. H. Neiter, who is interested in banks in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, vice president, and R. J. BIG DOINGS IN THE OLD TOWN ARMISTICE DAY

Elmer J. Eklund Post to Fittingly Observe Fourth Anniversary of War's End

All Business Will Suspend During Exercises; D. P. O'Neill to Deliver Address

Snake Parade, Carnival Dance, Among Features Provide for Big Celebration

Saturday-Armistice Day-all roads will lead to Thief River Falls when the Elmer Eklund Post, No. 117 of the American Legion sponsors a celebration on the fourth anniversary of the signing of the historic document. Elaborate and extensive plans are being made by the committee in charge for one of the most memorable events in this city and one that will long be remembered by the large number of visitors expected to invade Thief River Falls that day.

Business Places Close

Mayor Bratrud has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens to make the proper observance of the day and requests that all business places close between the hours of 10:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Also that those who are employing service men release them from duty in time to take part in the morning exercises and remain off duty the rest of the day to take part in all the activities staged by the Legion. It is also expected that the various business places will be appropriately decorated for the occasion, giving the city the proper appearance for the event. Members of the Legion will also make the town attractive by decorating all cluster lights and standards about the city.

At Auditorium 10:45

The program proper will commence at 10:45 at the auditorium where Mayor Bratrud has been placed in charge of the exercises. The speaker of the day will be former senator, D. P. O'Neill of St. Paul. A pleasing musical program has been arranged for, including quartettes, songs, and orchestral numbers, which should prove a fine addition to the program.

At 11:11 sharp there will be a silent tribute in commemoration of the precise moment when the armistice was signed, following which there will be let loose all the noise-making contrivances in Thief River Falls and whistles and bells will shriek and ring for a period of five minutes.

Special Movies

The Legion secured a special picture to be shown at the Lyceum theatre Saturday afternoon and evening. The films are particularly appropriate for the day as one of them, "The Battle of Jutland," depicts in a very realistic manner the famous naval battle which took place off the Jutland islands during the World War. This picture was booked by the management some time ago and is presented under the auspices of the Legion. "The Fighting Guide" another picture, in which William Duncan, western character, has the leading role, has also been engaged. Both of these pictures will be shown at the price of one admission. There will be four shows during the day, as follows: 2:00 p. m. and 3.30 p. m. and at 7:30 and 9:00 in the evening.

Free Supper for Service Men

The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion will serve a free supper to all ex-service men at the club rooms under the First and Peoples bank building and the Auxiliary extends a special invitation to all former soldiers and sailors to come to the club rooms and join in the supper. The serving will commence at 5:30 p. m. and continue until all have been satisfied. Arrangements have also been made by the Auxiliary to serve refreshments at the auditorium during the dance.

In the evening a huge bonfire at the corner of Second street and LaBree, across from the Times, will be the center of interest preceding the snake parade and dance. A large amount of material for the fire has been furnished and everybody who wishes to dispose of anything that produces a flame are requested to bring it to the bonfire.

Snake Parade and Dance

When the bonfire loses its brilliancy, at about 9:00 o'clock, one of the main features will take place. Everybody is then expected to get into line for the monster snake parade which will be led by the city band. The moving mass will march thru the city wherever the leaders chose to go and will continue until the carnival dance begins at the auditorium, where the parade will wind up. A line of citizentry a mile long is anticipated for the parade.

Those in charge of the dance at the auditorium are making arrangements for a novelty affair and are promising something new in this form of entertainment. There will be several special features including booths of various kinds, raffles, courts and confetti and streamers in enormous amounts. A hundred or more turkeys will be raffled affording people to get their Thanksgiving turkey. Snyder's orchestra, which will supply the music for the evening, will introduce several new numbers and specialties and a harmony quartette has been secured to render popular airs at intermissions.

A "gala" day is assured for Thief River Falls and everybody in this vicinity is expected to participate in the celebration.

The Legion committe in charge is composed of S. V. Arneson, G. Howard Smith and Kern Olson and they are doing their utmost to make the event a huge success at which everyone can have a frolicking time.

Goodridge Girl Dies

Anton Anderson's little girl, Gudrund Elizabeth, died Tuesday morning, Oct. 31, at the Thief River Falls hospital after a few days' illness following an operation for appendicitis. Little Gudrund lost her mother soon after she was born nine years ago and since that time she has spent her days with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Vigness at Shelly, Minn. who gave the motherless little girl a cozy and loving home. Mr. Anderson resides on a farm near Silverton.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon, Nov. 2, at the Bethania Lutheran church. Rev. V. O. Aaker gave the funeral sermon based on 2 Kings, 4:26. "Is it well worth the child? and she answered, It is well." The Bethania choir sang very impressively. The interment took place at the Bethania cemetery.

ATTENTION MERCHANTS!

The Thief River Falls stores will close on Armistice day from 10:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., according to a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Merchants Association of this city. It is suggested that everybody attend the exercises at the Auditorium, which begin at 10:45 on that day.

Canadian Geese Replace Moose in Imagination of City Newspaper Editors

The rotogravure section of the Minneapolis Tribune for Sunday contained a picture that has attracted considerable attention. It showed what purported to be a flock of Canadian geese sedately perambulating along the main street of Middle River while automobiles and other vehicles passed by without in any manner disturbing the peaceful pursuits of the wild foul. It was a good picture but rather improbable as it indicated a degree of tameness on the part of the geese which is not in accord with that bird's natural habit. It would seem as if the inhabitants of Middle River do not care for geese as the central attraction of a Sunday dinner. It is possible that these were wild Canadian geese, but if so, it is the opinion of those who ought to know that their wings had been clipped so as to prevent their flying. The story is on a par with the yarns sent out occasionally telling of deer and moose being seen in the business sections of towns in the northern part of the state.

Potato Lot of 22 Acres Averages 300 Bushels Per

L. F. Cornell, a farmer east of Red Lake Falls, is reported to have had a crop of potatoes averaging 300 bushels to the acre on a 22-acre plot. This unusually large yield was secured from the Green Mountain variety. Although spud prices are very low this year, Mr. Cornell believes he will realize some profit from this exceptional yield.

Goodridge Cream Sent Here, Manager Moves To This City

Joe Gangness and family moved here from Goodridge last week to make their home in Thief River Falls, Mr. Gangness being in the employ of the local creamery. Since the reopening of the creamery at Goodridge last spring Mr. Gangness was engaged as manager but upon its closing he was transferred to the creamery in this city. The reason for discontinuing of the Goodridge creamery was the small amount of cream handled during the slack season. However, a station will be maintained where cream will be bought and tested for shipment to Thief River Falls.

Bureau to Probe Boycott Charge Against Big Trust

Charges that manufacturers of harvesting machinery have boycotted dealers who handle products of the Minnesota prison will be investigated by officials of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation. It is reported that dealers have been told that unless they drop the prison line, they will not be permitted to handle other equipment.

"Farmers of Minnesota last year were saved $150,000 on their bill for prison machinery," said J. F. Reed, president, "largely thru the co-operation of the Farm Bureau with the prison authorities. "Minnesota" equipment, the trade name under which prison products are sold, is growing in popularity and we strongly suspect that the boycott reports are a part of a renewed campaign to discredit "Minnesota" machines. If these reports are found to true, the full force of the Minnesota Farm Bureau movement will be used to reveal the source from which they come."

Corn Picker Demand Heavy in Southwest

Sections of Minnesota in which corn is a major crop report to F. L. French, secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, a heavy demand for corn pickers. Mr. French has just completed a survey of the state. Farmers are paying an average of 54 cents an hour for pickers where unloading is done by hand and 47 cents where an elevator is used. Men for general work are getting on an average of $1.90 a day and $37 a month. These averages are based on reports from 48 counties in the state.

Bad Auto Smashup On State Road Near Plummer

On Monday evening, last week, a mile south of Plummer, on the state road, occurred one of the worst auto wrecks that we have witnessed for many years. The occupants of both cars were extremely fortunate that they escaped with their lives. Thom Norby and Theo. Brooks were going south, about midnight in Norby's Buick and when about one mile south of Plummer they met Andrew Schjeldrup and Martin Haga, coming toward Plummer in Schjeldrup's Ford. In some manner the cars collided with the result that the Ford was completely demolished and the Buick was smashed so badly that it will be in the "hospital" some time for repairs. Theo. Brooks was cut quite badly about the face and Dr. Froehlich was called from Thief River Falls to attend him. Andrew Schjeldrup was also cut some about the mouth. Outside of a severe shaking up, the others escaped uninjured and are shaking hands with themselves on their good fortune. Just whose fault the accident was, we are unable to say. Both cars were thrown in the ditch on the right-hand side of the road going north.—Plummer Pioneer.

Aged St. Hilaire Resident Dies

Mrs. Thora Anderson, aged 88, a pioneer settler of this section, passed away Monday, Oct. 30, after a short illness at her home northwest of St. Hilaire. Deceased was born in Norway and first made her home at St. Thomas, N. D. before moving here with her husband many years ago. During the past few years she made her home with her son, Ole. Mrs. Anderson is survived by three sons and four daughters who are: Andrew, of St. Thomas, Anton, of Wylie, and Ole, of St. Hilaire, Mrs. Sam Thompson, Jewel, Iowa, Mrs. Henry Swanson, Watford City, N. D., Mrs. Alex Johnson, Crookston, and Mrs. Ole Johnson of Holt. urged to come.

Funeral of F. W. Johnson, Soo Engineer, Held Sunday

Fred W. Johnson, 41 years of age, an engineer on the Soo railway, died at his home in this city early Friday morning of diabitis, from which he had been a sufferer for some time. Funeral services were held under the auspices of the Elks lodge and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers from the residence on Sunday afternoon and the body shipped to Minneapolis for burial.

Deceased was born Feb. 2, 1881, at Geneseo, Ill. On Nov. 7, 1904, he was married to Miss Mabel Mae Barnes at Kewanee, Ill, who with two children survives him. The children are Doris, 11, and Harold, 9. There are also two brothers, Jack and Elroy, of Los Angeles, and two sisters, Delia, also a resident at Los Angeles, and Mrs. Earl Tolma, of Sabula, Ia.

After a short service at the residence the body was taken to the Presbyterian church where the funeral was conducted by Rev. Chas. Gerlinger. The burial service of the Elks lodge was also used under the leadership of Exalted Ruler L. G. Larsen. The church was crowded to capacity by former fellow-workers and lodge associates of the dead engineer. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, the deceased having had a wide circle of friends and acquaintences. Vocal selections were rendered by the Elks quartet and there was a beautiful song by a quartet of young girls.

The body was taken back to the Larson undertaking establishment, from which place it was escorted to the train by the Elks in the evening.

Mogensen Stock Goes On Sale; In Trustee's Hands

One of the most sensational clothing sales ever held in this section will begin on Saturday afternoon when the E. O. Mogenson stock will be sold by the trustee for the purpose of immediately turning it into cash. The entire stock has been arranged for quick disposal as it must be converted without delay.

The opportunity afforded for securing goods of the highest quality at practically the purchaser's own price will no doubt precipitate a rush and the wise buyer will be on hand early. There is a large stock of working and dress shoes included in the bargain list and these particularly are expected to move fast. The clothing line will be found very complete at the outset of the sale, but naturally the longer one waits the greater will be the chance for being disappointed. The entire line must go. There is no possible chance that anything can be withheld. The creditors want their money and it simply must be raised. If reduced prices prove any inducement the probabilities are that it will not last long. A more extended announcement will be found in the trustee's advertisement on another page.

No Benefits Shown In Feeding Yeast Trials

Tests made at the Minnesota Experiment station, University Farm, by men of the dairy and biochemistry divisions showed only negative results in the feeding of yeast to calves and milk cows. An no appreciable effect on the growth of the young animal or on milk production by the cows appeared, the investigators conclude that the rations generally fed to calves and cows contain an ample supply of vitamin B, which is carried in yeast.

The experiments were suggested by strong claims made for the use of yeast in the human diet and more than a year was spent in carrying them out. A yeast company paid all expenses and furnished all the yeast. Forty-two calves were used in four experiments and tests were made with eight cows in milk.

Yeast was added to the rations of newly dropped calves and denied in the rations fed a second similar group, or "check" group. The effect of yeast was tried out in this way in the ordinary ration, in a typical ration under good conditions, in what might be called a poor ration, and a ration—including whole milk—generally fed to promising purebred stock. Experiments paralleling those with the cattle were carried out with rats as subjects and demonstrated that no advantage is to be derived from feeding animals a larger amount of vitamin B than is necessary for their normal development.

SHIPSTEAD DEFEATS KELLOGG; REST OF G.O.P. TICKET SAFE

Gov. Preus Re-elected But By a Margin of Probably Not Over 10,000; Congressmen Steenerson, Volstead Defeated; Hansen Elected for State Senate Over Naplin; Sheriff LaBree, N. J. Anderson and Geo. M. Gunderson Fail of Re-Election in the County; Judges Grindeland and Watts Are Winners

The Vote in Other States

Elections throughout the country on Tuesday seems to have favored the Democrats as a general thing. New York elected a Democrat to succeed Senator Calder, and Alfred A. Smith, former governor, has defeated Gov. Miller, Republican. Smith's has a pluarity of nearly half a million votes. The entire democratic state ticket was swept into office.

Gov. Edwards, "wet" advocate, democratic candidate for the United States senate from New Jersey, defeated Freinghuysen, Repubican, present incumbent.

A. V. Dohaney, (dem), was elected governor of Ohio but the remainder of the Republican state ticket was successful.

Republicans were successful in South Dakota.

All democratic candidates were elected in Alabama.

Gifford Pinchit, (pro), was elected governor of Pennsylvania by a large majority.

Senator Poindexter has probably been defeated by C. C. Dill (dem) in the state of Washington.

W. M. Neely (dem) has probably been elected senator from West Virginia, defeating Howard Sutherland (rep).

S. M. Ralston (dem), former governor, has been elected to the senate in Indiana, defeating A. J. Beveredge.

The Republicans seem to have been successful in Kansas.

Nebraska has elected a democratic governor and probably four members of the congregational delegation.

Kendrick (dem) is leading Mondell for senator in Wyoming by a small plurality.

Wheeler (dem) has a lead of about 10,000 votes over Riddick (rep) for senator in Montana.

The entire LaFollette ticket was elected in Wisconsin.

Senator Lodge has been returned from Massachusetts by a majority of less than 2,000.

Brookhart, (pro rep), has been eected to the senate from Iowa.

Republicans in Illinois have lost three and perhaps four seats in their congressional delegation. The proposed amendment permitting light wines and beer carried by a tremendous majority.

Ferris (dem) has been elected United States senator from Michigan, defeating Senator Townsend.

Pierce (dem) was elected governor of Oregon by a plurality of 20,000.

Mayfield, clan candidate and democratic nominee, has been elected senator from Texas.

Reed, democrat and opponent of the league of nations, was re-elected to the senate from Missouri.

Senator Hiram Johnson led in every county in California. The entire Republican state ticket was elected.

Senator Pittman (dem) was resulted to the senate from Nevada.

Democrats scored a complete victory in Arizona.

2-Year Old Falls From Bed, Breaks Arm Below Elbow

The two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson had the misfortune of breaking her arm below the elbow in a fall from a bed on Saturday evening. The little child was at once taken to the Thief River clinic where it was given medical attention and is now doing well.

Salvation Army Drive

The financial drive in Pennington county for the Salvation Army begins Sunday and will continue for one week as announced in the last issue of the Times. The drive is in charge of committees in the various wards and townships and an attempt will be made to reach everybody in the county. It is hoped that the solicitors will meet with general and liberal donations wherever they call.

Evangelist to Preach Here

There will be a series of evangelistical meetings in the Zion Lutheran church commencing Nov. 24 and continuing thru the 25 and 26. Evangelist Rev. Peter Nelson of Duluth will speak at these meetings and it is expected that there will be a good attendance to all sessions as Rev. Nelson is a splendid speaker and has a message to deliver to those who wish to hear him.

The outcome of the elections on Tuesday will not cause Republicans to swell with pride or grow arrogant. In Minnesota the state ticket received enough votes to keep a hold on the governing machinery, but a number of them came very near having heart disease before the fact was determined. Senator Kellogg was defeated by Dr. Henrik Shipstead while it is probable that the plurality of Gov. Preus will not exceed 10,000.

In Pennington county Magnus Johnson, candidate for the Farmer Labor party, beat Preus two to one while the showing made by Kellogg was even worse. The balance of the Farmer-Labor state ticket was given a big majority here and the same is true of most northwestern counties.

Steenerson Defeated

The Republicans lose two congressmen to the nonpartisans—Volstead and Steenerson. While it was recognized that Volstead had a stiff fight on his hands, very few persons were able to figure out how the veteran from the Ninth district could be in any possible danger. Indications are, however, that he has failed to carry any of the 13 counties comprising the district. Knud Wefald of Hawley, running on the Farmer-Labor ticket, is the successful candidate and will succeed Mr. Steenerson in the next congress, relieving him after 20 years of service.

Hansen For State Senate

The most interesting race in this section of the state was that between O. A. Naplin, present state senator from the 65th, and C. L. Hansen. The latter was elected, carrying the district by about 450 votes. The candidates ran neck and neck in Pennington county, there being only seven votes difference, these being in Naplin's favor. Hansen received a substantial majority in Red Lake county and led slightly in Clearwater, however.

Thanks the Voters

The unofficial returns indicate my election as Senator from the 65th district by a substantial majority and it goes without saying that I am deeply appreciative of the sincere compliment thus accorded me by the voters. I realize there are many obligations to fulfill and it will be my endeavor as a representative of the people to interpret the wishes of my constituency to the best of my ability.

C. L. HANSEN

Marius Waldal of Plummer, and W. E. Day of Clearwater county, will represent the 65th in the lower house of the legislature. Nels Foro, running with Farmer-Labor endorsement, was defeated.

Old Judges Retained

G. Halvorson headed the list of candidates for district judge so far as Pennington county is concerned, but the present incumbents, William Watts of Crookston, and Andrew Grindeland of Warren, have been elected.

Unlooked For Results

Two of the oldest officials in points of service in the county were relegated back to private life by the voters, while one other present official fell by the wayside. Sheriff W. J. LaBree, was beaten by O. L. Ihle, member of the city council for three terms. N. J. Anderson, for eight years register of deeds, will yield his office to F. D. Lorentson on the first of January. He has heretofore been regarded as invincible and the outcome was something of a surprise.

One other official failed of re-election, George M. Gunderson, county superintendent of schools, was defeated by Ole R. Sande, a young ex-service man, by about a score of votes.

John Gullingsrud, county treasurer, proved the leader in the vote-getting, defeating his opponent, Nick Bundlund by about four to one. Dr. Froehlich's victory was even more sweeping but the office is not of great importance. County Auditor T. P. Anderson came through with colors flying, being outdistanced only by Mr. Gullingsrud and Dr. Froehlich as a vote-getter.

A NARROW SQUEAK

While indications are that most of the present officials of the state of Minnesota have been re-elected, the inroads on their ranks is sufficiently heavy to cause the leaders considerable alarm. The defeat of Senator Kellogg was a hard blow and the scant plurality with which Preus is returned as chief executive of the state for two years more is not calculated to call forth loud and prolonged cheers. A drop from a majority of 183,000 two years ago to a point where it is barely descernable can hardly be construed as an unqualified endorsement, even though another term is somewhat grudgingly tendered.

The election of Shipstead to replace Kellogg is one of the strangest things that have happened in Minnesota politics. Kellogg is capable, clean and energetic. His record as a senator is in the main very good. Shipstead cannot expect to fill his place in the upper house of congress for many years, if ever. Yet knowing this the people deliberately vote him out. There must be an underlying reason for this.

This reason is dissatisfaction and general unrest on the part of the farmer. He has been promised so much and has received so little that he is prepared to hit an official head wherever he finds it in the hope that his wallops will be felt where his pleadings have failed. He may not have reasoned the entire situation out to a nicely, but he knows that he is getting the worst of it and is going to lay the blame on someone. He believes that congress could have so managed things after the war that he would not have been compelled to bear more than his share of the readjustment costs instead of having the burden hit him heavier than any other men. Just how far he is right and how far wrong does not particularly matter. He is going to change things somehow and is taking the only means he knows anything about to accomplish his purpose.

The near-defeat of Gov. Preus by Magnus Johnson is more the result of a protest against the former than any suddenly awakened admiration for Mr. Johnson. The farmer figured that as he was making a change he might as well go as far as possible. He did not quite reach the governor but he retired Congressman Steenerson to private life. It is also probable that the same disposition had more to do with the defeat of Volstead than all the "wet" propaganda ever launched. Residents of the Seventh and Ninth Minnesota districts are interested in the prohibition question only incidently, while freight rates, commodity prices and curtailed borrowing capacity are matters of concrete concern with them. Very few persons in this region cared much about the prohibition record of these congressmen but they were dissatifacted with their record on matters of vital concern to the farming interests of Minnesota, and proceeded to show it.

Locally there were some surprising results. Old and tried servants were discharged and new men put in their places. The reasons for this must have been sufficiently well defined to justify the voters in their own minds, as they have heretofore repeatedly honored these same men with their support.

The officers elected are men of excellent promise and will no doubt make very good public servants. Perhaps the best thing The Times can wish for them is that they will fill their offices as capably as have their predecessors.

THE FINAL HEARING

After many unfavorable delays the final hearing on the Red River flood control project is to be held soon. Argument for and against the undertaking will be heard before Judges Grindeland and Stanton in this city on December 7, at which time a decision will be rendered as to whether or not the work shall be continued.

The Clearwater division of the enterprise will be decided at Red Lake Falls on the 4th of next month so that those interested in any manner in the big projects will have their day in court.

It should be remembered that these hearings are as much in the interest of those who favor the plans of the Red Lake commission as for those who oppose them. It is generally the case that those who oppose improvements of this kind come to the hearings en masse while those in favor are satisfied to let matters drift, secure in the opinion that the opposition will not amount to anything. This leaves the presiding judge with a wrong impression as to the need for the projected improvement and he cannot be blamed for thinking that the opposition far outweighs the demand. For this reason it is very much to be desired that all those who favor removing for all time the danger of loss incident to overflowed farms as well as those in whose interest it will be to have a dependable flow of water for industrial purposes, be present at these hearings and set forth their reasons for wishing the projects carried through. The other side will be there in force—at least such has always proven the case in the past.

Here is an opportunity to begin on an improvement long recognized as needed. For a quarter of a century it has been realized that this vast section could never reach the point of productiveness which it is capable of sustaining unless the flood menace were removed It has also during all that time been recognized that the only permanent and satisfactory solution of the difficulty was the deepening and straightening of the river and the construction of controlling works at its source. Haphazzard ditching has been tried, and while it has helped some, the results have been far from satisfactory. Only a comprehensive plan which will include the entire drainage basin of the stream will efficiently solve the problem. This is now within reach. The cost is large in the aggregate but is so distributed that much of it will be paid by interests other than that of farming. It is doubtful if the farmer will ever again be able to provide such adequate drainage for his lands at so small an outlay per acre, even should it be possible to bring the matter up at a later date. It is therefore very important that favorable action should be had at this time.

LEGION SOUNDS WARNING

State officers of the American Legion are sending out warnings against the so-called "Ex-Service Men's Bonus League of America," which is not approved by the Legion. Its state Manager, H. W. Kellerman of Alexandria, asked for this approval and offered approximately $1500 per month to the state commander personally or the Minnesota legion treasury, for such official approval. Manager Kellerman showed that of the $1 collected from citizens who join this league, 25 cents goes to the soliciting agent, 15 cents to the county agent, 30 cents to the state traveling agent, 4 cents to Manager Kellerman, and 26 cents for badges, cards, etc. This left no part of the "membership fee" for promoting adjusted compensation, and the legion failed to see the proposition as anything but another attempt to goldbrick the service men and the public. Officers declared that the American Legion, while giving freely of its time and energy without pay to the adjusted compensation cause, has not and never will brand its service to its comrades with the dollar sign. Any representation of the legion's attitude by this organization will be vigorously dealt with if reported to legion state headquarters, St. Paul.

Concerning the Prowler

Several weeks ago these columns carried the news of the organization of the new Prowler staff to our readers. Through the current school year we propose to give you all news of the Annual which is of sufficient importance to warrant its publication.

We of the staff are just beginning to see the magnitude of the job before us; we are confronted with a task with which none of us have had any experience, and of which we know nothing. The best thing we can do to learn is to look through all available old annuals, and see what others before us have done; and even that has its drawbacks since we wish this yearbook of Lincoln High to be different, and so are loath to copy the ideas we find.

What shall we do as the first step in building the 1923 Prowler? We do not know; and we feel much the same as the driver of a Ford, who finds himself far from home and friends, with all his tires blown out, and with his lights short-circuited.

To illustrate our plight: Looking over the usual form of engraving contracts, we find that all work sent in before a certain time gives us the benefit of a large reduction in price. Evidently then, the first thing to do is to get all our pictures sent off to the engraver; and so we hold class meetings and mass meetings and committee meetings to decide when and where and how to take the class and individual pictures; and when the time is appointed, the photographer notified, and we are all wearing our best bibs and tuckers, the weather man steps in with a week of cold, rainy days—wouldn't it irritate the most lamb-like temper in the world?

This is just one of the million and one things with which we have to contend. By the time the other million problems have been disposed of, we shall find our hearts weary and our heads gray; but then we shall be able to look back upon the results of a strenuous school year, and say to ourselves and to the world, "It is good."

Wanted—A School Song For Lincoln High

Truly, music hath charms, especially when it's a school song, sung by a peppy student at a basketball game. Why, it'll raise the temperature of their score something wonderful. You don't know, because, poor things, you have no school song, no more nor I.

Fortunately, a new era is dawning in which we are no longer satisfied with the songless state of existence. We must have a "National" anthem and that before the next game—or close up business in disgrace.

To you, oh rising poets and composers, this is especially directed. Waste not your talents in silly rhymes about your professors, they are such (ungrateful critters) Realize the ignominy of a songless school, and compose a monument of immortality to old Alma Mater. Your name will surely go down in the annals of it's history and it might even observe your birthday anniversaries—if they come November 11th or February 22nd.

Now do be patriotic, and respond to this call for volunteers, or we shall be obliged to resort to drafting, and you'll be surprised some day to hear Mrs. Korstad assigning poetry for an Algebra lesson.

Why I Like To Hike

I think there is no sport that calls forth more spirit, more enthusiasm and pep than a good hike.

Just imagine yourself with some friends, starting out on a hike before the sun is up. A while after you have started the sun comes peeping over the horizon and seems to awaken the very spirit of the world. When the sun's rays strike the dewy grasses the dewdrops glisten like a million diamonds.

Listen! you vain hear a bird singing. He seems to have awakened the rest of the birds for soon they burst forth into song, and the air is filled with music.

As you are hiking thru the woods a gentle breeze is blowing. The leaves touched by the autumn breezes, have turned red and gold.

A squirrel is running up a tree, scolding with all his might. He does not approve of your tramping on his premises and is taking his only way of telling you so. Look at his bright eyes and his sleek coat. The squirrel is, indeed, a very beautiful little animal.

On every hand are the beauties of nature, from the song of a bird and the rustle of the leaves, to the trickling of a brook.

On reaching your destination, you generally have a good appetite, and the fun of gathering the firewood, making a campfire and cooking your breakfast, or what ever it happens to be, is one that no by or girl should miss.

Former and present students alike will be interested to know the whereabouts of some of the former faculty members.

On Thursday and Friday of last week each Freshman Cooking class served a breakfast for ten with one faculty member as guest of honor. These breakfasts were served to demonstrate the correct manner of serving. The guest of the third and fourth period class on Thursday was Miss Brong and on Friday the same class served Miss Thompson. Miss MacNair was the guest of the fifth and sixth period class on Thursday, and Miss M. Johnson on Friday.

Early Life of Faculty Members is Revealed

Through the curiosity of the cub reporter of the Progress we are able to announce that the Faculty have not always held "high chairs" of honor.

Among the faculty members who claim to have spent their childhood on their father's farm is Mr. S. W. Powley. Mr. Powley's farm was eight miles from town and every morning little Stanley trudged along to school. Mr. Powley returns to the same farm every summer to help with the work connected with it.

Miss Minnie Leavitt is the only member who can brag of being brought up in Norway. Miss Leavitt came over from the Old Country when she was "Sweet sixteen."

Mr. G. N. Harner prepared to be a minister. Up to the last semester in college he expected to be one, but he suddenly decided that he was better fitted for teaching.

In contrast to this Miss Maude Johnson says, "I had wanted to teach all my life, only I vowed it would not be music. I was most interested in languages. You can see, though, what I an doing now."

Miss Baumann's long cherished dream was to be a concert pianist. She changed her mind after teaching physical training.

Mrs. Brevig says," I have been almost everything from a stenographer to a cook in a bakery. No, I never thought I'd get married or be a teacher.

Our Hallowe'en

The last days of October have come and gone. There were a few signs of Hallowe'en pranks around town, but on the morning of November 1st Lincoln High was neat and orderly as ever. A few days before Mr. Rapacz requested that the students leave the buildings alone, and they heeded the request. Not only do the superintendent and principal appreciated this consideration on the part of the pupils but also all the teachers. Anyone, teacher or pupil who has a sense of pride in the school, resents having the buildings disarranged and property desltroyed.

Hallowe'en performances are sometimes done in a effort to gain excitement and relief from the steady work of studying. In our school, as in most good schools nowadays, there are many activities outside of the regular subjects which are offered. These things such as athletics, the glee clubs, the orchestra, the Prowler, and the work of the separate class organizations, are useful and pleasant, and should give an outlet for all the superfluous energy that the most lively boys and girls posses.

Alumni

Miss Betsy Ness of the class of 1921, on account of illness, has returned from Minneapolis, where she has been attending the Augsburg Seminary. She will remain at home until the second semester begins.

Gordon LaBree, of the class of 1920, now a student at the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, returned Saturday to his home in this city, where he stayed until after the election.

David Evenson, a member of the class of 1922, is attending Business college at Crookston.

William Alexander of the class of 1922, is intending to teach school during the winter months.

Class Poet

We, the Senior class of 1923, consider it altogether fitting and proper to have an official class poet. To fill this esteemed position we have nominated three of our fellow classmen who have submitted samples of their work to be voted upon.

The nominees are: Lucille Curtis, Rose Costello and Esther Larson. "May the best man win!"

Interclass Games Will Open Season, Seniors Are Strong

Members of the various classes started practice Monday. Coach McFarlane announced officially that class team basketball practice would start Monday at 4 p. m. and the classes were given a schedule of periods.

A great deal of enthusiasm is shown toward class basketball and some interesting games are looked for in the inter-class tournament to take place some time before Thanksgiving.

Here is the dope "as it seems:"

Seniors have a little edge on weight and experience.

Juniors have a good chance for championship with Keene and Sether on the squad. But the Seniors who were last year's "champions" will undoubtedly bring the honor to their class once more.

The "Sophs" have a chance to beat the freshmen who undoubtedly will be very light; and possibly the Juniors.

As a whole, four strong class teams will be developed and there will be much interest in the progress of each team.

Now, that we have the dope, we'll sit back and wait for someone to upset it.

Classes Enjoy Hike

The girls' physical training class under the leadership of Miss Bauman went on forty minute hikes, on Tuesday, instead of training in the gymnasium in their usual way.

One class went out the St. Hilaire road and the others to Squaw Point.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Stavig of Sisseton, South Dakota arrived in this city the early part of last week to visit with their daughter, Miss Agnes, who has been ill for the past two weeks. Miss Stavig is a member of the teaching staff of our high school.

Miss Leavitt made out the new book list during the week, and for this reason the library classes did not meet.

The High School Girls' Glee Club under the direction of Miss Maude Johnson assisted in the community sing at the Women's Club on Monday. They also gave three numbers at the Parent-Teachers meeting held at Lincoln High School the same evening.

During the absence of Mr. Harner who is out in the interests of his campaign for county superintendent, Mr. Rapacz had charge of the Chemistry classes and Mrs. Gerlinger the Physics class.

To eliminate the number of chronic cases of tardiness the system of closing the assembly doors during the taking of roll has been adopted, and, has already proved its worth.

A representative of the Johnson Service Company of Minneapolis was at school last week setting the thermometers in order that the school might test how much coal will be needed to heat the building.

From Our Exchanges

The "Manitou Messenger" registers a protest against compulsory chapel attendance at St. Olaf. It also objects to policing the assembly by teachers, which it critizes as undemocratic and repulsive to a group of intelligent American students.

A column called "Campus Indicator" gives Carleton students an opportunity to express their opinion on matters of common interest thru the "Carletonian." Each week a few prominent students give their views on a certain debatable proposition.

The students of West High, Minneapolis, are ambitious. They ask thru their official organ, the "West High weekly" that the doors be opened before 8 o'clock, the present opening hour.

The "Hamline Oracle" has what it calls an honor system in its news service. A first offence against the regulations or traditions of the university is not made public, but a second offence is given scathing publicity.

"Not every student can make the football team, or the debating team, or the newspaper staff; but every student can, and should, make a name for himself in some specific line of work."

Carletonian.

An editorial writer on the "Concordian" expounds an illuminating theory on efficiency in school. The capacity for work, he says, of a student who feels terribly busy and overburdened will actually be decreased, while a student who works fast, but in a leisurely manner can accomplish much more in a given time.

Benefits of Debating

"A high school student does not always appreciate the value of debating," said LeRoy Neilson, instructor of debate, in an interview with a reporter the other day.

"In the first place, the honors received are not as conspicuous as those in some other activities."

"Furthermore, the benefits are not noticed as quickly. Yet I know from personal experience, that debate will improve one's ability to recite in class and will teach one to stand on his feet and talk intelligently to one's business associates as well as to other people.

"In the work of debate and in the contest itself, there is a great deal of discipline, which is an element scarcely ever found in any other school activity."

Principal R. T. Hargraves says, "Debate is the strongest thing a student could take, and yet there are only 15 at present taking it."

CENTRAL HIGH NEWS

Teachers' Meeting

The general teachers' meeting was held in the high school assembly last Tuesday.

All of the teachers from the city schools were present, and were addressed by Superintendent Simley. The principal subject discussed was the need of more uniform grading in our schools.

These meetings are scheduled to take place the first Monday of each month. Matters of general interest to all the teachers are discussed.

Parent-Teachers Meeting

The second meeting of the Parents' and Teachers' Association, was held at the Lincoln high school Monday evening, Oct. 30. The program was opened by a few selections from the Girls' Glee club and a ladies' sextette, under the direction of Mrs. Gay Halvorson.

Mrs. Rounds of St. Paul, state president of Minnesota State Federation of Women's clubs, delivered a very practical address on the co-operation of the parents and teachers. Everyone present thoroughly enjoyed it.

After Mrs. Round's speech, a lunch was served to the three hundred present. Mrs. Craik was chairman of the lunch committee.

Presten—"Har du nogen tro?"
En liten gut—"Ja, vi hadde en men den sprak i solskinet."

H. S. Press Association Meets at St. Paul

The "Central High News," published by the students of Central high school, Minneapolis, was awarded first place in the contest for high school publications conducted by the Minnesota High School Press Association, while in convention at St. Paul, Oct. 27 and 28. The event was the third annual convention of the association, which was organized at Carleton in 1920. About 200 delegates, representing 60 high school publications throughout the state, were present at the convention. The winners were announced at a banquet given at the tea room of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press.

Samuel Kirkwood, editor of "Campus Breezes," the school paper of the University high school, was elected president of the association for the coming year. Virginia Hay, of the West High Weekly, was chosen treasurer, and Marjorie DuCloe of Denfield high school, Duluth, secretary. Chisholm's invitation for next year's convention was immediately accepted by the delegates.

The sectional meetings were given over to the discussion on various problems arising from the publican of weekly newspapers, monthly magazines, and annuals.

Editor and Business Man Speaks

At the Friday morning meeting, the convention was addressed by two speakers, E. H. Kahn, editor of the St. Paul Daily News, and Leon Bigelow, former advertising manager of Brown & Bigelow.

Mr. Bigelow centered his talk on the soliciting, writing, and selling of advertising in high school newspapers. He emphasized the importance and value of school paper advertising, and use of proper methods of selling space.

"Advertising is the greatest single power in the world today," he stated. In giving bits of advice to advertising managers of high school publications, he advocated the solicitation of all national advertisers. "Be able to give them the cold hard facts on who you reach, the extent of your circulation, and who else advertises," he said.

Mr. Kahn spoke on various problems encountered in the publication of daily papers. He advocated the courses in journalism offered in the schools of today, and also the raising of journalistic standards by the coming generation.

After the banquet, the delegates were entertained by several numbers on the current program at the Orpheum theater, before the speakers were introduced by the toastmaster, H. T. Black. The speakers, H. R. Galt, night editor, and A. J. McFaul, business manager of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, talked on ethics of journalism.

Mr. Galt centered his speech on the work being accomplished by an organization of newspaper editors which is doing much in the way of raising the standards of journalism sities throughout the country.

After relating a short history of the newspaper, Mr. McFaul spoke of the power of the press and the unlimited value of the newspapers to the world.

After the banquet the delegates took a trip through the entire newspaper plant.

Thief River Falls high school was not represented at the convention, as we are not a member of the association.

Employe Partnership a Big Factor in Efficiency

IN its issue of Oct. 1, 1922, the Chicago Tribune says, "In this field (industrial peace) there is much to be hoped for from intelligent effort to induce investment by employes in the industry, or business in which they are employed. * * * * If the millions that have been lost in ill-advised strikes could have been invested in shares in the enterprise, the workers in many cases would have accomplished the benefits they sought."

The acknowledged efficiency of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is due in no small measure to the fact that every employe of the Company, if he will, may become a partner in the business by taking advantage of the stock-purchase-plan. To the amount of stock subscribed for by the employe, the Company gives one-half, and the employe is allowed to pay in small monthly installments. Thus he has an excellent investment which he can watch and help make more profitable.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employes are insuring, through investment, the present well being and future security of their families, an end which every man is striving to accomplish. These men and women know that the Company is genuinely interested in furthering their welfare. Their energies, therefore, are released from worry over the future and are turned to increased efficiency that comes with enthusiasm.

Whole-hearted co-operation is essential to the conduct of any business. The management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) recognizes this fact and believes that no better way to secure this co-operation can be devised than by giving every employe an opportunity to become a partner in the business. The enthusiastic response which the employes have given to this plan proves conclusively that the Company has solved a problem of importance to the Company, the employe, and the public.

There is no idle time nor decreased efficiency due to disputes, discontent, or misunderstandings to be charged into the consumers bills. Every employe of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is delivering full-time and energy to the performance of his task, and this work is to him a pleasure, not a task.

It is submitted that this is another item in that cycle of service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders the public.

CITY PAY ROLL IS HUNG UP BY DISPUTED BILL

Councilmen Refuse to Pass Usual List With Hans Rustad Account Included

Two Oppose Approval, Three Favor It and One Alderman Refused to Vote at All

Dispute Between County and City Over Other Accounts Adds Interest to Session

The session of the city council on Tuesday evening was short but not especially amiable. The councilmen failed to agree on a number of things and were not bashful in stating their objections.

The bill of Hans Rustad for services as inspector of the cement work on the new filtration plant failed of passage for the second time. This same bill came before the council three weeks ago and was laid on the table. When the subject was again brought up on Tuesday there was a division of opinion, Councilmen Brandon and Brumund voting against its allowance, Ihle, Ness and Froseth in favor of it and Dahl not voting.

This might not have been of any great importance had it not had the effect of preventing the approval of any other bills. When it was discovered that this account was one of those entered by the clerk on the usual list, the entire roll was thrown overboard, leaving city employes without their usual checks. Quite a little feeling has been worked up over this Rustad bill and neither side seems disposed to yield.

Bills by the Larson Furniture company and Dr. C. M. Adkins for services rendered at the time of the death of [illegible] Williams in this city, were turned down. Williams was struck by a Soo train at Berewood and brought to this city where he died of his injuries at the hospital. The council claims that as the accident happened in Marshall county either the authorities there or Pennington county are the proper parties to pay the bill, while County Attorney Theo. Quale maintains that the cost falls on the city.

There was only one request for a building permit presented to the council on Tuesday night. C. M. Wedner asked permission to make repairs to his residence on Knight avenue, the cost being placed at $400.

Irving Quist was allowed $93.14 as the final estimate on cost of survey for water and sewer mains while C. M. Carlson was allowed $4,651.18 for work on the filtration plant contract to date.

A resolution approving all sewer assessments was passed, there being no objectors present. The high school basketball team was granted the use of the auditorium for practice free of charge.

Notable Cast is Found in 'What Every Woman Knows'

A notable cast was chosen for William DeMille's Paramount screen version of "What Every Woman Knows," Sir James M. Barrie's famous play which will be shown at the Lyceum theatre next Friday and which was presented on the legitimate stage with great success by Maude Adams, Bruce McRae and other famous stage stars. The role of Maggie Wylie, Maude Adams' part, portrayed by Lois Wilson, while Conrad Nagel plays John Shand, the Bruce McRae part. Charles Ogle, one of the best known screen character men delightfully depicts old Alick Wylie, while Fred Huntly and Guy Oliver are David and James Wylie, his two bachelors sons. Winter Hall plays Charles Venables, the statesman. Lillian Tucker is Sybil Tentern, the "other woman," Claire McDowell is the Comtesse de la Briere and Robert Brower plays a Scotch lawyer. The story is one of great dramatic power.

Elks to Initiate Class In Proper Manner Friday

Thief River Falls Elks are planning for a big time on Friday night when a class will be initiated into the mysteries of the order. This will be the first and in all probability the only initiation to be held this year and preparations are under way to make it a big one. The number of candidates is at this time not as great as has been the case at some previous initiations, but the interest in the event is just as keen.

Besides the usual lunch and refreshments the committee in charge promises something special in the way of entertainment and the members are looking forward to a particularly enjoyable evening.

Notice of the initiation has been sent to all members who can possibly reach Thief River Falls in time, and if the roads are in any kind of shape it is certain there will be a large crowd present.

Hope that the new seats ordered for the lodge room would be here on time for the doings has been abandoned, but this is a matter of small importance as others will be temporarily provided.

SALVATION ARMY'S DRIVE FOR FUNDS TO BEGIN SUNDAY

County's Quota is $2,700 and Solicitaion Placed In Charge of Committees

The opening day of the drive for funds for the support of the Salvation Army in the county has been postponed until next Sunday, when the committees in all precincts will get busy with the idea of cleaning the matter up in a hurry. Pennington county's allotment is $2,700.

The drive in the city will be in charge of J. S. Arneson with the Elks lodge and other organizations taking an active part. Solicitors will cover the city in teams and this plan will be followed as far as possible in the country. The work of the Salvation Army is well known to the [illegible] of Pennington and the people will no doubt respond to the extent of their ability. It is realized that the greater part of the allotment will have to be secured in Thief River Falls.

There are those not acquainted with the work being carried on by the Salvationists in this neighborhood and for such the following figures may prove interesting.

During the first half of the year 1922 128 open air meetings were held at which 118 soldiers were present. The attendance at these meetings totalled 4,268. There were 120 indoor meetings with an attendance of 2,551. The converts numbered 20. Sixty young people's meetings were held with an attendance of 940 and 3 converts secured. Twenty families were aided and 192 garments given to the poor, while the pairs of shoes numbered 26. The jails were visited four times and the hospitals five times.

Members of the corps traveled 2,000 miles, visiting 120 towns and holding 20 meetings. To show that the money collected is not used for the personal needs of the army workers, it is reported that the weekly allowance for each officer was $5.

There should be a liberal response to this appeal as the Salvation Army covers one phase of charity work generally overlooked by other agencies. The donations need not necessarily be large but there should be many of them.

The corps is supported entirely by funds raised locally and the divisional headquarters does not make up any deficiencies, consequently, a shortage of funds hampers the Army work here.

Aged-Man Chokes; Potato in Throat

Edward Flamme, an old resident of St. Hilaire, passed away suddenly at his home Monday, the cause of his death being the lodging of a piece of potato in his throat, resulting in strangulation. When first noticed he was gasping for breath and died a couple of minutes later.

Mr. Flamme, who was 85 years and 7 months of age, was born in Hainout Province in Belgium in 1837. In 1885 he went to South America where he lived for eight years. After that time he resided in Canada until he and his family moved to this village in 1901.

He leaves a family of three children, who are: Emile Joseph Flamme, Marie Adrienne Flamme and Mrs. L. Cathelineau all of this village. Mrs. Flamme preceeded her husband in death 13 years ago.

Merchants Association Equips Legion Club Room

About $360 has been subscribed by members of the Merchants association for the purpose of providing furniture and fixtures for the legion clubrooms. The merchants promised to equip the club rooms in line of being relieved of placing any advertising matter in the program issued last fall for the Legion Revue Show, maintaining that advertising of this kind was only a donation and that they would prefer to give the Legion in cash the price of the space they were expected to take. Experience had proven, the merchants maintained, that program advertising, as well as all publicity of a similar nature, was of no value in stimulating business, and that besides too much of the amount secured goes to outsiders. They are now making good on their promise to equip the club rooms and are glad to do so even though if it costs more than would advertising in the program.

Community Club Meets

Another successful meeting of the Girls Community Club was held Monday evening, quite a large number being present. One of the features of the program was the music rendered by C. S. Sapero on a steel saw, Mr. Sapero masters the tool wonderfully in producing excellent musical tones, which were well received by the club.

The next meeting of the club will take place Nov. 27 at which time a good turnout is expected in order that complete preparations for the coming annual bazaar may be made.

Large Number of Entries and Interest in Outcome More Keen Than Last Year

Boy and girl winners in feeding clubs from 70 counties in Minnesota have 267 pet calves, pigs and sheep at South St. Paul this week, competing for honors in the fifth Junior Livestock show. The 1922 event is bigger and better in every way than its predecessors.

This year, there are 190 calves entered, compared with 178 a year ago. Critics who viewed the well groomed animals just before they were taken to the judging ring and the quality was noticeably better. Interest in the grand championship was keen, but hardly more so than in who was to win in the pure bred and grade classes.

There were 38 entries in the pig show; three more than last year. Sheep judges had to inspect 39 animals, five more than in 1921.

With judging in afternoon and the banquet in the evening out of the way Tuesday the youngsters were looking forward to the sale Friday, for that event will determine what each will have to show for the season's work in caring for and feeding the animals.

The sale committee had assurances from the big hotels and restaurants in St. Paul and Minneapolis and several of the exclusive clubs and dining car supply houses that prices bid for the winners would be high; probably above those for a year ago when the grand champion brought its owner 60c a pound.

The calf show this year is judged by H. W. Vaughan of St. Paul, chosen not only because of his recognized ability but also because he is uninterested in any particular breed of cattle. H. O. Tellier of Farmington will be in charge of auctioneering.

Wallace Benson, Helen Satre and Virgil Denhart of Pennington county, were among the lamb exhibitors at the show.

$85 WORTH OF SUGAR BEETS TO THE ACRE

Pennington County Growers will Realize This Amount Net on Their Crop

Yield Averages 14 Tons to the Acre While Quality is Exceptionally Fine

Expected Acreage Will be Trebled Next Year--Proves Profitable Experiment

The harvesting of sugar beets in Pennington county is now practically completed and the farmers in this vicinity are busy hauling large amounts of the beets to market, altho the weather has been very unfavorable for the past few weeks and the roads are at present almost impassable in places. The beets are all shipped to the Minnesota Sugar company at Chaska, where all produce in this section have been contracted for. The Chaska factory is the only one of its kind in the state.

Pennington county this year has 154 acres, largely in the immediate vicinity of Thief River Falls, devoted to the production of sugar beets, which is three times the acreage last year. This is in a large degree due to the efforts of county agent J. J. McCann to introduce this profit-producing crop among the farmers of this community. In 1923 it is anticipated that about 500 acres will be planted in the county.

This year's crop is the largest experienced by the growers and altho there are some farmers who have not had an altogether successful year, the majority have received a bigger yield and are being paid better prices than ever before. The sugar content is also greater this year; the percentage being very high, in many instances reported to be from 15 to 20 percent.

Alfred Flattum and E. Grundhaus have completed their shipments and state that beets net them more than any other crop that can be raised successfully in this section. Mr. Flattum, who operates a farm a short distance east of Thief River Falls, received a yield of about 14 tons per acre on a plot of 14 acres, which will net him approximately $85 per acre. This is considerably more than can be realized from other crops, especially with present market prices for farm products.

The beets are contracted to the Chaska factory which guarantees the grower a minimum of $5 per ton and over that in proportion to the price of sugar. For instance with sugar at the present price, the grower will receive approximately $7.50 per ton. The company furnishes seed in the spring, which is to be planted at a minimum of 15 pounds to the acre, for $2, and supply a drill for seeding at 50 cents an acre. The buyers also agree to furnish Mexican help for the planting, cultivating, thinning out and harvesting of the beets for which the grower pays $18 per acre. The reason for Mexican workers being employed is that the nature of the work is such that Americans will not engage in it. The total expence per acre amounts to a little over $20, so that beet producers this year will clear not less than $50 per acre, according to reports.

Farm Credit Amendment Adopted by 200,000 Votes

Constitutional amendment No. 1 providing for the establishment of a rural credits system in the state, carried by a majority of approximately 100,000 in the late election. Amendment No. 2, intending to remove any constitutional obstacles which may exist to an occupational tax, was defeated, although the vote was close.

In Pennington county both propositions carried strong. Amendment No. 1 received 3,266 favorable votes as compared with only 197 opposed. A larger vote was cast on the second amendment, there being 3,486 in its favor and 292 opposed.

The total number of votes on register in the county was 4,516, while the number cast and counted was 4,305.

Anna D. Olesen received the largest number of votes cast for Democratic candidates, her score being 870. Indrehus for governor received 223.

Poultry Yards in Polk Raided by 7-Foot Eagle

Following a series of raids on chickens owned by farmers nine miles northeast of Crookston, a giant eagle was killed by Otto Hulst, one of the chicken losers. For several days farmers in that vicinity had been watching for the bird or animal that had been making away with the poultry.

After seeing a huge bird swoop down and soar away with a chicken in its talons, farmers became convinced the bird was an eagle.

Otto Hulst, living on the John Sanberg, Crookston, farm, while armed with a shotgun and on the lookout, was able to get close enough to fire. Although failing to knock the bird down he crippled it and later found it hiding in the underbrush, where it was killed.

The giant prowler measured seven and a half feet from tip to tip of wing and was said to be the largest bird ever seen in this locality.

Peace Disturber Fined

Two young men, A. B. Boormood and Emil Peterson, employed on state road work near this city, pleaded guilty in municipal court yesterday to charges of disturbing the peace, and paid fines to the amount of $10 and $12.50 respectively. They were arrested Tuesday night by Night Patrolman Ralston. In a fracas at the auditorium Peterson made his get away but returned the following day voluntarily. Both parties in question had been under the influence of moonshine and had caused disturbance at a restaurant.

THIEF RIVER MEN INTERESTED IN OIL FIELDS OF SO. DAK.

Empire Farms Co. Takes Over Large Acreage at Standing Rock, Near Ft. Pierre

The following article, taken from the Lemmon, Perkins county, S. D., Tribune, will be of interest to a large number of people in this neighborhood as it deals with the present activities of parties well known thruout this section:

On the 18th of this month, a contract was made with the South Dakota Development and Refining Company whereby the Empire Farms Company of Thief River Falls, Minn., will put down a well on the leases of the South Dakota Development and Refining Company at Standing Butte, where the well now drilling has a fine showing of oil.

The Empire Farms Company was represented by Mr. F. F. Haynes, a former resident of South Dakota having been in business at Selby for a number of years. The oil possibilities of South Dakota are not new to him, he has faith and always believed that large oil fields would be opened up in this state at some future time. He is well pleased with the outlook at the Standing Butte field, and entered into the above contract which included the purchase of $8000 worth of the company's stock to help complete the present well.

The company's well No. 1 being drilled is down about 2300 feet. The prospects are very encouraging for the successful completion of this well. The water encountered at this depth is different from any that has ever been drilled into in this state. The immense water pressure is holding the gas and oil back in this hole and an endeavor is being made to land the 8¼ inch casing to shut off this water supply in order to put the well through the present sands."

Has Leg Amputated

Harold Effofson, whose home is near Newfolden but who was for some time employed at Neset's jewelry store, has had one leg amputated slightly below the knee, it has been reported from Minneapolis. The young man left about two weeks ago for Minneapolis to seek special medical attention for his ankle which he sprained some time ago. It was found that tuberculosis had infected the limb and it would be necessary to remove the leg. He was operated on at the General hospital last week. Following the operation he was very weak and failed to recover from the anesthetics for some time. During the first few days he was unable to recognize anyone and his life seemed to be in danger. Later reports however, have it that he is recovering, though slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Granum are expected to arrive in Thief River Falls from Seattle, Wash. this week. They were summoned here at the sudden death of the former's mother, Mrs. Christ Granum, who passed away Tuesday.

The Christian Attitude Discussion Group Topic

A public forum or cleaning house for individual opinion is growing out of the Study and Discussion Group organized by a few men a week or two ago. The group meets in the Presbyterian church on Sundays at 12:00, noon, where they thresh out questions of local interest to Christian men. Everyone is entitled to his opinion and often it proves a valuable one. The group is led by F. F. Haynes and Rev. Chas. Gerlinger. These are some of the subjects they are discussing: "The Christian and the Wage Problem," "The Christian and Working Conditions," "The Christian and Public Amusements," "The Christian and Political Responsibility," "The Christian and World Brotherhood."

It is the aim of the men affiliated with this movement to study the practical application of the teachings of Christ to problems of everyday concern. Such a free discussion will do much toward clearing up misunderstandings and mistakes in these important matters. The influence of men in community welfare cannot easily be measured.

BELTRAMI DIVIDED FORM NEW COUNTY, BAUDETTE CAPITAL

Proposition to Split Carried by Only About 200 Votes--Will Have 35 Townships

A new county in Minnesota—to be known as Lake of the Woods—will be created as soon as Governor Preus' proclamation for the creation of a new county is issued.

Voters of Beltrami county expressed their desire to split their county in two at the recent election, the proposal carrying by a majority of approximately 200 votes.

Lake of the Woods county will comprise the northern half of Beltrami, the division being the range line between Township 156 and 157, while the southern half will comprise Beltrami county. Included in the new county will be the towns of Baudette, Spooner and Williams, and about thirty-five townships. The southern half, or Beltrami county, will consist of approximately 70 townships, besides the principal towns of Bemidji, Blackduck and Kelliher.

Baudette, in all probability, will be the county seat of Lake of the Woods. This division leaves both upper and lower Red Lakes entirely in Beltrami county.

Attends Church Meeting

Senator O. A. Naplin left Tuesday evening for Rock Island, Ill. to attend a meeting of the General Board of Education of the Lutheran Augustana Synod. This board was elected at the last annual meeting of this church body in St. Paul in June and Mr. Naplin is one of the twelve members composing this committee, there being but one more member from this state. The committee is to have general supervision over all the higher educational institutions of the church in America. Mr. Naplin is a graduate from one of the colleges belonging to this denomination and is highly thought of among the clergy and laity of the Augustana Synod.

WILL CONSIDER NEW CREAMERY PLAN SATURDAY

Stockholders of Association to Meet for Purpose of Taking Full Action

Proposed Building Will be Two Stories, 76x80 Feet, With Full Basement

Growth of Dairying in the Neighborhood Makes Larger Plant a Necessity

Stockholders of the Thief River Co-operative Creamery association will meet at the commercial club rooms on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting plans for a new creamery plant in this city, construction of which is expected to begin in the spring.

C. W. Kampfer of St. Paul, the architect who drew the plans, will be on hand to make such explanations as may be desired. These plans call for a brick building 76 X 80 feet, two stories with full basement. The plant will be similar to that recently erected at Pelican Rapids, regarded as one of the most modern in the state. The equipment will consist of the latest and most approved machinery for turning out milk products of all kinds and will have a capacity sufficient to meet the probable needs of the district for some time to come. The estimated cost is $50,000.

Plant Badly Needed

The creamery at Thief River Falls has been conducted as a co-operative institution since 1906, it having for a short time previous to that year been run by private parties. The price paid was $1,500, and Secretary Peter Englestad, who was one of the original stockholders, says it was a greater problem for the dairymen of the neighborhood to raise the sum needed at that time than is presented by the construction of a $50,000 plant at present.

During the 16 years in which the creamery has been conducted on a co-operative basis more than $3,000,000 dollars worth of butter has been made and sold. During the first six years the business averaged about $100,000 annually, while the yearly output during the past decade has averaged in the neighborhood of $250,000. This is an indication of the growth of the dairying industry in this region, and it is recognized that as yet only a beginning has been made. During the months in which production is heaviest its impossible to take care of all the cream offered and large quantities pass through the city to points farther south to be turned into butter. It has been asserted that almost as much butterfat passes through the city as remains here, a condition largely due to the fact that facilities at the local plant are incapable of handling it.

Had not war conditions upset all calculations it is certain that there would have been a new creamery erected here some years ago. The association has been in shape to undertake the project for some time, but has held off on account of high costs. A point has now been reached where delay is no longer possible and steps will be taken to provide facilities as soon as possible.

The present plant will have to be used for almost a year after it is definitely decided to erect the new plant, as it will take that long to get the new one into operation.

Wm. Alexander and Bernard Bischoff are in Minneapolis this week.

VOTE ON JUDGE FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

Bishop led Grindeland in Pennington and Marshall counties. Halvorson also led in Pennington and was only 30 votes behind Grindeland in Marshall. Judge Watts headed the ticket in every county except Kittson, where Grindeland led by nearly 300.

Heart failure caused the death of Mrs. Christian O. Granum who passed away at her family home, [illegible] avenue north, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The aged lady had not shown previous signs of her heart trouble and had only been complaining of a bad cold at the time she was called to the great beyond. She was alone in one of the rooms when death occurred and was found a few minutes later lying across a bed. It was a hard blow to the family, most of whom were out of town and also cast gloom over a large circle of friends among the residents of Thief River Falls and others whom she had come in contact with.

Mrs. Granum, whose maiden name was Beret Hall, was born Sept. 22, 1863, at Ness, Andalen, Norway. She came to Spring Valley, Minn. in June, 1887 and was united in marriage to Christian Granum the same year. They moved to a farm near Park River, N. D., where they resided until 1899, when they came to Thief River Falls and have lived here since. To their union were born six children, five of whom live.

Those who survive are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Gena Skarstad of Argyle and Elsie who is a student at the Moorhead Teacher's college; three sons, Ole C. and Arthur both of this city and Edwin of Seattle, Wash. All [illegible] neral. Deceased is also survived by a brother, H. A. Hall of Middle River, another A. A. Hall of Minneapolis, a sister, Mrs. G. Blaksvedt of Minneapolis, and four brothers and a sister in Norway.

Deceased was a devout member of the Trinity Lutheran church from where the funeral exercises will be held. The funeral will, according to present plans take place Monday afternoon interment to be made at Greenwood cemetary. Rev. T. E. Swenor will officiate at the obsequies.

The sympathy of a large number of friends is extended to the sorrow-stricken family. A good mother and citizen has met her final reward.

It was brought out by testimony that Baldwin had come into the home of his mother-in-law and referring to former [illegible] unless they did as he wished them to he would cut their throats. While saying this he had pulled a razor out of his pocket. It was also alleged that [illegible] this instrument on various other occasions and made threats to use it.

The act that brought on the arrest was an incident which was to have occurred last week when Baldwin is said to have used a knife in attacking Frank Lund who makes his home in this city, and made attempts to stab him. The principal witness was not present at the preliminary hearing however so that only the first named charge was brought before the judge.

Baldwin was held over to the grand jury in the next term of district court and placed under a [illegible] bond which he furnished with some difficulty and had to promise not to go back to that neighborhood as there appears to have been a series of mix-[illegible] the time being at least, but have not made definite plans as yet.

About three years ago Baldwin who is a cowpuncher from Montana, came to the vicinity of Neptune in charge of a large herd of cattle and horses belonging to J. J. Opshal of Bemidji, practically all of whom died from exposure during the first winter. He married one of John Mostrom's daughters and settled down in the neighborhood of Neptune but on several occasions there have been quarrels and threats between the two parties, finally culminating in this action being brought to court.

Rush to Take Advantage of Sale at Mogensen's Store

The crowds attending the trustee's sale at Mogensen's store during the past week prove that there is still business to be had in this country if it is gone after in the right spirit and the inducements are sufficiently attractive. When the store was opened for business on Saturday afternoon there was a long line of bargain-seekers outside the door and the rush has been continual ever since. The trustee has found it necessary to employ about a dozen extra salespeople and they have all been kept busy.

This entire stock must be disposed of in the shortest possible space of time for the benefit of the creditors and has been priced with this end in view. While the outflow of goods has been remarkable, it looks as if the supply has undergone no great depletion. There are still many thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise of the highest class to be disposed of, but it stands to reason that the best bargains will rapidly be snapped up. It will therefore profit those who are looking for clothing, shoes or furnishing goods at a particularly attractive figure to take advantage of the opportunity offered. The sale will continue until the entire stock is disposed of.

Young U. Student Has Operation

Williams DeParcq, son of Mr. and Mrs. DeParcq of the Brumund hotel, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Physicians hospital yesterday morning. According to [illegible] he is doing well and will recover rapidly altho a lengthy rest will be necessary. William returned the early part of the week from Minneapolis where he is a student at the university of Minnesota. He had quite a serious at[illegible] have the appendix removed. Friends of the young man will be glad to know that he is well on the way to recovery.

Breaks Collar Bone Playing

Careless playing in school resulted in Carl, the 13 year old son of Andrew Mandt of Goodridge, breaking his collar bone. The accident happened last week when the school children were playing on the school grounds and the Mandt boy was grabbed from behind by another young fellow and thrown down in such a manner as to break the collar bone. He was brought to Thief River Falls where the fracture was attended to by a local doctor.

Button Lodges in Throat

A two-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snobodny was taken to the Physicians hospital Tuesday morning, the little child having swallowed a large button which had lodged in the throat the evening before. The obstacle was easily removed at once by the attending doctor and the youngster was relieved.

[illegible] Triangle Transportation company became the owners of the bus line formerly operated by Conrad Vinje of this city.

The following appeared in the Polk County Leader in regard to the transaction. "Ed. Carlson, manager of the Triangle Transportation company, has purchased the Thief River bus line. He now operates three bus lines, each line making two trips every day. The Crookston-Halstad line connects with Fargo at Halstad. The Thief River bus arrives here at 9:30 a. m. and 4:15 p. m. and leaves here at 10:15 a. m. and 5:15 p. m. The Transportation company has ordered a new bus similar to the ones on the other route for the Thief River line."

AT THE MOVIES

One of the most promising attractions scheduled for presentation at the Lyceum Theatre is "Youth to Youth," the first of Metro's new special stories series in which the beautiful Billie Dove appears at the head of a cast of distinguished players, which comes here next Tuesday and Wednesday. The combination of an excellent story, capably directed and intelligently interpreted by players of screen prominence is certain to result in a photoplay of genuine entertainment.

Miss Dove, who heads the list of actors and actresses in "Youth to Youth," is the nineteen-year-old actress who was singled out by Mr. Marcus Loew, head of the Metro Pictures Corporation, to play important roles in these photoplays. The famous head of the amusement enterprises bearing [illegible] tions, and was convinced that a brilliant career was in store for her.

In "Youth to Youth" Miss Dove appears as a charming musical comedy star, the idol of Broadway. Her happiness is doomed when she learns that the world suspects her promoter, a wealthy hotel owner, of being more than casualy interested in her success. To escape the scandal about her, she assumes another name and accepts a position with theatrical troupe in the Middle West. This company of players used as a theatre a floating boat, and travelled along important rivers, making stops on the way.

While the "Thespis," as the floating theatre is called, is docked in a small rural town, the actress meets a young farmer, and their affection for each other becomes strong. He sees in her remarkable capabilities as an actress, and he sends her photograph to a friend in New York. The disappearance of New York's favorite is solved, through the unknowing intervention of the farmer. Whether she is compelled to return to the metropolis to fulfill her hateful contract or [illegible] interesting complication that furnishes a thoroughly satisfying conclusion.

Emile Chautrad directed the distinguished company of players in "Youth to Youth." Opposite Miss Dove appears Cullen Landis as the young farmer. Others in the cast [illegible] Mabel [illegible], Paul Jeffrey, Hardee Kirkland, Louise MacIntosh, Lincoln Steadman, Jack Gardner and Carl Gerard.

"Youth to Youth" was adapted from Hulbert Footner's story by Edith Kennedy. The action was photographed by Arthur Martinelli.

(Official Paper, Pennington County)

IT IS A SERIOUS BUSINESS

It is greatly to be feared that farmers generally look upon all the meetings being held for the purpose of helping them out of their troubles as something of a joke. This view is not the right one. The meetings and conventions are as a rule held with the idea of really accomplishing something of value but as long as the farmer himself regards them as being of no benefit it is going to be a hard matter to accomplish much.

The farmer is a sceptical cuss and has been promised so many things which have never materialized that he can hardly be blamed for his attitude. It seems as if at least one-half of all movements inaugurated and the same amount of all energy expended in general reconstruction work lately has been for the purpose of the aiding of the farmer, yet he finds himself worse off than ever. His costs are steadily mounting and the prices of what he has to sell either remain at a point making a profit impossible, or go down to where it means an actual loss. Realization of the fact that this condition cannot continue without spelling actual bankruptcy for our agricultural population prompts governors and legislaters to call conventions in the hope of finding a way out. While these are bound to result in a certain amount of good, the remedies are not sufficiently specific and the benefits to be derived too far in the future to meet the need. What the farmer wants first and foremost is some plan to extend his credit and permit him to borrow money at low interest rates. Next he must have lower transportation costs and reasonably staple markets. These matters are often given but scant attention at meetings and conventions while great stress is laid upon the importance of diversified crops. The farmer realizes that this system of cropping his farm is the most feasible and sensible. He also knows that dairying will solve his difficulties, at least to some extent. The trouble is that it takes money to make the change—and he has neither money nor the credit necessary to secure it.

Crop diversification is highly desirable and is the only plan by which the farmer can hope to survive, but easier borrowing facilities are the first requisite. The passage of Amendment No. 1 at the last election is intended to help in this direction. It will take time, however, to get the plan into working shape. In the meantime the farmer runs more deeply into debt because he is unable to secure a fair price for his products. If he can hang on, there is some relief in sight. Many are unable to hang on much longer and it is for the purpose of coming to the immediate relief of these that meetings should be held. The next generation of farmers will know all about diversified crops. The danger is that there will be no next generation on the farms of the Northwest unless conditions change. Farming may be the most desirable of occupations from many points of view, but its attractiveness is somewhat dimmed by the fact that it means a constant struggle with debt.

The farmer needs financing—not instructions in farming. Given half a show he will progress as rapidly in the right direction as any other man, and eventually work his own way out. Something besides addresses by college professors is needed to bring this about.

BEGINNING EARLY

To judge by the tone of certain Republican newspapers, it is not the intention to re-nominate President Harding for a second term in 1924. The Minneapolis Journal, for instance, starts the ball rolling by suggesting that General Charles G. Dawes of "Hell and Maria" fame would make an ideal candidate for the highest office in the land. General Dawes, so that paper avers, is competent by training, study, experience, temperament, courage and patriotism to achieve needed reforms, particularly as these pertain to the nation's finances. The general is, is is maintained in addition to the above, opposed to sloth, incompetence, stupidity, folly, obstinate obstruction, plain dishonesty and corruption.

That's some recommendation, surely, and the qualities enumerated are highly desirable. General Dawes also comes from an important state—Illinois—which is a fact to be seriously taken into consideration by candidate choosers. The Journal advises the general to get out of the banking business first, however, in case he decides to try for the nomination.

LOOKS RATHER INCONSISTENT

People residing on this side of the Red River of the North are unable to understand just how their neighbors on the west side of that stream figure things out. A short time ago Lynn J. Frazier was recalled as governor of North Dakota by a good majority after having served two terms and a part of a third. Last week he was elected United States senator by a majority considerably larger than that by which he was defeated in the recall election.

Frazier wins out against a coalition of the Republicans and Democrats. O'Conner, his opponent, is a capable and likeable man, and to outsiders it seemed as if he would carry off the honors.

The whole thing becomes less easy of explanation when the fact that Nestos, who defeated Frazier in the recall election, was reelected governor over his Nonpartisan opponent by a majority more than twice as large as that received by Frazier for senator. It must be that party labels do not cut much figure with the voters of the Flickertail state.

ONE EDITOR POPULAR

Out of 604 votes cast for legislative representatives in the village of Baudette, "Bill" Noonan received 593. In other words, he came within 11 votes of carrying his home town unanimously.

That is some tribute and a testimonial of popularity of which Bill in no doubt justly proud. He will make an excellent representative and the people of the north country will have no cause to regret their choice. Just to prove that his fame extends beyond the environs of his own township, Noonan proceeded to carry the entire county of Beltrami by a vote of nearly two to one. Newspaper men generally will be pleased to note that there is one member of the profession in Minnesota who is appreciated at home.

DOESN'T WORK OUT

The attempt on the part of certain senators, headed by James A. Carley, to get a sufficient number of representatives and senators back of a move to take away from presiding officers of the house and senate the right to make committee appointments, seems doomed to failure. Senator Carley wants a committee appointed for this purpose instead of leaving it to the lieutenant governor and speaker.

The plan looks rather good on the surface but does not work out satisfactorily. There is just as much dissatisfaction with appointments made by committees as there is when these are made by a presiding officer. The last-named plan has the advantage of centralizing responsibility, at any rate, and the people are thus given a chance to express their disapproval. One-man power, when that man knows what he is doing and has sense enough to realize that upon wise committee selections depends to a large degree the ultimate value of the session to the people, is not such a bad idea, particularly when such man has been previously tried and found to be just and conscientious in making his appointments. It is true that a majority of any committee will always be members of the party to which the lieutenant governor or speaker belongs, but this also helps to settle responsibility at one certain point. It is doubtful if selections by a committee, with its inevitable favoritism and manipulations, would prove any improvement. At any rate, it is not likely to be tried in Minnesota at the next session of the legislature.

A similar attempt was made, and with more reason, at the time Burnquist was lieutenant governor, but nothing ever came if it. At the present time there seems to be no particularly good reason for making the departure.

Body of Man, Dead Four or Five Years, Found in Woods Near Headwaters

One of the most unexplainable discoveries in this section was made about two weeks ago when a man's skeleton was found on the Indian reservation, nine miles east of Neptune. The bones were picked and had sunk down into the moss a few inches, indicating that they had laid there for some time. A jar and a square bottle were discovered near the bones, leading the finders to believe that the unknown victim had been traveling at the time the myserious ending of his life occurred.

The find was made by John Johnson, better known as "Long John," and Gust Iverson, both from the vicinity of Neptune.

The men were on a hunting expedition about two weeks ago, and found the skeleton lying a few feet away from an abandoned Indian trail in the forest. When first spied by Long John, it was thought to be some white rocks but upon closer inspection it was found to be the remains of a man, apparently in his prime and rather large in size. The bones were all cleared from their covering of flesh and skin, which shows that the body had undoubtedly rested there for a considerable length of time, probably four or five years. There were no signs of foul play. The head was found about twelve feet away from the rest of the body and a leg had been removed from the trunk, evidently by animals browsing around in the woods. On the foot of the removed leg was a rubber shoe, which was the only piece of clothing of which there was anything left.

Long John is a well known hunter and trapper and tramped over the wilds of Red Lake reservation when there were very few white men in the territory. Altho hunting and trapping has declined a great deal since the country became more settled, "Long John" still follows his old time activity when opportunity affords and often makes expeditions into the lands of the Red men. He knows all about the ways of animals and has a thorough knowledge of nature as pertaining to his trade, typical backwoodsman such as is seldom seen except in fiction in these days of modern civilization.

The Indian authorities at Red Lake agency were notified and made an investigation immediately but as yet have not found any clue as to the identity of the man. However, they do not think it is an Indian, and the case has been turned over to the authorities of Beltrami county.

The response to the sales drive next Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday will largely determine the character and quality of the 1923 "Prowler." The staff has worked out a number of features which greatly add to both the appearance and the intrinsic value of the book. If the enthusiasm and interest shown during the campaign justify going ahead with present plans, the staff will spare no effort to incorporate into the annual every feature that will add to the interest and appreciation of the ultimate owner.

Do we, students, alumni, and friends, want a good annual, one that we can really prize and be proud of in future years? If our conception of the spirit of the school is a correct one, we do want the best annual that the class of '23 is capable of publishing, and we will impress this so convincingly upon them when the drive opens Monday that they will never again ask. "Is the school behind the 1923 annual?"

The business manager of the "Prowler" carries a tremendous responsibility. Upon him falls the task of making income and expense balance. He must see that the engraving bills, the printing bills, and other expenses do not exceed his financial backing. The staff will naturally want to add a piece of border work here, a cartoon there, whenever they think it will add to the general effect. But all of these cost money, and unless a liberal financial support is assured, the business manager must limit these to balance the revenue.

But did we shoulder all this responsibility upon the business manager and then turn him out in the cold? No, we did not. We are still behind him, every student, every alumnus, and every person who has any interest whatever in Lincoln High. We have faith in his ability and honesty, and we will assert our support by snowing him under with subscriptions when he lets loose his momentous drive next Monday.

Besides taking a certain pride in the accomplishments of the staff, we, the prospective buyers of the "Prowlers," also have a definite interest in the character of the book. We want those features in the book that give it individuality, that will distinguish it from every other high school annual, and we are willing to pay the price. The price in this case is simply subscribing during the drive, rather than waiting until later in the year. Subscribe Now!

Mr. Rapacz: (In American History, talking very fast) Ernest, when was the war of 1812?

Ernest: Why'or I don't know.

Official Opinion on Prowler Drive Given

L.T. Simley, Superintendent

The business or professional man should want a Prowler, our high school annual, because it is the year's print and picture history of one of the most important institutions of our city. The parent should want one because it is a definite and permanent record of his boy or girl. The teacher should want one because it will serve as a memento of this period of her life. The student should want one because it is and will always be a panorama of his present happy associations and life.

Why Publish the Prowler?

It is not an easy matter for a high school the size of Lincoln High School to publish an annual every year. The main obstacle to be overcome each year is the raising of the necessary funds. Consequently, every year some of our school patrons ask the same questions. Why publish an annual when the demand does not warrant its publication? Why does the faculty encourage the work instead of advising the students to give it up?

I will try to answer these questions and if I succeed in answering them in the way they deserve to be answered, I feel certain that many folks will be more sympathetic to the "Prowler" salesmen in the future.

In every high schol we have some boys and girls who find time to do more than their regular class work. Their time, talents and energy must be supplied an outlet somewhere, and I feel that "Prowler" activities furnish one of the best opportunities for this spare time, talent and energy, besides furnishing a score of students a great deal of pleasure combined with some good practical experience in organization work. The Prowler is not published because so many hundred copies are wanted by the students and the public. That is only secondary. The main thing that the students and faculty strive to derive from the publication is a certain kind of training just as we aim to give a definite kind of training through courses in public speaking, Civics, or History. It all costs money, the only difference being that a definite sum is set aside for instruction in the case of the regular subjects while it is up to the students to provide the funds with which to gain the training developed in connection with a school publication.

I feel that money spent to encourage independent work of this nature among boys and girls is well spent, and in all sincerity I wish to say that publications such as the "Prowler" tend to foster the right kind of school spirit among our boys and girls. They are a help in solving problems in discipline as well as a source of enjoyment with a positive educational value. We cannot afford to be without them, but we need your support in order that we may have them.

M. P. Rapacz, Principal.

S. W. Powley, Senior Advisor:

"I want to say that any subscriber to the "1923 Prowler" will not be taking any "chance" whatsoever. The Prowler will be worth every cent of the purchase price—yes, and more. Why do I make that unqualified statement? Because I know the wholehearted co-operation, enthusiasm, energy and fighting spirit every member of the staff 's putting into the work of putting across the "1923 Prowler."

G. Werstlein, Editor '22 "Prowler:

You should get your annual now because by paying fifty cents down on the book you are sure to get one. Those who have paid some money down are the ones that are served first. That fifty cents not only guarantees you your annual, but it enables the staff to get a rough estimate of the number of books they will need. Then again it helps them financially, they can meet their bills promptly and thereby take advantage of the discounts allowed. Play safe; get your annual now and you won't be one of the disappointed ones next spring.

Ole Helle, Senior President.

"The Seniors already have three year books, and we all want to complete our collection with our own annual. We expect to sign up 100 %. If the Juniors can sell more "Prowlers" than we can, we will entertain them royally.

Melvin Englestad, Junior President:

"Isn't our class noted for being a fast, peppy, ticket-selling group? Here is the opportunity of the season.

"A contest between the four classes to see who can sell the most Prowlers. But, ah, that's not all. The losing class has to give a party, oh boy! Will it be a good one? Say, there's three classes to see thata it will.

"Now, we all know that the other three classes have some good sellers, but listen, we have eight! Imagine it, eight! We're ready to go any time, and let's show them a good chase."

Allan Sorenson, Sophomore Pres.:

"The Sophomore class in eager and willing to join in a "Prowler" subscription campaign with the freshman class. The losers will give a party to the winners of the campaign. Although the Freshman have a good class, the Sophomores aren't worrying about the outcome of the contest as they know they have a much better one. The Sophomores are expecting some real competition from the Freshmen, but they will work just that much harder to get the greater number of subscriptions. The Sophomores are always glad to work hard for any cause that is right. We are whetting our appetites for the party we expect from the Freshmen.

Grace Mostue, Freshman President:

"By having a contest of this kind is about the easiest way for all classes to help sell the Prowler. We all have a section in it that represents our class and therefore we ought to do our bit in helping to sell it. A contest of this nature will interest everyone more than any other system."

Surprise for Supt. Simley

Supt. Simley was called upon to give the teachers a few remarks at their meeting last Thursday after school. Upon entering the cooking room where the meeting was being held, and with a new "pointers" in hand, Mr. Simley stumbled upon a surprise party given by the H. S. faculty in honor of his birthday.

A lunch was served and before departing the guests presented Mr. Simley with a gift in rememberance of the occasion.

400 Subscriptions In Three Days Aim of Business Mgr.

This is the goal set by the business manager, Craig Halverson, in the sales drive to be opened Monday. The campaign will close Wednesday evening. When the subscriptions are then counted the fate of the '23 "Prowler" will be in a measure sealed. Hear the situation explained in the business manager's own words, and you see why we cannot, must not, fall short of the goal:

"The nineteen twenty three Prowler of Lincoln high school is now well under way. The staff has been combining their brains and ability in the effort to put out a better annual than ever before.

"More than work is necessary to make this book all that we wish it to be; money-dross-gold- is the predominating question at present; and we find it necessary to put on this drive in order to ascertain approximately what our working capital will be.

"The present plans call for a book the same size as the nineteen twenty two, but different in several important phases. In order to find out whether or not the improvements we contemplate will be possible, we must know how much capital will be available.

Those not attending high school can not be urged too strongly to carry out their good intentions now, and get our list of preferred customers. What does one small half dollar mean to you? Probably not much; but send it to us, and we guarantee that it will increase in value at an astonishing rate.

The price of the book this year will be $1.50. Those ordering a book need, if they wish, only pay fifty cents down, and the remainder when they receive the annual. The reason for a down payment is that we need money now, so that we can pay cash, instead of getting credit, and paying a higher price later.

Let's all get together and put it over BIG. We are at the foot of a steep hill; if each one does his part, there will be so little for the individual to do, and soon we will go "over the top."

Monday the sales campaign will open, to continue for three days. In that time we are going to put our proposition up to every man in Thief River Falls; we are going to do something that has never been done here before—sell four hundred Prowlers in the short space of three days. Are you with us?

Jokes

The general tendency among the debators is toward the negative side of the question. The Kansas Court is causing too many cold feet and sleepless nights to be popular.

Members of the Prowlers staff are making excellent progress in the art of typewriting.

The girls are so grateful to the compounders of the Constitution for hitting upon the happy plan of making Tuesday general election day. One blessed week without "the rheumatics." Oh girl!

Do your "picture shopping" early, Seniors!"

The "Jolly Journalists" assembled bright and early last Monday morning in the interests of the "Progress." Their usual class hour, the seventh, was spent in the assembly.

Ernest: Those two fellows have a circus together.

Stephen: What two fellows?

Ernest: Barnum & Bailey.

'23 Prowler To Cover Wider Field, Says Editor

Parents, Friends, and Alumni! Here is your chance to put yourself everlasting right with the world and with us! Monday we open the campaign to sell four hundred annuals in three days; are you with us? We are not asking help; we are so certain our Prowler is going to appeal to you that we know you will buy if you but find out all about it. A member of one of the four selling teams will see you some time Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday; lend him an attentive ear, and we know that you will fall into line as one of our one-hundred-percent-boosters.

Let me say a few words about the Prowler of twenty-three. As its official spokesman, and in my firm belief, the staff is equal to the job; our advisor, Mr. Powley, is the best ever—always ready with advice, yet never commanding—making us work for the sheer love of accomplishing what we set out to do. The Faculty, Mr. Simley and Mr. Rapacz in particular, never fail to co-operate with us when we need help. And we have no debts, or prospects of debts. What more could be desired?

We are selling four hundred annuals—futures, as it were—in three days, because, first, we need working capital; and, second, we wish to know for whom we are working. If, as in the past, we sell mainly to high school students, this book must be limited to High school affairs only; but we hope to do more than that.

The time has come when one half of the world DOES know how the other half lives; and the time has come when our friends, alumni, fathers and mothers SHOULD know what we are doing here; and not only at high school; the city of Thief River Falls has had a steep fight to keep her educational system up to a high standard on account of the large proportion of school children to the population; but despite financial difficulties she has done so. Let's give her credit for it. Let's advertise her schools for all they are worth, if it is possible to do so. And the only method we have of doing this is through the annual. Our point is that this Prowler shall serve not only as a memory book for the High School pupil, but also to impart information to the public about grade and high school life and work. Heretofore, only Lincoln has been represented in our annuals; but now it shall not be so; we have other schools—Washington, Northrop, Central and Knox—which shall come in for their share.

Co-operation is the watchword of the day; let's make it our motto! Buy now! You have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Be a one-hundred-percent loyal booster for your schools and your community. Look back upon own school days, and think of all the enjoyable things this Prowler of twenty three will call to mind. And if you show you appreciation of our efforts by investing fifty cents, we shall work all the harder and think all the deeper so that when you get your book you will find a full measure of satifaction therein.

In truth, we are "building a house in the wilderness" and surely the product of our labors will prove a sufficient incentive for the world to "make a beaten path to our door."

Mr. Harner: (In Chemistry) Give a radical.

Allison: Henrik Shipsnaad.

Ida Fellman has again returned to school after having been absent on account of illness.

Sales Campaign Begins Monday, Ends Wednesday; Contests to Feature Drive

A tremendous mass meeting, class rivalry, speakers at the grade schools, banners, posters, and everything conceivable in the way of arousing enthusiasm will feature the great sales campaign to be put on next week by the sales department of the 1923 "prowler." Plans have been laid for the hardest drive that has ever been staged at the Lincoln, in an effort to sell 400 subscriptions for th "prowler" between Monday morning and Wednesday evening.

The drive will be formally opened with a mass meeting Monday morning. As many as can be accomdated of the number of fiery, eloquent 'Prowler" enthusiasts will then give vent to their zeal in bursts of oratory such as have never before been heard in the assembly hall. Details of the program have not yet been given out, but we know that Chief Stangelson will never be satisfied with half-way measures.

Interest at present centers about the contest between the Freshman and Sophomore classes, and a similar one between the Juniors and the Seniors. Salesmen have been selected from each classes, and these will have free reign in taking subscriptions during the drive. Subscription books will be distributed Monday morning, and sales will begin immediately after the mass meeting. All books must be checked in Wednesday evening. The class showing the largest number of sales in each group will be declared the winner, and will be in line for the fruits of victory. All classes are eagerly awaiting the opening of the campaign, so some spirited competition is anticipated when business manager Halvorson gives the order to "go!"

The reward for victory in both contests will be a party given by the loser, in honor of the victor. As social activities have been rather scarce among the lower classes this year, each class looks forward with pleasant anticipation to entertainment by their vanquished competitor.

The Sophomore class has been the first to select its salesmen. President Sorenson announces that the following Sophs will solicit subscriptions, both within and without the class. Robert Halvorson, Emmet Shanahan, Lloyd Bennes, Katherine Barzen, Salome Wikel, Majorie Hoppa, Lylian Arnold, and Gail Warner.

Speakers from the Senior class will visit each of the grade schools some time during the campaign, to interest the grade students in the "Prowler."

A novel method has been conceived by the sales organization to distinguish subscribers. A small tag is given to each subscriber, which he will wear to prove that he is "100 % loyal." Every student, and many outsiders, are expected to be wearing one by Wednesday evening.

ALUMNI ATTENTION

The class of 1923 wish to bring to the attention of the Alumni of Lincoln High school that the "1923 "Prowler" is now in the process of production. This "Prowler," we honestly believe, will be among the very best high school annuals that will be published anywhere this year. It is the aim of the staff to incorporate many new features in the Prowler this year, which will make the publication of greater interest to the Alumni and townspeople as well as to the student body.

Pictures of all school buildings, and other public buildings with interesting histories of various land marks of the town is just one of the new features in the 1923 Prowler.

We believe that our "Prowler" will meet the unqualified approval of all Alumni. We know that the Aumni have been waiting for a chance to show that they still hold the same intense interest and loyalty for the old school.

Next Monday an opportunity for demonstration will be presented by giving every one a chance to subscribe for the "1923 Prowler." Salesmen from the various classes in High School will solicit your business. We know that it is only a question of reaching you. If a salesman fails to see you, call up the High School and a representative will be immediately at your service.

You will want a "Prowler" when you see it. "Eventually, why not now!"

So do it now!

Armistice Day Program

Last Friday afternoon we were suddenly transformed from the peaceful atmosphere of the present to the warlike one of four years ago. Strains of "K-Katy" and "Keep the Home Fires Burning" helped to effect the miraculous transformation. Mr. Jardine was the speaker of the day, and as such acquitted himself in noble fashion.

He began by telling us that the signing of the armistice meant different things to different people, but about the same to all the Allies in the end; namely, that Germany was defeated and the world made safe for democracy.

The feeling in the United States was one of the thanksgiving, but the boys themselves felt differently; theirs was a feeling of disappointment. The Soldiers in this country were sorry they did not get across; those across were disappointed because they did not get to the front; while those on the front were heartsick because they could not distroy Germany's army.

Mr. Jardine concluded by saying, as he looks back on his experience, Armistice Day means more to him than ever before.

As a fitting close to an enjoyable program the Star Spangled Banner was sung.

The Evidence of a Better Understanding

THE last four years have marked the growth of a better understanding between the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the public it serves. This better understanding is evidenced by the fact that four years ago there were but 4623 stockholders on the books, whereas today the number has increased to 26,560.

Misunderstanding necessarily disappears when people are frank. In the last four years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has published in a frank and open manner a vast amount of important news concerning its methods of refining and distributing petroleum products. It has explained the factors upon which prices are based; it has given figures which explain why the demand for its products, and especially for gasoline, is continually increasing; and by its frankness the Company has prospered.

The efficient and economical refining and distribution of petroleum products is a highly specialized business requiring years to develop. The very permanency of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a dominant factor in the high quality of its service. Because of this permanency the management of the Company has been able to mature and carry out plans for service which required long periods of time and great sums of money to accomplish.

In its efforts to provide a perfect service, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has developed a constructive and comprehensive Industrial Relations Plan to promote harmonious relations between the management and employe. This program includes adequate retirement annuities, modern safety devices, continually improved working conditions, and a practical plan whereby employes are enabled to accumulate savings and invest them.

This program tends to make all employes better citizens and better workers, vitally interested in serving the public.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes in fair dealing toward all, the public, its customers, its competitors, and its employes.

The company numbers 14 people, and has a repertoire of 25 plays. Six of the best will be selected for their week engagement here with special scenery for each production.

They will offer for their opening performance, the big laughing show, "Buddies," a Twin Six comedy with music and containing several vaudeville numbers between the acts of the play.

Fewer Big Game Licenses This Year Than Formerly

Only 60 big game licenses have been issued from the office of County Auditor T. P. Anderson thus far this season and it is doubtful if there will be requests for many more. Hunting deer when there is no snow is hard work and the chances are decidedly in favor of the deer. L. D. McAdams, who with a company of other Thief River Falls citizens went into the woods of Itasca county for his allot- [illegible] day out and has returned. Others in the party are there yet and will remain until the season closes unless they secure their deer before that time.

The season is of only ten days' duration—from Nov. 10 to 20, both inclusive, after which date the hunter is permitted five additional days to get his game out of the woods.

Thanks To Voters

To the Voters of Pennington Co:

I here express my thanks to the voters of the county for their support at the polls on election day, which resulted in my election to the office of County Supt. of Schools. I hope that I shall be able to justify the confidence that you have placed in me by rendering efficient and superior service in the cause of rural education.

N. 16

Very sincerely,
Ole R. Sande.

Notice to the Stockholders

A special meeting of the Stockholders of the Thief River Falls Cooperative Creamery association will be held at the Commercial Club rooms on the 18th day of November next at 2 o'clock p. m. when plans for a new creamery building will be submitted for final approval.

Addressed by Missionary

The Young Peoples' League of the Trinity Lutheran church was addressed at the meeting last Thursday by Miss Stangeland, a deaconess of the United Lutheran church and for the past eight years a missionary in China. Miss Stangeland told in a very interesting manner of her various experiences as a teacher of the gospel and helper of the needy in the oriental land. She expressed sincere enthusiasm for the work she is in and urged the young people who have interest it this type of activity, to beckon to the call for more recruits in the mission fields. The deaconess stated that the most exciting and also of the most grusome experiences, were those gone through during the famine period. Conditions were almost beyond description, particularly the inhumane treatment of women and children. Women in China are dealt with like animals, having no rights and sold as other property. Miss Stangeland told of a young girl whom she had rescued who had been sold three times when she finally ran away from her owner. She also spoke in reference to the wearing of the typical small shoe among the Chinese women, saying that their use had decreased very little, there being very few punishments for torturing the tiny feet of the young ones.

Other pleasing numbers of the program which were very much enjoyed by a good sized audience were: A reading, "The Norwegian Woman at the Beach," by Mrs. Oscar Melby; vocal solo by Dr. J. N. Nesse accompanied by Miss Edna Larson, and a piano solo by Miss Mildred Engen. The hostesses were Mesdames C. M. Carlson, E. J. Nelson and Carl Sjoberg.

Woman's Club Monday

The Woman's club met Monday in the club rooms, Mrs. H. O. Loken, Mrs. F. H. Herrick, and Mrs. Chas. Gerlinger being the hostesses. After a social half hour Mrs. Lucile Johnson gave an interesting talk on "Movies for Children" and Mrs. I. T. Simley read a paper on "Educational Possibilities of Movies." Both were enjoyed very much. To roll call each member responded with her favorite picture and why.

Beginning with next meeting members are to pay 15 cents for refreshments, the proceeds to go to the social welfare section. The social welfare rooms in the auditorium will be open on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 2 until 5 o'clock every week. Those wishing to get clothing will please call there at those hours, or anyone who will sew or take home garments to sew, also call at that time.

The Woman's club has decided to co-operate in the roll call for the Red Cross this year and thereby hope to secure a social worker here. The drive will begin at once.

The proposed amendment to by-laws of act 3, sections 1 and 2, relating to membership and dues, offered by the committee, was voted upon and passed unanimously.

STEPS TAKEN BY AUTHORITIES TO CHECK DISEASE

Mild Epidemic of Diphtheria Makes Establishment of Detention Hospital Advisable

Auditorium Will Be Used To Isolate Patients And Quickly Stamp Out Disease

Not A Serious Case In The City And Nothing About Situation To Cause Alarm

A mild epidemic of diphtheria in Thief River Falls has caused the publication and circulation of a number of grossly exaggerated stories this week, all of which has given the public a badly mistaken idea of the exact situation.

Fifty-three Cases Now

There are at the present time fifty-three cases of the disease in the city and all of these are of such a mild nature that it requires the services of an expert to detect that there is anything wrong with them. However, the cultures taken are reported from the laboratories of the state board of health as positive and there is nothing left to do but place them under quarantine.

Detention Hospital Provided

Inasmuch as the placing of homes under quarantine is, in a large number of instances, considerable of a hardship the local authorities decided to convert the city auditorium into a detention hospital where all who wished might be placed under quarantine until such time as the symptoms of the disease disappeared. This plan has been followed in other cities and has been found to be the most successful in isolating the cases and quickly clearing up the situation. It is considered a much better plan than closing the schools and quarantining the homes. This plan is not compulsory, however, and all who prefer to be under quarantine in their homes will be allowed that privilege. Meals will be provided at the auditorium as well as comfortable sleeping accomodations. School books will also be provided and teachers will give daily instruction. All of this is merely a precautionary measure on the part of the local authorities.

Not Serious Situation

There is nothing about the situation to cause any anxiety on the part of anyone. The disease has, without question, been checked in its infancy and the local health authorities have the situation well in hand.

Oscar Swenson of Nicollet, who was to be Nolan's opponent, was not presented for nomination, but his friends announce that they will oppose Nolan at the opening of the legislature.

TOTAL TAX RATE FOR CITY STILL ON THE UPGRADE

Taxpayers In Thief River Falls Will Pay 109.8 Compared With 104.1 Last Year

Decrease In Assessed Valuation Largely Responsible For Necessary Increase

Greater Part of Taxes Needed For Meeting Expenses of Schools and City

Local taxpayers will have a rate to meet next year slightly greater than that in effect this year. This is almost entirely due to a decrease in the assessed valuation. The total assessed valuation of real and personal property in the city last year was $5,824,285 while this year it is $5,582,092.

Rate 5.7 More This Year

The total rate on which taxes will be paid next year is 109.8 which is 5.7 greater than that on which the taxes were figured this year. The greater part of this is for school district and city purposes. The rate for the school district is 54.1 and the city 38.3. In addition to these two items is the county levy of 13.22 and the state levy of 4.8, making the total of 109.8

The levy for county purposes as finally fixed by the county board is $73,000. This is divided among the various funds as follows: Revenue fund, $28,000; Road and Bridge fund, $30,000; Bond and Interest fund, 4,000; Sinking fund, $6,000; Sanitorium fund, $5,000. Warroad Girl Missing Two Weeks Found at Crookston

The disappearance of Pauline Hipsher, the 14 year old girl who has been missing from her home at Clear River in the vicinity of Warroad, for over two weeks, is still a mystery and no trace of her whereabouts has been found as yet.

Leaving her home at 10:30 p. m. no trace of her movements was discovered until the following Wednesday afternoon when a girl answering her discription met the section crew at Middleboro. She informed them that she wanted to get to Winnipeg and had no money. Giving a hard luck story, the men chipped in and gave her about six dollars and an address of a family where she would be able to secure employment.

The girl's father obtained this information and followed her the next day, with the same address, but up to the present time, has not been able to find her.

A late report today says that the girl has been found in Crookston and has returned to her home.

FAMILY HAS SONS AFFLICTED WITH STRANGE AILMENT

Two Boys Have Alligator Skins, Have Been Under Observation at University Hospital

Z. Sams and family arrived in Thief River Falls Monday from Blackduck, and will reside on the Dr. Kirby farm east of the city, Mr. Sams having rented the place. Two of the Sams children, boys aged about 5 and 13, have a peculiar affliction, being covered since birth with skin like that of an alligator. The bodies of the boys are almost entirely covered with scales and present a horrible sight compared with the other children in the family who are perfectly normal.

It will be remembered by those who saw the carnival at the Red Lake county fair at Red Lake Falls this summer, that there was a child shown whose skin was like that of an alligator, which same child is the oldest of the two Sams who arrived here last week. Treatments were given him for some time at the University hospital in an attempt to remove the scales and also produce a growth of hair on his head, as he was practically bald, and medical science has succeeded to the extent that the number of scales has been lessened and the hair has commenced growing. Although the two boys have a strange appearance they are mentally like any normal child.

The Elks served a fine lunch after the ceremony and a vaudeville troup highly pleased the crowd with its excellent music and clever stunts.

The next function of more than ordinary interest on the part of the Elks will be the memorial service, which will be held at the lodge rooms on Sunday, Dec. 3. J. H. Hay will deliver the memorial address and there will be the usual program of exercises and music.

Wanted—Everybody with a heart and a dollar, in the ranks of the American Red Cross. Your chance to show both is from Nov. 11 to Nov. 30, when the chapter Roll Call worker will see you about grasping it.

The Annual Roll Call

The Pennington county chapter of the American Red Cross has launched the annual roll call of the organization, and every citizen who believes that the Red Cross is doing a work which must be continued, is expected to inscribe his or her name on the rolls.

There are two organizations in the United States in which the people as a whole are particularly interested—the Red Cross and the Salvation Army. Both require funds in order to keep up the great work in which they are engaged and this money must be secured thru popular subscription. The Salvationists campaign is now under way and will soon be completed while that of the Red Cross is just being launched.

The one outstanding aim of the Red Cross this year is to assist the American soldier or sailor who may still be confined in a hospital as the result of his war experiences. Concerning this part of the organization's work, Judge Hall, chairman for Minnesota, has the following to say:

"The feeling of indifference and apathy which prevailed after the war seems to be giving place this year to a desire for service and the wish to make some return to the disabled ex-service men for their great sacrifice. People have a better understanding of the fact that, if they themselves cannot visit the hospitals where the men are being cared for, the giving of a dollar to their own Red Cross chapter makes possible the maintenance of the social service workers in the hospitals and assistance for the boy's family at home when it is needed. The Red Cross works side by side with the Veterans' Bureau securing compensation and insurance, and collecting evidence necessary to secure compensation—work which the government cannot do and which the men are often unable to do. The Red Cross worker fills as far as she is able the place of family and friends to the man who is separated from them. She loans money to the boy whose compensation is not adjusted or whose check is delayed, and she supplies bath robes, pajamas, woolen socks, shaving cream, tooth brushes, stationery, and many other articles of personal comfort to the men who come to the hospital unprepared. She corresponds with home folks for the man who is too ill to write and if he is worried about his family she calls upon the chapter worker to visit and assist them if necessary. For the American who feels that his debt to the dough boy is yet unpaid, there can be no more direct expression of gratitude than a membership in the Red Cross."

FORMER RESIDENT DIES AT HOME IN RED LAKE FALLS

Mrs. H. E. Ives Answers Last Following Lingering Illness of Ten Years Duration

Mrs. Harry E. Ives, for 7 years a resident of Thief River Falls and wife of the first clerk of court in Pennington county, died at Red Lake Falls Monday, Nov. 13, after a ten years illness. Mrs. Ives was well known to citizens of Thief River Falls and a host of friends will be saddened to hear of her death, and extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

A full account of Mrs. Ive's death and life appeared in the Red Lake Falls Gazette last week, as follows:

"After an illness lasting more than ten years, Mrs. Harry E. Ives died Monday morning at 4 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Pirath of this city. Mrs. Ives suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1912 and since then has been an almost helpless invalid. Her strength failed rapidly during the past few months and she was gradually losing the use of her faculties. Death came as a relief to her sufferings.

Her maiden name was Catherine Elizabeth Pirath and she was born at Mankato April 8, 1884. The same year the family moved to Red Lake Falls and she grew to womanhood in this city. She was married to Harry E. Ives in this city in 1906 and they went to St. Hilaire to reside, Mr. Ives being the publisher of the St. Hilaire Spectator at that time.

In 1909 they returned to Red Lake Falls when Mr. Ives had been elected county treasurer of Red Lake county. At the conclusion of his term and following the division of Red Lake county the Ives family removed to Thief River Falls Mr. Ives having been elected clerk of court of Pennington county. They resided in Thief River Falls until 1917 when they returned to this city and where they have since resided except for one winter spent at Brainerd. Since 1917 Mr. Ives has been connected with the department of insane hospital support of the state board of control.

Mrs. Ives is survived by her husband, three daughters, Margaret Helen, age 15; Frances Cornelia, age 14 and Harriet Elizabeth, age 10, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Pirath, and one sister, Mrs. Jas. H. Cross of Jamestown, N. D.

She was a member of the Rebekah and Royal Neighbor lodges. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the Presbyterian church, the Rev. W. H. Evans officiating. Out of town relatives here for the services were Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cross and son Vernon of Jamestown, N. D.

Bank at Alvarado Closed; Depleted Reserves Cause

The State Bank of Alvarado, owned principally by farmers, has been closed by the state superintendent of banks on account of depleted reserves.

The bank was doing a big business until a year ago when the poor crops hit affected business conditions and the bank was unable to collect on its paper. The low prices this year prevented any recuperation by the bank and it was accordingly closed.

Peter Nordlund is president of the closed institution and J. W. Sands is cashier. It is believed that the closing is only temporary and that a meeting of the stockholders and a small assesment will put the bank in a position to reopen soon.

Evangelistic Meetings

Beginning tomorrow morning at 10:30 a series of evangelistical meetings will be held at the Zion Lutheran church. The special services will be concluded on Sunday. The principal speaker will be evangelist Peter Nelson from Duluth. A large turnout is expected to these meetings and everyone is urged to hear the message delivered by evangelist Nelson, who is an able speaker.

UNUSUAL OFFERING AT LYCEUM 2 DAYS WED. AND THURS.

"Prisoner of Zenda" One of The Best Productions Ever Seen Here

Motion picture fans who look for exceptional photoplays will have an opportunity Wednesday and Thursday to see a picture which is one of the outstanding productions of the year, for on that date Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda" will come to the Lyceum Theatre.

It is a story teeming with dramatic action, full of intrigue, romance and excitement. It concerns the adventures of an English gentleman, one Rudolf Rassendyl, who, because of a remarkable likeness to the ruler of the mythical kingdom of Ruritania, becomes for a time its actual ruler and wins the love of the Princess Flavia.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is the most popular romance of a generation. From the time when Anthony Hope, then more interested in his political career in England than in writing, composed it, the narrative of Rudolf Rassendyll's reckless adventure has taken hold of the hearts of all who read. This was the first of the stories of romance in little kingdoms in Europe, and no better indication can be had of its success than that it inspired hundred of writers to imitate it. But none of the resulting stories had the zest, the devil-may-care spirit of the original, for that was written chiefly for the love of imagination the author had; it was as glamorous to him as to his readers.

Public Urged to Visit Local Telephone Offices

One hundred per cent service to patrons was the keynote of the demonstration given by the Northwestern Bell Telephone company recently, showing the various ways in which the public can aid the company in securing better service. The management urged people to visit the local office and plant to become familiar with the manner in which a system of this nature is operated and conducted. The company is continually working on new contrivances or schemes of doing things, whereby service may be hastened, as the main object in telephoning is rapid service.

Some of the points brought out by the demonstrators showing how patrons can aid in perfecting the results were; necessity of speaking directly and distinctly into the transmitter; answering promptly when called; giving definite numbers and not attempting to give numbers from a faint memory and various other minor details which the public should take into consideration when using the telephone. The telephone is a very important factor in the world of today and it is important that people do not abuse it, as that will tend to lower its efficiency and may in many instances cause direct losses.

A wedding of interest to local people took place in Minneapolis yesterday when Miss Grace E. Loken, formerly a prominent young lady of Thief River Falls but now of Minneapolis, was united in the bonds of wedlock to Willard J. Geirie also of Minneapolis.

She was graduated from the local high school with the class of 1918 and has since then also completed a course of dramatic arts at the McPhail school. During the past year she was connected with the State Street bank of Minneapolis. Mr. Geirie is a designer and has been engaged in buying for the John W. Thomas company.

There is absolutely nothing for either the producer or consumer in shipping live stock to the big packers at the present time. For this reason cattle raisers in Pennington county have come to the conclusion that the public as well as themselves will be best served by the opening here of a co-operative meat market.

One big profit and the high freight saved.

Dealing directly with the producers means saving money for the consumer.

"We can't find a place on a successful football team for any man with a million dollar body and a ten cent head," is the statement of "Bo" McMillin, all American quarterback, according to the Cornelian.

What is true in football, is just as true in any other occupation; a man may have the most wonderful body ever given to Man, but he will never succeed at anything if he does not also possess mental ability. Life is no longer a battle of brawn; it is a battle of brain and the strong-back weak-minded man will find himself hopelessly out distanced in the race.

A strong and vigorous body is an asset upon which no price can be placed; it enables us to enjoy life to the utmost; but it is not absolutely essential to success. Some of the world's greatest men have been hopeless invalids. Robert Louis Stevenson, the author of the most popular boys' book ever written, never knew a well day. Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, is undersized and deformed. Michael Dowling, a native of our own Minnesota, in a struggle with the elements, lost both feet and one hand but rose in spite of this to an enviable position among men.

While not neglecting our body, let us prepare our minds for the work ahead. No amount of physical culture can compensate for lack of brains; no matter how perfect the brain, happiness is not possible without a healthy body. Therefore, let us preserve the balance and train each to the utmost point consistent with the well being of the other.

One outstanding feature of the debating work this year is the interest shown by all those connected with it. The three comprising the team can testify that they have had some hard sledding in the past two weeks; many of the English IV and public speaking students were anxious to be Lincoln High's representatives in the forensic field, and to that end worked earnestly to become so proficient as to be chosen. A spirit of friendly competition, desirable in any activity, developed, and this became an incentive to work, not only on delivery but also on actual debate material.

A berth on the team, being so hard to get, should be valuable; and this, coupled with the interest shown, would result in an eagerness for work by those on the team. With a deep interest and an incentive to work the battle is half won; Lincoln High will, this year, make her mark in the forensic world.

Senior: "What makes a leopard spotted?"
Freshman: "I don't know."
Senior: "The spots."

Miss T: "Orrin, you stay forty minutes after school tonight."
Orrin: "What for, I'm not going to stay until I know what I stay for; this isn't the Reign of Terror."

TEACHERS DISCUSS IMPORTANT ISSUES

The teachers of Lincoln high school held an interesting meeting last Tuesday evening. The interest was due to the discussion of two important subjects which concerned both the student and the teachers. The first subject discussed was the subject of "Social Activities" in the high school. The second discussion dealt with the subject of "What to Do With Failing Students." At the conclusion of the discussion on "Social Activities" a Social Activity committee, consisting of three high school teachers and one student from each class, including the Normal training department was chosen the following people were appointed to serve on the committee: M. P. Rapacz, chairman; Maude Johnson, Mrs. Korstad, Leigh Anderson, Katherine Barzen, Harriet Morgan, Henry Vorlicky, Mildred Loftness.

The main work of the committee is to plan the proper kind of amusement for the high school students and to see that the social activities are properly distributed throughout the year so that we do not have long periods of inactivity followed by periods when there are many activeities. The teachers thought that a committee of this kind would be a great help in keeping up the proper spirit in the high school. The committee it to have occasional meetings but the students are called upon to cooperate with the committee and give any suggestions that they may have in regard to social activities for the remainder of the year.

The second question the faculty found rather difficult to answer satisfactorily. However, it was generally agreed that the teachers should do every thing possible to encourage and assist the failing student especially where he was conscientiously applying himself to his work. On the other side, it was felt that the students who were failing regularly, and especially where the failures were due mainly to a lack of application, the student should find something else to do instead of continuing to waste his time in school.

The official basketball practice for the various class teams has started and every class is being represented by a large number of aspiring young athletes. All classes are working hard to develop a championship team and much interest is being shown.

Last year's squad has been doing some practice but regular varsity practice will not start until some time after Thanksgiving vacation.

Northrop

Bernice Thompson, of the third grade, is leaving for Minneapolis.

Arthur Battenfeld has returned to school after having his tonsils and adenoids removed.

Richard Sullivan has been absent due to illness.

Edna Haug has enrolled in Miss Sands' room and Agnes in Mrs. Eyde's room.

Mrs. Hellquist visited Miss Adams' room Friday morning.

During the past week 470 half-pint bottles of milk have been sold to the pupils of the Northrop school.

The fifth-sixth grade room received the marching pennant for this week.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs took their group pictures for the annual last week. We sincerely hope the camera did not receive any damages as did some of the other furniture used.

Picked Debators Tryout

Four teams debated the state debate question at the auditorium Friday afternoon. The victorious teams debated before the assembly on Tuesday. These teams were composed of those that ranked the highest in the debate preliminaries in English or Public Speaking Class. Every Senior had a tryout. Those chosen were Herbert Johnson, Ruth Knutson, Esther Larson, Ole Helle, Albert Stengleson, Pearl Weeks, Henry Vorlicky, Marion Hilden, Viola Burngrud, James Vatova, Thelma Carlson and Rose Costello. The teams that debated before the assembly were composed of Albert Stengleson, Henry Vorlicky, Herbert Johnson, Esther Larson, Rose Costello and Marion Hilden. The judges who so very kindly gave of their time were, Mrs. C. Gerlinger, City Attorney H. O. Chommie and Mr. Rapacz. From these six the state debate trio was chosen.

Juniors vs. Seniors

The Juniors and Seniors held a joint class meeting Thursday after four o'clock to decide whether or not they would have a party, as was suggested by the annual staff.

Craig Halvorson the business manager announced that there would be a Prowler Sales Content between the Juniors and Seniors, the winner of the contest to be the class that would sell the most annuals. It was decided that the losers of the contest were to give a party to their opponents.

A good fight is forseen, because the Juniors think that they shouldn't give the Seniors two parties this year, and the Seniors think that it wouldn't be right to be beaten by the Juniors.

Two of the High School classes, had their group pictures retaken outside of the school building. The two classes were the Sophomores and Juniors. The pictures of the Seniors and Freshmen turned out very well in the first place, and so did not have to be retaken.

Fresh.-Soph. Meeting

A big Freshman-Sophomore rally in the interest of the Prowler was held in the assembly room after the pep meeting last Thursday afternoon. Allan Sorenson, Sophomore president acted as presiding chairman, and expressed his heartest approval of the novel plan for subscription selling as presented by the business manager of the Prowler. President Sorenson read the list of Sophomore salesmen with just pride and called on two of them, Katherine Barzen and Lloyd Bennes.

Spokesmen for the Freshmen were Elsie Vorseth, their vice president, and Phyllis Dock.

Business manager Halvorson expressed his belief that the Freshmen and Sophomore classes would make as fine a showing as the upper classmen in the sale of subscriptions.

With their spirit of competition awakened by visions of parties the happy sophs and frosh adjourned.

Central News

A Boys' Glee club has been started at the Central.

The eighth grade English classes are busy this week gathering material for their competitive essays on "My Share in the Making the Highways Safe."

Several of the rooms have had over 98% attendance for five weeks. We hope the pupils will continue being on time.

Miss Dodge and Miss Batten shared in winning the marching banner this week.

George Johnson and Dorothy Shirley furnished splendid music for marching.

DEBATE TEAM CHOSEN TUESDAY

Miss Costello, Miss Hilden, A. Stengelsen and H. Johnson Represent H. S.

The state debating team for this year will be composed of Rose Costello, Herbert Johnson, Albert Stengelson and Martin Hilden as alternate, as the result of a trial debate in the high school assembly Tuesday afternoon. The six who were selected in the tryout at the auditorium Friday were divided into an affirmative and a negative team, which debated the state question, "Resolved, that the Kansas type of industrial court of adjudication should be established in the state of Minnesota."

The local team will meet Red Lake Falls at Thief River in the first debate, Dec. 15. As both teams preferred the affirmative side of the question, Supt. Anderson of St. Hilaire will flip a coin to determine what side each team will take. The members of the local team have debated both sides of the question in the trial debates, so they are ready to take up the argument on either side.

All of the people who took part in the debate Monday afternoon made a creditable showing, but it was evident that Coach Miss MacNair will have some work polishing up the rough spots before Dec. 15. The people who were chosen for the team have all some experience in forensics, which aid them in preparing for the debate within so short a time. Albert was on the local debating team last year, Herbert was a member of the debate squad two years ago, while Rose debated at Sauk Center high school.

The judges in the trial debate Monday were: Supt. Simley, Mrs. Rapacz, and Mr. Boothroyd of Moorhead, Minn.

Alumni Are Urged to Subscribe for Prowler at Once

Alumni, attention:

As a graduate of Lincoln High school I wish to make an appeal to all alumni who are still interested in, and who are desirous of keeping in touch with their Alma Mater. Every year the senior class publishes an annual in which is chronicled the various activities of school and anything of interest to students or former students of the institution. This year the management promise one of the best books produced by any class, the work already being well under way. As you will gather from articles in other columns of this page, a whirlwind of a campaign has been carried on in the high school and in the city of Thief River Falls as a whole.

However, the solicitors are not able to reach every one who may wish to subscribe for a '23 Prowler. Therefor, it would be very desirable that alumni who are not approached by agents of the annual, send their subscription directly to the business manager of the Prowler, Craig Halvorson, accompanied by the insignificant sum of $1.50, which is the price of the book. This should be done immediately in order that you may be sure of getting a copy.

Dreng Bjornaras, Editor '21.

Personals

Miss Stavig who has been absent from school for several weeks returned Monday morning. The faculty and students were glad to welcome her back.

My First Business Experience

When I was about six years old, like most children, I was never content unless I had some candy. Now, Mother was very strict as to the amount of candy I could have and, of course, I thought her very unreasonable.

One afternoon while Mother was down town, I had a great desire for some candy, and neither of us could think of any way to obtain money. All of a sudden, I happened to think that Mother had baked a batch of ginger cookies that morning, and perhaps I could sell some of the children around the neighborhood. I told Margaret my plan and before long all the children knew it. We sold five cookies for one pennoy. In a short time, about half of the cookies were gone, but we had in our possession six pennies. Feeling very "big" with so much money, we marched to the nearest store and purchased three suckers apiece. When I came home, Mother wanted to know where her cookies had gone and after finding out the truth, took the candy away from me for punishment. Then and there, I resolved never again to buy candy unless Mother gave me the money.

CLASSES SELL MANY PROWLERS

The Freshmen were leading the Sophomores by a bare dozen sales when the reports were turned in Tuesday. Unofficial returns after two days of the drive gave the Freshmen 115, Sophomores 103, Juniors 32, and Seniors 57. The reason for the small Junior sales is that many of the salesmen received their books late Monday, and consequently the other classes had the advantage of an early start.

The plan of having the different classes compete for subscriptions succeeded beyond anything the sales organization of the Prowler had dared to hope. Immediatly after the contest was announced Thursday evening the Freshmen started getting promises to subscribe. Some of the Freshmen salesmen reported as high as 40 promises before Monday morning. When representatives of the upper classes solicited sales down town, the reply invariably met with was, "I promised one of the Freshmen; they beat you to it so they have my order." The sales indicate, however, that the Sophomores must also have had a method of selling Prowlers. A Sophomore salesman greeted every student as he entered the building Monday morning with, "Have you signed up for your Prowler?" A blue tag designated every subscriber so the salesmen had little difficulty in reaching every student and teacher.

With both interest in the annual and financial backing secure, the Prowler staff will now go forward with their plans for the '23 annual, firm in the confidence that the school and city are behind them.

The final tabulations on the sales campaign will be announced next week, as will also the names of the most successful salesmen.

Charles Gambell, a member of the class of '20, is now attending the University of California, at Santa Anna, Cal. Charles is a Junior this year.

Dennis McGinn of the class of '20, now a student at St. Thomas College, made a showing in the St. Thomas vs. Macalaster football game; he scored a touchdown. The score was 46-6 in favor of St. Thomas.

Gordon LaBree of the Class of '20, and now a student of the University of North Dakota, spent Saturday and Sunday at his home in this city.

PROWLER DRIVE A WHIRLWIND

Crash! Bang! and everything started off with a rush. What! don't you know what I am writing about? Why, the "Prowler Campaign" which began on Monday morning? I had a hunch that every one in town had heard about it. People say that the clanging of the money taken in during those three days, echoed and reached through the surrounding country for miles around.

The business manager made a huge mistake when he had subscription blanks for only 400 Prowlers printed. To begin with, each class was given eight books of ten subscription blanks. The Freshies ran out before school let out on Monday, and the other classes won't admit that they were far behind.

The symbol of loyalty, which was a novel idea hit upon by the Seniors was a blue tag. The color blue which is the symbol of truth was soon flying on nearly every school student's manly chest, or earning.

Craig Halvorson the business manager of the "Prowler" had hopes of selling 400 copies, but my goodness, from the looks of things the printing company is going to run out of paper long before the 1923 Prowler is off the press. With the Freshmen against the Sophomores, and the Juniors against the Seniors there has been the keenest competition that has ever been found in Lincoln High.

Why I Like to Hike

Hiking is not merely a pleasure, but it is also healthful and interesting. It certainly is fun to start out early in the morning and hike thru the woods, meadows, and pasurelands into the wilderness. The crisp morning air is so refreshing; and the scenery is wonderful. Here and there, as you stroll along a winding path along the river bank, will be found little parties of canaries, blackbirds, and many others chirping away in the best humor. But best of all is the moment when the lunch basket is opened. A lunch never tastes as good anywhere as it does in the woods. The home-ward journey some times becomes tiresome, but the eyes and mind are so busy observing things, the hands gathering, and the feet stepping along the path, that time and distance are not considered before we reach the home-gate.

Washington News

Everette Sheggrud has been transferred to the sixth grade in the Northrup.

George Vavoulis, and Chief Clabo enrolled in the sixth grade last week.

The Little Citizens League of the sixth grade is going to give an Armistice Day program Friday afternoon.

The B class of the sixth grade attained an average of 99 per cent last week.

Fifteen children in the fifth grade earned a hundred on their Friday spelling test. Captains for two spelling teams are to be chosen from those getting a hundred every week during this six-week period.

Alfred Bugge entered the fifth grade last week.

Eunice Carlson has completed card 20 in the Studebaker tests.

Second grade have finished making the first page of their health booklets.

The following children received 100 on a two week number-work test. Ernest Bugge, Laura Cloutier, Evelyn Gullingsrud, Myrtle Gulseth, Angeline Havel, Lorie Streeter, McLaren, Longair, Evelyn Nichols, Clifford Olson, Grechen Simley, Ronhaid Spohnelm, Maurice Vaudrin, May Warner, Delores Urdahl, Verona Urdahl.

The marching pennant was won by the fourth grade.

Andras Vavoulis has been transferred to the Washington school.

Knox

The Fifth Division have been very much interested in their study of General Pershing.

The fourth grade say they like memorizing a poem for Thanksgiving better than the memorizing of multiplication tables.

Monday there was no cause of tardiness nor absence in the second grade room.

Dagne Erickson and Gerda Grokke have been out of school the past week because of illness.

School children have begun taking milk again and during the past week nearly 600 bottles have been ordered for the Knox building.

The following pupils have been neither absent nor tardy since the opening of school this fall: Florence Christofferson, Lenore Dale, Ester and Edna Dicken, Ruth Erickson, Aslie Fellman, Clara Olsen, and Kathryn Stene.

Agnes Myrom, Arlene Zellmer and Frances Will are absent from school due to illness.

"Oh! say chapel today! Wonder what's to happen," Said some ungrateful student.

"Just the Girls' Glee club, let's skip," replied the student next to him.

"All right." And off they went.

Yes, the Girls' Glee club was going to sing and it was too bad that the two students had to miss it for it was some real singing for a high school glee club. It showed the result of careful instruction in music. The songs which they sing were enjoyed by every one, and the Glee club and Miss Maude Johnson, the director, should be given much credit.

Wonetia Biddick returned to school Monday. Her absence has been due to illness.

Chapel was held the last few minutes on Friday afternoon for the purpose of boosting the Prowler. Talks were given by Craig Halvorson and Albert Stengelson. More pep followed on Monday.

SHAW NAMED AS POSTMASTER TO SUCCEED MORGAN

Present Official Closes Eight Years of Efficient Service on Friday Morning, Dec. 1

Declining Health Reason for Asking to be Relieved of Duties at This Time

New Postmaster Resident Here Many Years and Selection Will be Generally Approved

John Morgan has resigned as postmaster of Thief River and Daniel Shaw has been named to succeed him. Mr. Morgan's resignation was accepted to take effect at the close of business today and Mr. Shaw assumes his new duties Friday morning.

This announcement comes as a distinct surprise to the people of Thief River Falls as no one had the slightest intimation that Mr. Morgan contemplated retiring from the postoffice.

Failing Health Reason

Mr. Morgan has been in the harness as postmaster for over eight years and during all that time has maintained excellent service in the local office. His courtesy and thoroughness in conducting the affairs of the office have been commented upon time and again by the citizens generally and by the government inspectors, and the service has been acknowledged as equal to any in the state. The work has naturally been considerable of a strain on Mr. Morgan and he finally decided that it would be to the best interest of his health to be relieved of the exacting duties of the office and take a much needed rest. In his characteristic way he made the decision unknown to his friends and the announcement now comes as a surprise. He retires with the good wishes of his many friends, which includes every citizen of Thief River Falls.

New Postmaster Admirable Choice

The selection of Mr. Shaw to succeed Mr. Morgan will meet with the hearty approval of the citizens generally. He has been a resident of Thief River Falls for many years and has at all times been one of its foremost citizens. He is admirably fitted to discharge the duties of the office in a manner that assures the patrons a continuance of the excellent service that has been a feature under Mr. Morgan's administration.

DAIRYMEN TO MEET AT RED LAKE FALLS DECEMBER 6 AND 7

Pennington Farmers Will Make Effort to Capture Attendance Prize Offered

A big program has been arranged for the annual winter meeting of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association which will be held in Red Lake Falls Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 6 and 7, and every farmer in the Red River Valley will profit by attending the convention. Many speakers prominent in the dairy world will be here.

The convention will open Wednesday, Dec. 6 at 10 a. m. at the court house. Following the invocation by Rev. W. H. Evans, Mayor Gilbert Marchildon will deliver the address of welcome to which responce will be made by A. R. Knutson of Pelican Rapids. President N. P. Hanson of Detroit will deliver his annual address after which Secretary Leonard Rouske of Halstad and Treasurer C. M. Davidson of Climax will present their reports. Chris Heen, state dairy and food commissioner will deliver an address on "The State's Relation to the Dairy Industry." President Hanson will appoint the committees at this morning session.

The association has a large number of contests for butter makers, individual farmers and for butter makers. A fifty dollar silver trophy will be awarded to the creamery having the largest number of patrons registered at the convention. A register will be at the convention hall thirty minutes before the opening of each session and will remain there throughout the entire session to register all who wish to compete.

The Thief River Falls Creamery is making a strong effort to win this trophy and all local farmers who possibly can do so are urged to attend the meeting on the opening day, Dec. 6th. Those who find that they can go are requested to notify the creamery or County Agent J. J. McCann.

The Grygla Eagle of last week reports the death of Thomas Byklum of Hampre township, near Grygla, which occurred on Wednesday last week. Mr. Byklum had reached the old age of 82 years at the time of his demise, and had been a resident of Marshall county for several years.

Mrs. Bishop Returns From Trip in Southern States

Mrs. J. M. Bishop returned Monday morning from a several weeks' trip to various points in the southern states. Mrs. Bishop was a delegate from the Women's Auxiliary of the Ninth district at the American Legion convention at New Orlean which was held last month, and expresses satisfaction regarding the accomplishments of the convention. It was also a decided pleasure trip as she visited several points of interest in the vicinity of New Orleans. Mrs. Bishop states that she was very much impressed with the difference in the farm home in the southern states and those that are found here. In many of the localities she visited practically only shacks and huts were the homes of the tillers of the soil, and it was a great relief to see the well built farm homes of Minnesota.

On her return Mrs. Bishop visited with her daughter Mariam, who is a teacher of French in the Oklahoma City high school, Okla., and with Mr. Bishop's sister who is secretary of the Oklahoma state library commission. While in the Oklahoma capital she addressed a meeting of the Child Welfare board. At Stillwater she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilson, formerly of this city, Mr. Wilson at one time being superintendent of the city schools but is now connected with the state agricultural college. Mrs. Bishop also stopped for short periods at various other places along the route to visit among friends or relatives, being away about seven weeks.

SCHOOLS PLAN OBSERVANCE OF EDUCATION WEEK

Meeting of Parent Teacher Association Tuesday Eve. Will be First of Week's Program

Film of Panama Canal Will be Shown in Addition to Excellent Musical Program

Parents and all Interested Urged to Make Special Effort to Visit Schools

Washington, Nov. 23 (Capital News Service).—American Education week, to be celebrated all over the United States from December 3 to 9, inclusive, is divided into six separate sections, a day being devoted to each department. Sunday, December 3, is known as "For God and Country Day," on which ministers of all denominations are urged to preach a sermon on education, either morning or evening. All communities are urged to hold mass meetings. Requests for speakers may be made to the American Legion Posts throughout the country for meetings during this week.

Monday is "American Citizenship Day." Tuesday will be devoted to "Patriotism," Wednesday is "School and Teacher Day," Thursday is to be given to a consideration of "Illiteracy," Friday to "Equality of Opportunity," and Saturday to Physical Education."

The American Legion, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education, which are all three co-operating in the celebration, are asking aid and assistance from the public. Churches, chambers of commerce, labor organizations, woman's organizations, fraternal bodies, luncheon clubs, etc., are asked to urge the mayor to issue a proclamation setting aside this week as American Education week, and asking the people to co-operate. Newspapers are requested to give all space possible to educational matters, articles, editorials, and news material, and merchants are requested to use window displays appropriate for the occasion, and to devote as much space as possible to matters of education in their newspaper advertisements. Citizens everywhere are requested to ask the moving picture theatres to flash slides on the screen, urging the people to visit the schools and study educational questions. At all public meetings held that week it is hoped space can be found for some one to talk a few minutes on the necessity of education. Co-operation with the educational officials and other patriotic, civic, and fraternal organizations by local American Legion post is asked, on the ground that the county looks to the American Legion to pave the way to patriotism and education—service to Nation, State, and community.

Farmer Shoots Self; Worry Is Cause

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 27.—Dr. H. E. Nelson, Polk county coroner, was summoned late Sunday afternoon to the Bakken farm home, three miles east of Dugdale, following the finding of the body of Anton Lewis Bakken, who, according to the coroner, committed suicide by placing the but of his shot gun against a tree and pulling the trigger with a stick, sending the gun's discharge into his right breast.

Bakken, 56 years old and unmarried was found by his two sisters and his dog after he had been missing from the home for two days. The sisters say their brother left home Friday afternoon with a shotgun over his arm. They became alarmed when he failed to return Saturday, and Sunday afternoon started out to hunt for him. Led by the dog they followed Bakken's trail to a little grove, where they found the dead body.

The sisters, Mrs. Anton Nelson and Mrs. Ole Johnson, believe Bakken committed suicide following worry over a debt owed on his farm. The dead man made his home with his aged mother, Mrs. Lars Bakken, in Tilden township, Polk county.

HEARING ON RED LAKE DRAINAGE MATTER DEC. 7TH

Report of Board Shows That Highest Assessment on Any Land Will be $2.50 Per Acre

Total Benefits Found to be Three Times Cost of the Entire Project

Plan Suggested for Assessing Water Power Companies Will Bring Perpetual Income

The final hearing in the matter of the Red Lake river drainage project will be held in Thief River Falls before Judges Grindeland and Stanton next Thursday, Dec. 7.

Important Drainage Project

This project is one that has been demanded by the farmers in the area affected for many years and it is regarded as the most important of anything of its kind ever undertaken in the northwest. It is only natural that there is some opposition to the project but this comes mostly from those who are not thoroughly familiar with the entire plan as worked out by the board.

Should Get Facts

All interested in the matter, one way or the other, should attend this hearing and reserve judgment until that time. This is the only way in which they can get a fair and unbiased view of the entire project.

The board has prepared a very complete report on the undertaking which is submitted here and all are urged to give it a very careful reading.

From this report, it appears that there are about 127,000 acres of lands benefited by the proposed project belonging to the Chippewa Indians of Red Lake and about 117,000 acres of lands belonging to the settlers. The Indian lands found to be benefited are located in Sections 5 and 6, Twp. 151 N. of Rg. 36 W; Sections 1 to 6, 9, 10, 11 and 12, Twp. 151 N. of Rg. 37 W; The W½ of Twp. 152, N. of Range 36 W; All of Twp. 152 N. of Rg. 37 W; The North four tiers of Sections in Twp. 152 N. of Rgs. 37 and 38 W; The W½ of Twp. 154 N. of Rg. 36 W. All of Twp. 154 N. of Rgs. 37 and 38 W.

This is an empire in extent and the lands are fertile and are susceptible of complete drainage and subjection to cultivation and improvement. It is practically unoccupied and unproductive but with drainage and the flood waters controlled, will be open for use. The benefits to accrue to Thief River Falls and the territory for miles around cannot be over-estimated in the opinion of all of those most interested in this project. The lands cannot be used without being drained. The soil conditions are such that no doubt they will be used as soon as drained.

The Act of Congress permitting this improvement to be made provides that the improvement shall be ordered and the agreements entered into before the 21st day of February, 1923. These lands cannot be drained without authority from Congress and if the project should now be defeated, it will probably be years before it could be again revived. The Clearwater River project and the Red Lake River project, because of the low height of land between their basins must go hand in hand. If the Red Lake River project is defeated, the Clearwater project cannot be established, and so the counties of Clearwater, Beltrami, Red Lake, Pennington and Polk are deeply interested in this great project.

The lands belonging to the settlers found to be benefited lie in the N½ of the Town of Hickory, 152-39; Sections 1 to 5, 9 to 12, in Deer Park, 152-30; Sections 1 to 6, 11 and 12, in Mayfield, 152-41; All of Highlanding, 153-40; All of Star, 153-39; Sections 11 to 18, 20 to 24, 29 to 36, in Kratka, 153-41; Sections 7 to 36, in Rolner, 154-30; Sections 11, 12, 13, 14, 23 to 26, 31 to 36, Goodridge, 154-40; Sections 1 to 12, Esplee, 154-39;

The persons interested in this project will be pleased to learn that the entire cost of viewing these lands by the three viewers and making the voluminous report, covering about 300 pages, cost about $829.00. They will also be interested in knowing that the viewers have recommended that the plan of control works at the outlet of Red Lake be so changed as to provide for a much less elaborate dam and works, and while the Board has not formally acted upon that suggestion, it is expected that the Board as well as the Judges of the Court will accept the suggestions that either one costing about $25,000, or another costing about $15,000, somewhat less in its nature, will be approved of by the Board and the District Judges. This will make a saving of from $25,000 to $40,000 at this time.

The number of water power sites that are improved are few. If it is attempted to assess these as benefited by the improvement, it will be necessary to assess the unimproved sites also. The amounts of the benefits that could be established by proper evidence might be comparatively small. It will probably be recommended to the Court that instead of making specific and lump assessments upon water power sites from the outlet to Fisher's Landing, the plan of selling the impounded or reservoir flood waters to the water power companies will be recommended. If this plan be adopted and the water impounded in the reservoir be sold, the proceeds from the sale of impounded flood waters will be very great and sufficient in amount, no doubt, to meet the obligations represented by much of the bonded indebtedness incurred for the purpose of securing money to complete the project. In this way the power companies will be obliged to pay for the impounded flood waters and the owners of lands assessed will be correspondingly relieved of the burden of paying assessments. The water power sites will be thus compelled to pay for the use of the impounded flood waters for all time, or at least, until practically the cost of the project is met by rentals or water sales.

There seems to be no objection to the establishment of the project, nor is its importance to Northern Minnesota overlooked by anyone, but there may be some objection from the individual property owner as to the amount assessed against his land. While the assessment should be fair, it is apparent that a project of such vast importance as this should not be defeated because of some error or mistake in a particular assessment. This, however, is a matter within the control of the Court and by it easily corrected and it is expected that such corrections will be made wherever an excessive or inadequate assessment has been made.

The total benefits found is over three times the total cost of this project. With the proposed reduction mentioned, this percentage will be increased. The highest benefit found is about $8.75. At the most, as now computed, with the proposed reduction made, the highest cost to any piece of land would be about $2.80 per acre. The total benefits are about $1,000,000 and the total cost about $600,000, as estimated. This estimated cost is based upon the price of ten cents per cubic foot for excavation. It is now expected that contracts can be made for the excavation at a price of nine cents per cubic foot. This makes the cost about one-tenth less or about $2.50 per acre for the highest assessment

WASECA MAN BUYS TWENTY NINE HEAD GUERNSEY CATTLE

Largest Consignment Ever Shipped Out of County by Pennington Breeders

Twenty-nine head of dairy cattle, four of which were Holsteins and the rest Guernseys, were shipped from Thief River Falls to Waseca, Minn. Saturday. They were purchased from Pennington county breeders by M. J. Broderick, who represented a number of farmers in his county, for the purpose of building up their dairy herds.

Highest Price Paid $125

The highest price paid for any one head was $125.00 and the lowest was $40.00. This is a very good average when the fact is taken into consideration that all of the animals sold were grades and some was very young stock. One pure bred Guernsey bull nine months old was purchased by Mr. Broderick for $150.00.

The local men selling the cattle were F. B. Conklin, Stuart McLeod, Albert Johnson & Sons and H. W. Althoff. Mr. Broderick stated that he would undoubtedly be here next year to purchase more cattle.

His presence is certain to bring out a full attendance to the services. The Memorial Day services are public and all who wish to are cordially invited to attend.

Heart Failure Causes Sudden Death of Farmer in City

Jacob Einarson, aged 65, a pioneer farmer of Moylan township, Marshall county, residing about 10 miles north of Goodridge, died suddenly early Sunday morning at the home of his stepdaughter, Mrs. F. A. Brown, 303 Markley avenue north. Mr. Einarson came to this city Saturday to receive medical attention and was staying over night at the Brown home when the end came. When Mrs. Brown came to his room early Sunday morning to call him for breakfast she received no answer, and upon closer investigation it was found that the aged man had passed away, the attending coroner stating that death had evidently occurred several hours before.

The remains were taken to the Larson undertaking parlors from where the funeral took place Tuesday afternoon. Interment was made at the Greenwood cemetery near St. Hilaire, Rev. Grimsrud officiating at the obsiquies.

Deceased has been engaged in farming in Moylan township for a number of years, having moved to the present farm from St. Hilaire about 20 years ago. Suffering from rheumatism for the past several years is believed to have brought on the heart attack which ended his life so suddenly Sunday morning. Mr. Einarson is survived by one son, who resides at the farm home. His wife died [illegible] years ago.

DEDICATION OF LODGE HOME IS PLEASING EVENT

Sons of Norway Home Opened to Members With Successful and Impressive Ceremonies

Interesting Addresses by Judge T. O. Gilbert and O. P. B. Jacobson Delight Audience

Local Talent Assists in Making Event One Long to be Remembered by Lodge

The new home of the local order of the Sons of Norway was the scene of much festivity last evening when the splendid structure was appropriately dedicated and officially opened as headquarters of the Snorre lodge. Several distinguished members of the organization were here to participate in the exercises, among them O. P. B. Jacobson of St. Paul, chairman of the railroad and warehouse commission, Judge T. O. Gilbert of Willmar, president of the grand lodge and H. Askeland of St. Paul, secretary of the first district and G. I. Gullikson of Grand Forks. A very elaborate banquet prepared by the Daughters of Norway, was the opening feature of the evening, beginning at 7 o'clock and continuing until over three hundred people had been satisfied.

Among the popular dishes on the menu were "rommegrod" "flatbrod," and "krumkager" which were greatly relished.

During the banquet a splendid program of addresses and music was rendered, J. S. Arneson acting as master of ceremonies. The principal address was delivered by Hon. O. P. B. Jacobson who had as his topic "Early Norwegian Immigration," which he treated in his usual interesting and forceful manner, also emphazing the part played by the Scandinavians in the building up of this great northwest in particular. He complimented the members of the local order upon the results of their efforts in securing such a fine home. Judge T. O. Gilbert, grand lodge president, gave the dedicatory address, and once more did he prove to those who heard him that he is a speaker who has the power of gripping an audience and delivering a message worth while giving second thought.

In addition to the formal dedication of the new home, he brought out very appropriately some of the things for which people should be thankful at this season of Thanksgiving.

H. Askeland of Minneapolis and G. I. Gullikson of Grand Forks were also called upon, both of whom paid tribute to the Norse people and traditions in their mother tongue. Brage male chorus under the direction of Dr. P. L. Vistaunet rendered several selections which brought down the house each time. Very pleasing vocal solos were given by Miss Dora Holmes, Mrs. O. F. Melby and Roy Protz, the audience showing their appreciation by demanding several encores. A musical trio composed of violin, flute, and piano furnished splendid numbers at various intervals.

There were also brief talks by Carl Nelson, architect, Elling Larson, contractor, H. S. Dahlen, president of the building association of the lodge, Bernard Knudsen, who in place of Ed. Ness, spoke in behalf of the lodge, G. Halvorson and Mrs. John Sorenson as president of the local order of the Daughters of Norway.

The program being concluded the floor was cleared and the spacious hall changed to a ball room and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing to the strains of old time music, and enjoying a social time until a late hour.

Rev. Shurson at Trinity Church

Special services were held at the Trinity Lutheran church Sunday, Rev. H. O. Shurson of Minneapolis preaching the sermon at both the morning and evening services. Rev. Shurson is field finance secretary for the Norwegian Lutheran church of America and in his sermons appealed to the congregation to aid the church organization in the support of home and foreign missions, charities and educational institutions. Offerings were made at both services and a considerable sum towards the budget was raised.

EDUCATION WEEK PROGRAM OUTLINED

American Legion, N. E. A., and Bureau of Education Ask Co operation

The week of December 3-9 has been set aside by President Harding, Governor Preus, and the National and state departments of education as Education week. The initiative has been taken by the American Legion, the purpose being to call peoples' attention to the importance of our schools as the foremost Americanization agency.

Locally, Education week will be ushered in by a meeting of the Parent Teacher association on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, at 8:00 o'clock in the Lincoln building. The association is thriving and has held some very profitable and interesting meetings. This meeting will prove particularly attractive. There will be an attraction which every parent and teacher who cares at all for our boys and girls, whether it be son or daughter, neighbor's child, or pupil, should hear. Besides, there will be music and a film of the Panama canal. There will be election of officers for the coming year. Last but not least, there will be an exhibit of the work done in the sewing department and refreshments will be served by the home economics department which is in charge of Miss Skinner.

This week's issue of the High School Progress is an Education week issue. You will find a great deal of interesting information in regard to our schools.

This is not the best time for visiting schools because of the epidemic. Neverthless, it is hoped the schools may have a great many visitors during the week. Parents and others interested will be welcome any time, but the following days have been set aside especially, Tuesday will be Central day, Wednesday will be Lincoln or high school day, and Thursday will be Knox, Northrop, and Washington or grade day.

In the Central and Lincoln schools, there will be general assemblies during the week when men prominent locally will speak on pertinent topics of importance.

All in all, Thief River Falls will observe Education week in a very fitting manner.

OPIE READ WILL DELIVER FAMOUS LECTURE DEC. 4

Talented Speaker Secured for Opening Attraction of New Sons of Norway Hall

"Human Nature and Politics" Subject Selected for Appearance Before Local Audience

Heavy Advance Sale of Tickets Assures Audience That Will Fill Hall to Capacity

The people of Thief River Falls and vicinity will be afforded the opportunity of spending an evening with that famous and talented American, Mr. Opie Read. He is especially well known, not only as an author and entertainer but as a newspaper man, having been a leading writer on the Chicago dailies for years.

He is, with one possible exception, the author of more widely read books than any other living American author. The indescribable witchery of his words, the charm of his voice and manner, the influence of his personality combine to weave the magic spell that holds his hearers enthralled.

A few local people have heard him and they cannot say too much in his praise as a lecturer and they invariably want to hear him again.

High class attractions of this kind are exceptional and local people should not allow this opportunity go by without taking advantage of the privilege of hearing this great man who will give his best known lecture here.

He willl deliver his famous lecture "Human Nature and Politics" at the Sons of Norway hall on Monday evening, Dec. 4th.

Traffic Demands Daily Rail Service to Fertile

Red Lake Falls, Nov. 28.—Daily train service will be instituted on the Fertile-Red Lake Falls-East Grand Forks branch on the Northern Pacific as soon as the movement of flax straw and flax tow are enough to warrant it, according to Supt. G. Hageberg of the Staples division in a letter to Agent C. S. Kimber of Red Lake Falls.

The Fiber Products Co. of Red Lake Falls has been forced to run less than full time because of the difficulty in getting flax straw. The weather has been too wet and rainy to permit baling, and officials of the company say there are thousands of tons along the line of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo railroads in North Dakota, Minnesota, and Canada, awaiting baling and shipment.

Creamery Association To Expand Activities

A decision to expand activities of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association was reached at a meeting of directors, held in St. Paul last week. The business of the association has grown so rapidly that the capacity of several departments, especially that marketing butter must be enlarged, according to A. J. McGuire, general manager.

The number of member creameries has reached 364, an increase of 10 for the month of November. The association does not owe a cent, other than regular monthly bills. The financial condition is such that it is possible to expand in almost any direction desired by the creameries.

Vinje Opens Confectionery

Another lunch counter and confectionery has been added to the Thief River Falls business places, Conrad Vinji having bought out the business formerly conducted by Bernt Wold at 115 LaBree avenue north, near the Ogahmah hotel. The building is at present being put under repairs but Mr. Vinji has already opened the place for business, carrying a line of confectionery and serving lunches. The bus-line operated by Vinji this summer was recently sold to the Triangle Transportation company of Crookston.

Heavy Express Shipments

The local American Express office reports one of the heaviest weeks as far as the amount of goods handled, is concerned. Last evening over 80,000 pounds were transferred, a large part of which was poultry shipped from points in North Dakota and in this section.

1000 ENTRIES OF PRIZE POULTRY AT SIXTH SHOW

This is Number Expected at Annual Exhibition on Dec. 12, 13, and 14

Interest Evinced is Greater Than For Any Previous Show of the Kind

Exhibition Room Will be Open to Receive Birds at 1 P. M. December 11

The sixth annual exhibition of the Pennington County Poultry association will be held at the auditorium, Thief River Falls, on Dec. 12, 13, and 14. Premium lists will be distributed this week and fanciers from all over this section are preparing their prize birds for entry.

More interest is being evinced in this show than in any previous similar event, both by residents of the county and those residing at a distance. Inquiries have come from Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas, besides a large number from other points in this state, requesting that premium lists be sent and stating that it is the intention of the writer to enter one or more coops of chickens at the exhibition.

1,000 Birds Expected

The first annual show of the Pennington County Poultry association was held six years ago, when 200 entries—many of the scrub variety—were exhibited. Last year there were 800 birds shown and the effort toward improvement was most marked. A large share of the coops contained thoroughbreds, the strains being about equally devided between the famous layers and the heavier table bird. Officials of the association believe there will be 1,000 chickens alone exhibited at the coming show and that the exhibits of ducks, geese, turkeys, guinea and pea foul will be greater than ever before.

Breeders, feeders, farmers and all others interested in the poultry game should make it a point to attend this show and become exhibitors. This affair will be one of the biggest and best in the state and by far the largest and most important to be held in the north section.

REMARKABLE AUTO RACE IS FEATURE LYCEUM OFFERING

Special Picture "Across the Continent" Secured by Management for Sunday - - Monday

An eighty-five mile per hour "bug!" This small car, perhaps the fastest for its size ever built, was especially constructed and equipped to hold the honor place in the transcontinental race which is the principal feature of Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture, "Across the Continent," to be presented at the Lyceum theater Sunday and Monday.

The machine is about hte size of a stripped-down Ford. It was equipped with all the features of the racing cars, however, including Delco ignition system, Miller racing carburetor, and Perfecto two-speed axle.

The car was geared three-to-one and was capable of attaining a speed of eighty-five miles per hour, although, according to the star, it was hard to hold it to the road when it reached its maximum speed.

Eddie Heffernan, expert mechanician, who was forced to retire from the racing game because of injuries received in a speed contest, spent several weeks getting the car in shape and perfect running order, and then acted as "nurse" to the car during the making of the picture.

Leases Vulcanizing Plant

The building until recently occupied by the Thief River Vulcanizing company, 102 Main avenue south, across from the Peoples garage, has been leased to Chas. Fiterman of the Northern Trading company. It is Mr. Fiterman's intention to carry on a vulcanizing business which will be in charge of T. Hornseth, who has seven years experience in vulcanizing work and is an expert in this line of repair. He also expects to engage an expert battery man to handle batteries, for which he will be a distributor, and in addition is making plans to have a complete line of automobile tires and accessories. Mr. Fiterman has taken over the place but not yet announced when he will open for business.

Oliver Larson Dies

Oliver Larson of this city, died Tuesday as the result of general weakness or old age. He received injuries in an accident about two years ago and sence then his health has been failing him. During the past year it was necessary for him to spend considerable time at the hospital.

Deceased, who was about 65 years of age at the time of his death, is an early resident in the vicinity of Newfolden but retired to this city where he has resided on Markley ave. for the past few years. Mr. Larson was a single man and has no immediate relatives in this community. He has two brothers in [illegible] a sister in Minneapolis and some relatives in Warren. No definite plans for the funeral have been made as yet.

The first snow storm of the season hit the northwest today. About four inches of snow fell.

FACTS TO CONSIDER

As the time approaches for holding the final hearings on the proposed drainage and flood control undertaking in the drainage basin of the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers, there are a number of highly important facts that should be taken into consideration by those most directly affected, and particularly the farmers.

Of greatest importance is the fact that federal legislation has been secured authorizing the Indian Bureau to co-operate.

A very large part of the cost of the Red Lake project will be borne by the Indian lands as they constitute the major area. Without this federal legislation, which automatically expires on February 21, next, nothing can be done to drain this vast region.

Second in importance, although greatest in both direct and indirect benefits, is the water power that the control works at the outlet will create through the use of Red Lakes as a reservoir. Water power companies now in operation and those which will construct plants in the future will buy the water, as this increased water will flow when released during the fall and winter months, whereas now practically no water flows.

It is safe to say that through the plan of payments for the additional water thus released the district will receive annually large rentals, all to be used to help pay off the bonds, interest, annual maintenance expense and cost of repairing the ditch. A. B. Meyer, consulting engineer, is prepared to go on the stand and to prove large benefits.

This means that for the first time in the United States a drainage project is also to be made a water power project for the benefit of land owners and, through cheaper rates for electrical current, for the benefit of the territory at large. This must result in increased population (and incidentally higher land values) through the establishment of industries requiring the use of electrical current.

The third point to consider is that the additional water provided through the control plan is of value only if used to make electrity that can be sold.

Added electric current above what can now be created on the Red Lake river must come from water or coal. Coal costs more each year. It stands to reason that water is cheaper. It follows that power companies will use additional water to produce electrical energy as fast as a market for current opens. Facilities for greatly increasing capacity to make electricity through water power will cause the firms to seek new territory for a market.

This is exactly what is happening. Grand Forks now secures much of its electricity from the Red Lake river. Fargo is a potential market. Entire eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota will get electrical current from the Red Lake river if this project goes through. This means an absolutely certain source of income from water to the district.

It will be highly desirable to extend the period for payment of the bonds from 20 to 30 years in order to secure a maximum return to the district from water power rentals. In the opinion of the Times this should be done. Furthermore, during the first ten years interest only should be paid. Rentals for water will undoubtedly begin at once after the project is carried out, which will provide immediate funds for maintenance and interests. As years go by, added markets for current, requiring that new water power plants be established will create a market for more and more water to be sold by the district, resulting in large sums to be applied to retire the bonds.

Inasmuch as the Clearwater river furnishes a part of the water for the Red Lake river below its junction with latter stream and in view of the fact that Clearwater Lake will be used as a minor reservior under the amended plans of the Clearwater project, it is pertinent to ask why the owners of lands proposed to be assessed on the Clearwater project at some time in the future may not also share in the water power rentals. The Times merely raises this query, which undoubtedly will be fully gone into at the final hearing.

These two projects, which are inseparably connected one with the other, mean everything to the farmers directly affected and to this entire region. The present agricultural depression, caused by conditions following the war, will not continue long. It will be followed by a permanent period of agricultural prosperity in which the farmers of this section will get the benefits, provided they remove the flood dangers which exist in these two basins.

STORM CLOUDS GATHERING

Indications are that there will be some interesting times experienced during the present session of congress. Already the agricultural group has a tentative program under consideration and as this bloc is perhaps numerically the largest and admittedly the most aggressive in the Senate, the probabilities are that it will be heard from in no uncertain manner.

Senator Capper of Kansas, is the head of this particular division of the senate, and he promises to go early into action. He will be aided by several senators at the opening of the next regular session and will be a force to be reconed with.

The Kansas law maker favors "constructive legislation," which includes the following program:

Complete a rural credits program providing with an adequate financial system.

Reduce freight rates.

Repeal Section 15-A (giving the interstate commerce commission control over state rates) and other objectionable features of the transportation act.

Provide a better system of marketing.

Put the development of the Muscle Shoals project in the hands of Henry Ford.

Make undisturbed securities and stock dividends pay their share toward the maintenance of government.

Pass a constitutional amendment prohibiting tax exempt securities.

Senator Capper states that the recent slump in the Republican vote was due the party leaders' inability or unwillingness to heed the demand of the people that something along the lines of such legislation be undertaken. Standpat leadership of the old school has been entirely discredited, says Senator Capper, and the people are demanding progressive legislation of the kind outlined.

The agricultural group is going to be more formidable in the present congress than ever before. There are three new senators from the North Central states who will assuredly line up with those who have been trying to push legislation for the relief of the farmer. Shipstead of Minnesota, Brookhart of Iowa, and Frazier of North Dakota, displace senators who were regarded as standpatters, while all the other senators alligned with the group and whose terms expire next March, have been returned. Legislation by and for groups may not be particularly desirable in a republic, but things have come to a pass which makes such action necessary if agriculture is going to secure anywhere near its just share of the returns. Farming is the basic industry of the land and as such is entitled to as much consideration at least as any other pursuit. Up to the present time this consideration has not been extended.

The farm bloc is evidently in earnest in demanding a new deal for agriculture. Members of the group are generally pointed to as being radicals, but anyone who has the temerity to suggest that there is need for a change would be considered a radical by the standpat section of both old parties.

One thing is certain: Either the Republican party or the Democratic party will heed the demand now being made by the people—and particularly the farmers—or there will be an entirely new party in which will be incorporated elements of both the old ones.

Better Results to Farmers From Correct Butchering

"Too many farmers neglect to avail themselves of the opportunity to save on living expenses by the home butchering of livestock and curing of meat," says A. L. Harvey of the animal husbandry division at University Farm. "As soon as the temperature gets down around the freezing point there is little danger of the meat spoiling. Hogs may be butchered earlier in the fall than either beef cattle or sheep, as a large percentage of the carcass can be cured." Here are some points which should be kept in mind, says Mr. Harvey, in slaughtering hogs:

1. Select young healthy hogs weighing around 200 pounds, as they are easier to handle, yield medium size cuts, and a reasonable amount of lard.
3. Keep the hogs off feed 24 to 30 hours before killing, but give them all the water they want.
3. Don't bruise or whip the animal before killing, or excite in any way, for a poor carcass will result.
4. Don't expect to do a good job with only the "old butcher knife." A sticking knife, a skinning knife, a saw, a scraper, a hook of some sort, and gambrel are necessary.
5. Sticking without stunning or shooting produces the best carcass.
6. Scalding is best done when the water is about 160 degrees F. Put some soap or lye in the water to remove the dirt and scurf.
7. If a barrel is used, scald the rear end of the hog first.
8. Use plenty of water.
9. Loosen the leaf lard.
10. Split the carcass and allow ample time for cooling before cutting up.

Housewives Can Give Red Ant Its Quietus

A. G. Ruggles of University Farm, state entomologist told a radiophone audience the other day that control of insect pests which annoy housewives can best be done by stamping out sources of infestation rather than fighting such pests after they have once become established.

The common little red ant is the cause of much trouble and work in many households. All but one or two species of ants infesting houses are naturally outdoor species, said Mr. Ruggles, but all of them, even the indoor varieties, have the same nesting habit. The first method of control is to fumigate the nest or colony if it can be found, with carbon disulphide or some other similar fumigant. The method of applying is to poke a hole into the nest and inject the poison; then cover with a damp cloth or bag to keep in the fumes.

Poison bait is made by dissolving one-half cup sugar in one pint of water and adding one level teaspoon of arsenate of soda, the whole being well boiled. This should be used on bits of sponge or in small shallow dishes. The poison is carried back to the nests by the marauders and fed to the young as well as to the "stay at homes" and the queens who lay the eggs. In this way a colony of ants can soon be destroyed.

Another method, that of capturing and killing members of the foraging army, calls for great persistence and patience. Colonies can, however, be greatly reduced in population by persistently putting out sweetened water baits and trapping the enemy.

Cattle Lice Killed By Raw Linseed Oil

Application of raw linseed oil is the most satisfactory treatment for cattle infested with lice and other parasites, says Dr. W. A. Riley, chief of the division of entomology at University Farm. One pint of oil applied thoroughly with a brush or rag will do for four or five cows. The application should be especially thorough on upper parts of the neck along the back from the poll to the base of the tail, the shoulder tops, and about the folds of the udder and escutcheon, for it is in these places that the lice are the most abundant.

Dr. Riley says it is desirable in bad infestations to clip the hair for a width of three or four inches along the back of the head to the base of the tail. The treatment with oil should be repeated in about two weeks after the first application in order to kill the lice which have hatched from the eggs. Thereafter it should be applied about once a month during the winter. It is important to use raw linseed oil, and not the boiled linseed, for the latter may cause skin irritation.

Another treatment that has been found quite satisfactory, says Dr. Riley, is the use of 4½ per cent creolin solution, made by taking 12 tablespoons of creolin to one gallon of water. This should be applied as a spray or with a sponge. It should not be rubbed in as it is likely to cause irritation of the skin.

Northwest School of Agriculture

Fifty students of the Northwest School of Agriculture completed home projects this season, under the direction of the school faculty, putting into practice principles and methods taught in the agricultural school. Samples of products from these projects were shown at the second annual home project exhibit held at the school last week and were on display in Crookston Thursday and Friday. The exhibit included samples of potatoes, corn, pure seed grain, and farm tractor cost records, canning, sewing and other lines of domestic science work.

Wallace Miller, a junior from Roseau, showed the best samples of potatoes, winning the blue ribbon in competition with eleven other student potato growers. The best corn was shown by Albert Kepocky, senior from Angus, who grew several acres of Gehu Flint this summer and selected his seed according to methods studied in the agronomy department. Carl Larson, Crookston, showed the winning sample of pure grain from his field of certified Marquis. Marie Strickler, Euclid, had the best display of canned fruit and vegetables; Helen Gibbons, Crookston, best canned meat, and Adele Raymond, Red Lake Falls, best exhibit in the preserving project. Other prize winners at the annual show were Walter Luchau, Gary; Jesse Anderson, Erie; Earl Anderson, Crookston; Andrew Wardberg, McIntosh; Arnold Swanson, Hallock; Robert Davids, Bagley; Anna Polecki, Greenbush; Lydia Miller, Roseau, [illegible] tree, Bronson.

Ole Landro spent a few days at Grygla last week. While in that vicinity he also attended the funeral of Mrs. M. Teigland, which took place Tuesday of last week. Mrs. Teigland was 59 years of age at the time of her death, which was a relief after several years of suffering from cancer. She was among the early settlers in the Grygla section, having lived with her family in Benville township for a number of years. Deceased leaves to mourn her death, her husband and ten children.

ral Doctors Handicapped Says Minn. University Dean

mall rural communities that are thout the services of a physician ould form a co-operative association some similar organization through ich they can assure a practitioner ough income to live on satisfactorily Dean E. P. Lyon of the medical llege, University of Minnesota, said cently in an address delivered at w York University. He recommended establishment of community spitals.

The seeming scarcity of physicians said is rather an uneven distribution of physicians. Young graduates medical colleges hesitate to go to untry places unless they can have ore such proper aids to practice as spitals and laboratories.

Dean Lyon said that state aid to all communities in obtaining the rvice to a physician would be as logical as state aid in the maintenance of their schools.

Student internship in a hospital, a feature of medical education in which the University of Minnesota is a recognized leader was discussed by D. Lyon, who also described the Minnesota plan of requiring a year's internship after graduation before the medical diploma is awarded. Minnesota established this requirement first among all medical colleges in 1916. It since has been followed by 11 other medical colleges.

He advocated a liberal curriculum, having a fair amount of electric work, and showed how such a course had stimulated individuality, responsibility and research at the University of Minnesota.

The University of New York, before which Dean Lyon spoke, is not a teaching body, but is the name for the educational department of the state of New York.

Quick Action Needed

Claims for vocational training must be filed with U. S. Veterans Bureau by December 16th, 1922. Any world veteran with a disability traceable to service, which prevents him from following his pre-war occupation, may receive free books and tuition while training for a new vocation best suited to his disability and his qualifications, together with "maintenance pay" varying from $70 to $170, according to the number of his dependents. Get in touch with the nearest Legion Post Service officer or the U. S. Veterans Bureau, Minneapolis, before December 16th.

Veterans' Hospital May be Established at Crookston

It is very probable that Crookston may be selected as location for a United States veterans Bureau hospital in the near future, according to an announcement made in a recent issue of the Crookston Times. Dr. H. A. Burns, a representative of the veterans bureau with headquarters at St. Paul, was in Crookston to investigate the advantages of having a hospital will be established there. Thief River Falls is also being considered and efforts are being made to secure this city for the location of the hospital. However, according to reports it is most likely that the Queen City be selected.

If the present plans of the bureau go through and Crookston is chosen as the location of the hospital center, a medical staff of local physicians will be selected to care for the various cases which will come to their attention. Ex-service men from all over the Northwestern part of Minnesota will come here for medical aid. It is estimated that an average of from two to seven service men will come in each day for medical attention. All of the minor ailments and cases of short duration will be treated here. The district, of which Crookston may be the center, comprises the territory from Barnesville north to the Canadian boundry and from Grand Forks east to Bemidji. Service men in this large district [illegible] come to Crookston [illegible] medical treatment [illegible] to Fargo system of establishing hospital units is being considered by the United States Veterans Bureau [illegible] the fact the service needing medical attention which is the center [illegible] district in which they [illegible] ent the Northwest is divided into districts regardless of [illegible] go, the center of the section of [illegible] Crookston and northwestern Minnesota is a part, also is the point to which service men in part of Montana must go to receive treatment. The new plan is that the larger districts be divided into smaller ones and according to state lines. This will make it more convenient for service men needing medical attention. Crookston men who have been going to Fargo frequently will probably hereafter be able to secure treatment here.

Rains Delay Activities in Woods; Workers in Demand

Heavy late fall rains and damp snowstorms falling on water soaked tote roads forcing into idleness high salaried woodsmen and ambitious piece workers and delaying movement of corded pulpwood posts and ties to the anxiously awaiting railroads have delayed woods operators who originally faced a very busy season, it is reported in Duluth.

Foresters on a recent inspection trip into the north state country found the woods work seriously retarded by the unfavorable weather which not only has interfered with preparing the products for shipment but has prevented moving them to the logging railroads. The isolated swamps, across which the weighty material has to be hauled by teams of horses, have been late in freezing and what ordinarily are slippery skidways at this time of the year are soggy stretches of impassable roadway.

The belated first snowfall covered an unfrozen ground, making conditions even worse. Now, operators are hopeful that the present light covering of snow will melt so that the ground will freeze hard before the heavy early winter fall arrives.

Despite the unfavorable weather which forced the woods workers into idleness for the greatest part of several weeks, thousands of carloads of posts, pulpwood and ties, have been cut and stacked along newly cut roads.

Help is not so plentiful as in recent years, although operators are offering attractive wages. In some instances wages are double those paid last winter. Still there are many camps operating with limited crews. Ordinary woodsmen are offered as high as $50 a month and board with what amounts to virtually an eight-hour day.

The operators themselves are not the only ones concerned about the unseasonal weather, for piece workers who have to pay board just the same when not working also have been hard hit.

Attend Funeral of Relatives

Olaf Neset, Gunder [illegible] and daughters, Carrie and Anna, were at Bemidji Saturday to attend the funeral of Mr. Ankhus's brother, Knut W. Mr. Ankhus passed away at the Fairview hospital at Minneapolis as the result of a stroke following an operation for appendicitis. His brother Gunder, and Olaf Neset of Thief River Falls were at his bedside when death occurred. Deceased who was born in Satesdalen, Norway, 50 years ago, made his home at Bemidji the greater part of his life while in this country, until about two years ago when he entered a hospital in Anoka, his health beginning to fail. Mr. Ankhus was a widower and had no children, but is survived by two sisters, Mrs. McGrath of Emarado, N. D., and Mrs. Olaf Dale of Edmonton, Alberta, and two brothers, Tallak of McIntosh and Gunder of this city.

Modernized Mary

Mary drove her little flivver
In a way to make you shiver;
And when upon the gas she stept,
You saw that she was no adept.
Mary in the churchyard lies,
'Neath green trees and sunny skies.
Her car refused to climb a pole,
That's why she's now in such a hole.

Buddy of the Legion

Buddy of the Legion, and every other buddy who did his bit in the big fight, sit down right now and ask yourself, these questions:—

Are you carrying your Government insurance? By passing a medical examination and paying two months premiums, you may reinstate your War Insurance.

Have you received the sixty dollars bonus due you on discharge?

Did you receive your full travel pay of five cents per mile from place of discharge to your home?

If you lost your luggage, has it been returned, or have you filed a claim for reimbursement?

If you are suffering from a disability incurred in or aggravated by your war service:

Are you receiving compensation?
Do you need medical attention?
Have you applied for vocational training?

If you made allotments, were they they paid to the proper person in the proper amounts?

Did you receive your liberty bonds? Or if not completely paid for, was your money refunded?

Have you had your discharge recorded with the County Register of Deeds? By having this done you will always be sure that a record of your service may be promptly secured if the original discharge is lost.

If your discharge is lost and not registered, you cannot obtain a duplicate discharge, but you can secure a Certificate In Lieu of Discharge, which states that you once possessed an honorable discharge from the service.

Do you know of any relatives of deceased former service men who have not received back pay, allotments, or allowances?

Do you know of any dependents of deceased former service men who are not receiving compensation?

Do you desire to file on government land? You have preferred rights in the matter of living and will be given credit for the time of your service, not to exceed two years.

Have you enrolled in the American Legion and thru it endeavored to help your country, your buddies and your home town? If you are a Legionaire, have you asked your non-Legion buddies to help make the organization greater than ever in 1922? Now is the opportune time to enroll them. If any buddy is not receiving the full benefits enumerated above, he owes it to himself and his family immediately to see the nearest Legion Post Service Officer or write to the U. S. Veterans Bureau, Keith-Plaza Building, Minneapolis for the necessary blanks

Sophs Entertain Freshmen

As a result of the Prowler campaign, the Sophomores were compelled to give the Freshmen a party. In order to live up to their reputation, after convincing the Freshmen of their ability in campaigning, they got together and arranged to have this party on Saturday evening at eight o'clock. At that hour the Lincoln high school was a scene of merriment for the two classes. The evening was pleasantly spent in games and stunts.

The rooms were prettily decorated in brown and gold, the class colors. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, and punch was served about ten o'clock.

The party broke up with "Home Sweet Home which was played shortly before eleven. Both classes have reported an enjoyable evening.

The contest between the Juniors and Seniors ended with the majority for the Juniors. As yet, the Seniors have made no definite plans for their party. It will be given some time between Thanksgiving and Christmas. The Seniors say they are contented that they lost. The Juniors are to be complimented on their efficient campaign and their victory, and we hope that this is but a stepping stone to what they will do next year.

Why the Standard Oil Company's (Indiana) Business Is Successful

CONSUMERS buy petroleum products from the Company which serves them best. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has succeeded notably because it has given notable service.

The desire to render maximum service to the community has actuated this Company in every one of its undertakings over a long period of years. Proof that the service is being adequately rendered lies in the Company's sales sheets.

Lines of efficiency radiate from the Board of Directors through every department of the organization to the ultimate consumer.

First on the efficiency chart comes quality of product. To maintain this quality there has been organized modern laboratories where every product is chemically tested for the service it is designed to render. High quality once achieved is made a standard from which deviation is never permitted.

Sales and distribution also are organized to produce maximum results at minimum expense. This assures the consumer a dependable supply, and it guarantees that when he buys a Standard Oil Company (Indiana) product he is paying only a fair and equitable price for which he receives full value.

Every factor entering into the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) business, from the purchase of crude, its transportation to the Company's refineries, its manufacture into a large number of useful products, its distribution through an intricate network of main and sub-storage depots, tank wagons, and service stations, is developed with a single eye to serving the public.

Experience has proved that the most profitable business accrues to that organization which serves the public best.

Evolution of Education

The next great step in human progress will be in the field of education, is the opening statement of an article entitled "Painless Education," in the October issue of Current Opinion.

How many doubting Thomases will contradict this statement can only be conjectured; they will tell us that education has never seen a higher stage of development than that of today, that education has never been so widespread as it is today; and that enormous sums of money are spent upon it annually.

All this is true; but is that positive proof that the millenium has been reached in this field. True, education has never seen a higher stage of development; but is there not room for improvement? Is it not possible that some of the theories which are accepted as fundamental today may, in the eyes of tomorrow, develop gross errors? And true, education has never been more widespread than it is today; but has the limit been reached? Are there not still not [illegible] millions of people whose very conditions cry out their need for more complete education? And it is also true that huge sums of money are spent annually on our schools; but are we quite positive that the highest plane of efficiency for each dollar spent has reached.

We read further in the article that "The remarkable school development" of the last few years "are founded on an idea that the more easily we learn a thing the better we remember it, and the more useful it is to us subsequently as a part of the working reference library each one of us has stored away in his mind."

"It used to be said that you had to study hard and disagreeable things in order to exercise the mind, just as you might chew away on a bone to strenghten the muscles of the jaw—[illegible] that were difficult and tedious, it was supposed to give him a power of concentration [illegible] would last him all the rest of his life."

"Instead of going after the child with a birch rod to make him concentrate on his lesson, the modern teacher goes after the lesson, determined to make it so interesting in and of itself that the child can't keep his mind off it whether he wants to or not." How many of the pupils of high or grade school can see the teachers standpoint in this? Most of them think of lessons as disagreeable things that must be done; and yet perhaps some of them can feel a different atmosphere in the different classrooms—in one a subconscious feeling of discipline, and in another a feeling that something new is to be brought up. This is caused by the different attitudes of different teachers.

"Humankind is to be rescued from the follies and miseries that now afflict it," the article continues, "salvation must come by education; and education is not good enough to day, despite the enormous sums we spend on it."

Why Do They Leave?

Only 13 of every 100 children entering the first grade of the public schools remain to complete twelfth grade, or the last year of high school. Of 100 children entering the first grade 86 reach the fifth, 73 the sixth, 64 the seventh, 58 the eighth, 32 the first year of high school, 23 the second year, 17 the third year, and 14 the fourth year with 13 remaining to graduate.

The American public school has grown piecemeal as the country has been built up, but has not kept pace with the vast sweep of progress that has been made in science, industry, and agriculture. It is no criticism of the great constructive accomplishments of education to recognize frankly its shortcomings and deficiencies. Our educational system can not be considered adequated until it has laid the foundation for right living, for health and physical vigor; and until it has provided for every American child a competent and well-trained teacher.—William B. Owen, President of the Chicago Normal College and of the National Education Association.

Why We Maintain Schools?

Schools are established and maintained in this community to make better citizens—citizens who will have a worthy character, good health and the willingness to accomplish the big things which are waiting to be done.

Schools are not maintained to supplant either the home or church but to supplement the work of the home or church in making better and more useful citizens.

Health is a very important phase of our educational system. The pupil is taught from kindergarten thru his Senior year in high school to safeguard his health. The school nurse is an indispensible person who looks after the welfare of each and every individual.

Under our system students are taught how to develop their ability and talents so that in time to come they can give to posterity that which they are receiving.

T. R. F. SCHOOL PLANT REVIEWED BY BUILDINGS AND DEPARTMENTS

5 BUILDINGS HOUSE 1500 CHILDREN; COMPLETE NORMAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT PART OF SCHOOL SYSTEM

OUR SCHOOL PLANT

Thief River Falls has a school system worthy of a city of a larger population and wider dimensions.

This city can boast of six schools, namely the Northrop, Knox, Washington, Central, Mechanic Arts, and Lincoln High School.

The Washington, Northrop and Knox accomodate children attending the grades from one to six. The Central cares for the seven departmentalized seventh and eighth grade departments. About four hundred students are enrolled in the Lincoln High School, while the Mechanic Arts, an adjunct to the High School includes the students taking up Industrial training and Gas and Automotive Engineering.

The Washington School, a seven room building in the southern part of the city care for the children in the first six grades from the third ward and the southern part of the first and second ward. The Teacher Training department of the high School also has its quarters in this building.

The Northrop School located in the northern part of the city is a new ten room building accommodating the children of grades one to six from the northern part of the first and second wards.

The Knox School, the newest of the buildings, a fourteen room structure located on the East side of the river cares for all the children of the first grades in the fourth ward.

The value of the buildings, sites and equipment is $290,000 while the annual cost of maintaing the schools is approximately $105,000.00. While the cost in actual dollars and cents may seem great, it is infinitely cheaper than what the support of an illiterate community would be.

DEPARTMENTS

Our school system is divided into several departments. First there are the two kindergarten departments. One is held in the morning in the Knox school building for the children on the east side of the river and the other during the afternoon in the Central school for those on the west side. Only those who were five before Nov. 7, 1922 were allowed to enter for work during the first semester and those who will be five before March 27, 1923 may enter for work the second semester.

Next are the grade schools. School for those pupils who are in grades one to six inclusive, is held in the Northrop and Knox. Central school is given over to the seventh and eighth grades.

Above the Kindergarten and graded schools is the High school. Those who enroll there must present a county diploma, certificate of graduation from the eighth grade or State High School Board certificates in Grammar, United States History, Arithmetic and Geography.

Those who have not completed their eighth grade work are permitted to begin their high school work but are not classed as Freshmen. Those who have three credits are classed as Sophomores, those with seven as Juniors, and those with eleven as Seniors.

Our school system also consists of a complete normal training department. Those who are eighteen before August 31 following their graduation may take this course during their Senior year if they have at least 12 credits which include three years of English, American History, and Civics. Those who take a post graduate course in this department must have at least sixteen credits in order to enter.

NORMAL DEPARTMENT

Thief River Falls High School may justly be proud of its Normal Training Department. It is one of the finest systems of its kind in the state. Only the better high schools, meeting certain requirements established by the state, may maintain a Teachers Training department.

The Entrance requirements are very strict. The applicant must have reached her eighteenth birthday before the end of the term. Twelve high school credits including American history, civics, and three years of English are necessary to gain admittance to the department.

The course has been out-lined by the State and consists of a review of common school subjects such as the principles and methods of teaching, comprise a part of the work. In addition music, current events, nature study, drawing, and penmanship are taught.

One hundred and twenty hours of practice teaching during the year are required of each student. At present the girls are practicing in the grades. Next spring they will begin their practice in the rural school, which will eventually comprise their field of activity. The graduates of this department receive first grade teachers' certifications which entitle them to teach in the rural schools.

This year there are twenty-eight prospective rural teachers nine of whom are post graduates. They receive their instruction from Miss Kirk, head of the department, and Miss Stapelton.

HOME ECONOMICS

The high school department of Home Economics is one of the best departments established in the school, judging for the demand for the course. The enrollment goes to show that we have the one department after all to satisfy the desire of homemaking.

At present there are four classes of sophomores and freshmen. Eighteen can be enrolled at one time for sewing, while there are accomodations for sixteen in the cooking room. The latter is adequately equipped. It has sixteen stoves equipped with ovens, and it has long, neatly kept tables, with drawers for the students' cooking utensils.

The students are given instructions in serving meals, including the correct ways of setting tables, and the proper dishes to serve on various occasions.

Class periods are devoted to mock services, the girls assuming the role of hostesses, servants and guests. They are graded and critized on their method of receiving guests, the serving of the meal, and table manners.

This department was founded with the school, and has grown so that at present the demand for the course far exceeds the accomodations.

Junior High also is given an opportunity to take Domestic Science. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons the pupils of the eighth grade receive instruction in cooking; and on Mondays and Fridays, those of the seventh grade take sowing.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

The Central School houses the Seventh and Eighth grades, and the Kindergarten department. It is located on Fourth street and LaBree avenue.

The seventh grade is in four rooms up stairs and the Eighth grade and Kindergarten on the first floor. The Kindergarten has afternoon sessions.

It is always a pleasure to observe the order and the regular work in this building.

The total enrollment of the Seventh and Eighth grades is 246 and there are seven teachers. The enrollment of the Kindergarten is 41, under the supervision of two teachers.

The Seventh and Eighth grades are classified in groups—Seventh B the group just beginning the seventh grade this year, and Seventh A those who plan to be promoted at the end of first semester. Eighth B those just beginning the eighth grade and eighth A those planning to graduate by the end of the first semester.

A boys Glee club has been organized in this school under the direction of Miss Maude Johnson. This is the first Junior High glee club and is making wonderful progress.

KNOX SCHOOL

The Knox school, built in 1921, is a great improvement to this city. It is a large building, having a large auditorium and fourteen rooms. It can accommodate five hundred and sixty pupils.

At present it employs eight teachers. The number of pupils now enrolled is two hundred and eighty-nine.

In the lower grades special emphasis is put on reading and phonics and health education.

Upper grades are putting particular stress on reading, arithmetic, health and civics.

Because reading is the foundation for all subjects, special attention is placed on it all through the grades in all our elementary schools.

FRESHMEN BANNER PROWLER SALESMEN

459 Prowlers were sold in the three day sales campaign which was launched Monday morning and closed Wednesday evening of last week. The freshmen and sophomores turned in 277 of those, which proves better than the most elucidating exposition, the success of business manager Halvorson's plan of sales contests between the classes. In the freshmen-sophomore contest the freshmen won out by 7 subscriptions, returning a total of 142 to the sophomore's 135. The seniors were likewise humbled by the juniors, 97 to 85.

This is by far the most successful sales campaign ever put on by a senior class at the Lincoln. As alumni subscriptions have not yet come in from out of town, it is expected that the printing order will be for over 500 books.

The remarkable feature of the [illegible] was the large percentage [illegible] lower classes. Instead of the seniors heading the list, as might have been expected, the freshmen come first and the seniors last.

Millicent Sweger, '26, has the honor of being the champion Prowler salesman at the Lincoln. By securing "promises to buy" from the time the contest was announced until the drive was opened she rolled up a total of 58 subscriptions by Wednesday evening. Her nearest competitor in the freshman class was Elmyra Langseth with 27, and in the entire school, Malorie Hoppe, '25, with 33.

The sophomores discharged their obligations as losers in the contest by entertaining the freshmen at an informal party at the high school Saturday evening.

Te seniors will give a party for the juniors some time after Thanksgiving vacation.

WHY THE HIGH SCHOOL TAX?

Assessed Valuation Low Compared With Number of School Children

By I. T. Simley

The schools of Thief River Falls are doing good work. They are well up to standard and will compare very favorably with the schools of her class. They are not so good that we can afford to allow them to drop to an inferior plane. No one would stand for that. Neither does it mean that there is no room for improvement. With the means at our command, however, this is not the time to speak of improvement by way of innovation. The school tax rate is too high, and unless we can look to the coming legislature, there is no prospect for relief. What is the situation then? What is the reason for the present condition?

Let us first consider what it is that determines the school tax rate. There are two factors that enter in: First, the amount of money needed to run the schools—and you simply can't run schools without money—and, secondly, the assessed valuation upon which the levy is spread. If the valuation is low, in other words, if there is relatively little wealth to tax, the rate will necessarily be high. If the assessed valuation were doubled the tax rate would be cut in two and yet the same levy would be raised. Let us apply this to our situation, School District 18, Pennington County.

Last year I sent the forty schools in Minnesota that were most nearly our own size information about our schools as to enrollment, teaching force, assessed valuation, tax rate, and salary costs per pupil for the first semester. In turn I asked for a similar information from them, including a reply blank and specifying the procedure to be followed so as to insure that the same methods would be used in arriving at results. The following twenty-six schools replied. Not every one, however, submitted complete data: Albert Lea, Benson Alexandria, Chatfield, Detroit, Fairmount, Crookston, Faribault, Fergus Falls, Kenyon, Little Falls, Long Prairie, Luverne, Marshall, Madison, Milaca, Montevideo, Morris, Princeton, Redwood Falls, St. James, Sauk Center, South Saint Paul, Stillwater, Two Harbors, Worthington.

The following facts in regard to Thief River Falls should be kept in mind:

The actual enrollment at the time was 1482. There was an average of $1212 in personal and real property back of each of these children. The costs per pupil for the first semester tax rate was 61.7 mills. The salary were $14.27, $22.41, and $34.81 in kindergarten, grades and high school respectively.

Now, then, how do we compare with other schools listed? 4 schools are larger: Albert Lea, Fergus Falls, South Saint Paul, and Two Harbors.

Only two schools have less wealth back of each child in school, namely Princeton and Milaca. Those coming next in rank from the bottom are Chatfield and Detroit with $1418 and $1531 respectively the average approximately $2,000.

Five schools had as high or higher tax rates, Chatfield with 61 mills, Detroit with 50.5, Long Prairie with 56.6, Milaca with 85.5, and Princeton with 54.9.

The average salary costs per child in the grades for the eighteen schools that reported on the item were $24.16 and in high school $41.67.

What have we discovered? That the costs per child in Thief River Falls is less than the average and yet the tax rate is higher than the average. Why? Because there is less wealth back of child to tax.

What is the remedy? There must be further legislation tending to equalize the cost of education throughout the state. The rich districts of the state, who can afford it, must keep the poorer districts, for the purpose of education is to make citizens, and this school should be the work and responsibility not of individual school districts but of the state.

Facts and Comment on High School By the Principal

By M. P. Rapacz

There is nothing that is more valuable in creating the proper kind of spirit among the students, teachers, and parents than a good understanding of just what is going on in our schools. With that purpose in mind I wish to submit the following figures and comparisons with some brief explanations and comments.

Total enrollment at the end of the second period, November 24, 1922.

	Boys	Girls	Total
Freshmen	44	87	131
Sophomores	35	80	115
Juniors	25	42	67
Seniors	23	45	68
Post Graduates	0	10	10
Total	127	264	391

Actual enrollment	352	378
Average daily attendance	333	359
Percentage of attendance	92.4	96.6
Percentage of failure in all subjects	8.9	5.8
Number on the honor roll	23	27
Perfect attendance	146	158
Cases of tardiness	188	98
Discontinued school during this period	7	9
End of Second Six Weeks	1921	1922
Total enrollment	369	391
Actual enrollment	352	378
Average daily attendance	333	362
Percentage of attendance	95.3	95.9
Percentage of failures in all subjects	10.5	7.4
Number on the honor roll		32
Perfect attendance	162	182
Perfect attendance for both 1 & 2 periods	109	98
Cases of tardiness	129	142
Discontinued school during this period	10	4

Our total enrollment on November 24 this year was 391 compared with 369 at the sa[illegible] year ago. [illegible] received nearly twice as many non-resident freshmen as we did one year ago. To take care of these extra pupils the board of education had to engage another teacher of freshmen subjects at the beginning of the sixth week.

Our average daily attendance this year has been 29 pupils per day more than the average for the first semester one year ago, and the percentage of attendance for the first two periods has been excellent. With an attendance of 96.6% for the first six weeks and 95.9% for the second six weeks, the students and parents deserve much credit for cooperating with the teachers. Such an attendance record means only about four absentees per hundred pupils each day. You will note that the number of cases of tardiness has decreased considerably over a year ago, but here is one place where we would still appreciate a little more cooperation from both students and parents. A considerable number of cases of tardiness of course were unavoidable, many being due to pupils coming in long distances from the country over bad roads. On the other hand, there are a few students who have been tardy several times each period without good reasons, while in the case of several other students the tardiness has been due to the fact that the student could not leave the boarding house early enough to get to school on time.

The excellent attendance has been reflected to a great extent in the grade of work done this year as compared with one year ago. The percentage of failures being 5.8% and 7.4% as compared with 8.9% and 10.5% for corresponding periods a year ago. 5.8% means that there are slightly less than six failures in every 100 grades issued which compares very favorably with any high school. In fact many school men consider that conditions are quite ideal where the percentage does not exceed twelve out of every 100 grades issued. Judging from these figures the student who is failing as well as his or her parent can see that there [illegible] some [illegible] too many failures are given by the teachers.

We feel that the students and parents have taken a very keen interest in our high school thus far this year. This is evidenced by the fine atendance as well as by the support we have received in other activities, particularly football and the "Prowler" sales campaign.

It may also be of interest to note that thus far only thirteen students have discontinued school here since the beginning of the year. Six of which number moved away, two left because of illness, two left because they disliked school work of any kind, one was married, one gave no reason, while still another was not qualified to continue the normal training course.

In conclusion may I ask the students, teachers and parents for the continuance of their help and cooperation so that we may make this a banner year for Lincoln High School.

PRESIDENT HARDING PROCLAIMS AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

Dec. 3-9 Set Aside at Instigation of American Legion; Visiting Days and Speeches at T. R. F. Schools

The week of Dec. 3 to 9 has been set aside by Presidential and Gubernatorial proclamation as American Education week, at the instigation of the American Legion. The American Legion has for its chief aim the Americanization of present and future generations, and consider the schools of the nation the most effective agency for Americanization.

The week will be observed more by publicity on education than by formal exercises. In some schools and localities however, impressive programs are planned. Thief River Falls schools will have visiting days, and speakers of prominence thruout the week.

The purpose of Education Week is to further American education and bring the need of education before the minds of the people. The deficiencies in American education were glaringly brought to the front during the war, by the large number of men of draft age who were classed as illiterate.

The Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior at Washington has issued a bulletin giving statistics on illiteracy, money expended on education, the percentage of our Federal expenditures used for education, and statements by prominent men on the importance of progress in education.

These statistics show that although America is the richest nation in the world, she ranks eleventh in education. Tests given to over a million recruits for the army in 1917 showed that 25.3% were unable to "read and understand newspapers and write letters home." Less than 1% of our Federal disbursements are expended for educational purposes. Franklin K. Lane states that if the productive labor value of an illiterate is $.50 per day than that of the educated man or woman, the country is losing $850,000,000 a year thru illiteracy.

The American Legion feels that illiteracy and lack of thorough education is the greatest enemy of American civilization, and it is therefore to encourage education and bring the facts before the people that this influential body has taken the initiative in sponsoring American Education Week.

President's Proclamation

This issue of the Progress is devoted almost entirely to "Education Week." According to the proclamation printed below, issued by President Harding, the week of December third to ninth is officially designated as "National Education Week."

Following is the President's proclamation:

The ideals of democratic government and democratic education were planted simultaneously in our country. The fathers rightly believed that only a people trained to vision of public needs and duties could develop and maintain the institutions of popular government. The system of universal education, established in the beginning, has developed with the country and become one of the characteristic features of our life. In it we have laid the foundation of that system of American culture which has enabled us to absorb and assimilate millions who have come to us from many countries, bringing the traditions of widely varying institutions.

In order that we may keep in mind the need constantly to improve our educational system, it is proposed that the week of December 3-9, inclusive, be set aside for special observance as American Education Week. It is recommended to the Governors of the States that they cooperate with the educational and civic authorities of their commonwealths to make the week a period for revival of interest in the broad work of national education.

It is gratifying to know that in a time when public burdens have lain very heavy upon the people there has been everywhere a determined purpose to maintain education unimpaired, in order that the coming generation may be equipped, regardless of sacrifices in the present, for the increasing responsibilities which it must bear.

"Without vision the people perish." Without education, there can be little vision. Of education it may be said that "It is twice blest; it blesseth him that gives and him that takes." It will be greatly worth the effort if, as an incident to the observance of Education Week, we can impress this thought upon the young manhood and womanhood of the Nation and redirect their interest and patriotic zeal to the idea of making a proper contribution to educational work. It is regrettable that so few young men and women, equiped for such service, are nowadays disposed to give their time and talents to teaching. Education needs their young eagerness, zeal and enthusiasm. There is no school of discipline more effective than that in which the teacher goes to school. We could do no greater service than by convincing those young men and women who have enjoyed educational opportunities, that they owe a reasonable share of their time and energies to teaching.

The strength and security of the Nation will always rest in the intelligent body of its people. Our education should implant conceptions of public duty and private obligation broad enough to envisage the problems of a greatly distraught world. More than anything else, men and women need the capacity to see with clear eye and contemplate with open, unprejudiced mind, the issues of these times. Only through a properly motivated and generously inspired process of education can this be accomplished.

In view, then, of these and many other considerations, I hereby proclaim the week of December 3-9 as American Education Week, recommending to the appropriate national, state and local authorities that they give their cordial support and cooperation to making its observance inspirational and beneficial. Civic organizations and religious bodies may render special service by their cooperation; and particularly it is recommended that parents enlist themselves in behalf of closer understanding between the school and the home, [illegible] the purpose of mutual helpfulness.

IN CONSIDERATION AND WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

DONE in the City of Washington, this 20th day of November, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-two, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Forty-seventh.

WARREN G. HARDING.

School Laws and Regulations

In discussing education it would be well to remind ourselves of some of the laws and facts governing our schools. Perhaps we do not realize times we really stop to think, that in our system here in Thief River Falls we have rules and regulations which must be considered. Let us, therefore, during Educational Week bring these to our mind.

First we have the State Compulsory Attendance Law. This requires that all children between eight and sixteen years of age mentally and physically fit must attend school every day school is in session. The law must be and is strictly enforced.

A change was made in regard to text books two years ago. In the grades these are still furnished by the school, but in high school students must buy their own books. This became necessary because the school became so large that the financial burden of buying so many books was too heavy for the community. A large number of high school students come from other school districts, and the people of this district cannot be expected to supply them with text books. The books are sold at the lowest price possible and are strictly cash purchases.

Report cards setting forth the kind of work that is being done by the pupil are sent to the parents every six weeks. The parents should examine carefully the record made by the [illegible] Special attention should be given to the rating in application and department. By doing this the parent is able to see how his child is progressing at school. Discussion with the teacher or principal concerning the child who is doing unsatisfactory work often results in a change for the better. All pupils from the fifth grade and up should do some studying at home. The time to be spent will increase with each year, and varies from thirty minutes to one and a half or two hours. The parents should see that their child gets his lessons and thus cooperate with the teacher in order that the child may get the greatest possible benefit out of his or her schooling.

Lastly, some may ask, what is done with the school funds, the gross receipts from affairs carried on under school auspices or obtained by school organizations? They are required to be deposited with the superintendent's secretary who has been designated the official treasurer. The expenditure of the funds is entirely in the hands of the several organizations but the purpose of the plan is to center responsibility for the safe keeping of school moneys.

Much more could be said by way of general information concerning the school but these mentioned will give some idea as to the regulations concerning school attendance, text books, reports, cooperation between school and home and the checking of school funds secured by any organization.

General Teachers' Meeting

A general teacher's meeting was held in the high school assembly last Tuesday to discuss the diphtheria epidemic and the observation of National Education Week. Dr. H. W. Froehlich, president of the school board and school doctor spoke on the diphtheria situation, explaining it and urging all the teachers to cooperate in every possible way to prevent the disease from spreading.

"How to Observe Education Week" was also considered and a committee, consisting of the principals and supervisors, chosen to make definite arrangements.

Six Week Marks

There will be an equal amount of grief and joy among the high students Wednesday, when they receive their report cards for the second six weeks period.

"If I asked you an answer would you question me?"

POULTRY NOTES

Hatch chicks early. They make the good winter layers.

Baby chicks should be encouraged to eat as much bulk as possible.

One of the best animal foods, both to induge egg production and promote growth, is cut fresh bone.

Cold, damp land is no place for poultry; that which dries soonest after a rain is the best land on which to raise fowls.

Wheat bran is especially valuable for feathering out the baby chicks, and, properly used, it will grow feathers faster than anything else. It is advisable to keep it in the dry form before the chicks all the time.

BOWEL TROUBLE IN POULTRY

One Good Way to Prevent Ailments Is Not to Feed Anything Solid for Seventy-Two Hours.

"To prevent white diarrhea and bowel trouble, chicks should not be fed any solid feeds for at least 72 hours after hatching," says Harry Embleton, head of the poultry department of Oklahoma A. and M. college. "During this period, however, they should receive sour, skim milk when taken from the incubator, and this should be kept before them all the time. In addition to the milk they should receive some fine sand which acts as a grit.

"When beginning to feed solid feeds, feeding should be little and often. A commercial chick feed scattered in a finely cut litter accompanied with some rolled oats or johnny cake or a mixture of these feeds with hard-boiled eggs makes a very good feed for starting young chicks. Care should be taken not to overfeed them."

Bumble Foot Remedy

This trouble is an abscess on the bottom of the foot caused by a splinter in the foot or jumping off a high roost. If the roosts are at fault they should be remedied.

Tie a cord tightly around the leg above the foot to control the flow of blood. Open the abscess and thoroughly clean out the core. Disinfect in a dilute solution of tincture of iodine, after which apply a generous dressing of carbolated vaseline and bandage. In two days repeat the dressing of iodine and carbolated vaseline.

LEGISLATIVE BLANK TO BUREAU MEMBERS

Farmers Voting on Agricultural Issues Before Legislature and Congress

A state-wide referendum is being taken by the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation to determine the position of its members on important issues affecting agriculture that are to come before the legislature and Congress.

F. L. French, secretary, has sent to all county directors and other local leaders, a supply of blanks, prepared in the form of a questionaire, which when filled out, will give the Federation, especially its legislative committee, accurate information as to the desires of its membership.

It will take approximately three weeks to complete the referendum. Allowing a week to compile returns, a complete recapitulation will be ready by the time the legislature opens.

The questionaire will be submitted at every local farmers' meeting to be held this month. Each question will be submitted for discussion, after which a vote will be taken and recorded.

The questionaire, which follows closely that submitted to legislative candidates a month ago, is divided into two parts. One deals with questions before the state legislature and the other with issues that will be decided by Congress. Results of the congressional referendum will be sent to the Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The state legislative issues the federation wants to know whether members favor the creation of an investigation body before definite steps are taken to organize a state rural body credit system, as the result of the passage of Amendment No. 1. It also asks for expressions relative to removal of stockholders liability in co-operative associations, continuation of production studies, re-establishment of Minnesota wheat grades, branch banking, farmer credit organizations, limiting tonnage on rural highways, better county agent law, more aid for demonstration work, state educational aid, preservation of natural resources, a state bank guarantee law, state hail insurance law and improved free employment service.

On national issues members are asked for their views relative to forbidding tax-exempt securities, increasing the federal farm loan, restoration to state railroad commissions the power of regulating interstate rates, federal aid for highways, sales tax, longer rediscount periods for loans to farmers, changes in the Esch-Cummins act, repeal of the Adamson law, the St. Lawrence water way project, a truth-in-fabric law, a law against filled milk products, the "Pittsburgh Plus" rate on steel and the Ford proposal to operate the Muscle Shoals project.

Surprised On 89th Birthday

A very pleasant surprise party was given Mrs. Wisck Sunday afternoon it being her 89th birthday. A birthday cake brought by the guests, decked with 89 candles, gave much joy to the old lady, who is still active and happy and goes about helping those who are feeble and sick at the home of the poor. During the summer months she keeps house for one to five people, doing all the work, and spends the winters at the home for the poor. Those who partook in the little surprise were Mrs. H. J. Rustad, Mrs. Severson, Mrs. Geo. Joyce and daughter Minnie, Mrs. Ole Lund, Miss Effie Christianson, and Miss Katherine Jones.

The fortunate citizens should remember the occupants of the poor home and do some little kindness for the old people there and try to make their lives more happy.

Polk County Farmer Arrested For Making Threat to Shoot

Mike Gondik, 45, a farmer of Esther township, Polk county, was taken to Crookston Monday by Chief of Police Harry Gregg who arrested the man on charges that he had threatened to shoot his neighbor, S. Dalen, according to Tuesday's Grand Forks Herald. Gondik is said to be subject to fits of insanity.

At the time of his arrest, a 38-cal. revolver was found on Gondik's person; it was loaded with empty shells.

The alleged threat against the life of Dalen is said to have been made Sunday evening when Gondik, according to the story told the police, appeared at the Dalen home, shouting that he was about to kill Mr. Dalen and other members of the household. The local police office was notified, and Chief Gregg hurried to the scene where he placed Gondik under arrest.

It is said by neighbors that Gondik on other occasions has made threats against the lives of Esther township residents, but that he has not carried them out.

It is expected that Gondik will be arraigned in court today, and that steps may be taken to submit him to a mentality examination.

Likes Pennington Better

Albert Gulbrandson, of Erie, who left for Valhalla, Alberta, about five years ago, has returned with his family to reside in this county again. During the time he lived in the Peace River Valley country he found conditions so unfavorable that he finally decided to move back, even at a loss in the disposing of his property. The soil in that section is very productive and yields large crops but they are often destroyed by early frosts. The farmers are so far from markets that it is sometimes almost impossible to get the grain to the stations and owing to the enormous high freight rates, small returns are received. Mr. Gulbrandson also states that altho conditions are favorable for the raising of stock, very little is realized from it, also due to the cost of transportation. A shipment of eight good cows brought a net return of only $84 and on shipments to Edmonton, which is their best market, the small sum of one cent per pound was realized. Machinery and equipment, on the other hand, is very high priced. The returned settler says he is glad that he is back in Pennington county and expects to resume farming activities on his former farm near Erie.

MANY HERE FOR HEARING ON RED LAKE DRAINAGE

Judges Grindeland and Stanton Hearing Evidence For and Against Drainage Project

Will Probably Take Balance of Week For Great Mass of Evidence to be Presented

Clearwater Hearing Continued to Thursday, December 14 at Court House Here

A large crowd of interested farmers and townspeople are in attendance at the final hearing in the matter of the Red Lake and Red Lake river drainage project which is being held before Judges Grindeland and Stanton.

Adjourn To Auditorium

The court room in the court house proved too small to accomodate the crowd and the meeting was adjourned to the city auditorium. It started at 9 o'clock this afternoon and will undoubtedly continue throughout Friday and Saturday. There appears to be a great mass of information and evidence to be presented and many are for the first time getting a clear understanding of the project and the manner in which it will be carried through if the court grants the petition.

Clearwater Hearing Continued

The final hearing in the Clearwater river project which was set for Monday at Red Lake Falls was continued to Thursday, December 14 at the court house in Thief River Falls.

Pioneer Red Lake Falls Resident Dies At Age of 69

Word was received here Tuesday of the sudden death of F. E. Hunt, pioneer resident of Red Lake Falls, who died at his home Tuesday morning immediately following a paralytic stroke and altho children residing out of town were summoned at once, they did not reach his bedside before he passed away.

Mr. Hunt, who was 69 years of age at the time of his death, had been a resident of Red Lake Falls for a period of over 40 years, having come to this section in the early pioneering days. He conducted the first store and post office in Red Lake Falls, and it is with a distinct feeling of sorrow that friends of the old pioneer hear of his sudden departure. Mr. Hunt was also at one time connected with a hardware store in this city and was in the hardware business at Red Lake Falls for several years until he sold out to his son and retired from business life.

Deceased is survived by his widow, three daughters, Rebecca of Red Lake Falls, Lucy of Sauk Center, Mrs. J. E. Argue of Seattle, Wash., and three sons, Sam and William of Red Lake Falls, and P. Edward Hunt of this city. Mrs. Hunt left Tuesday afternoon for Red Lake Falls, while her husband, who was out of town, arrived there in the evening.

Postoffice Department to Redeem War Savings

Postal workers will have an added burden in addition to handling the Christmas mail this year because of the extra work involved in redeeming War Savings certificates for the Treasury department, which fall due on January 1, 1922.

More than two and a half carloads of paper are required for the printing of fifteen million cards which are to go through the mail to certificate holders urging them to redeem their certificates in advance or to exchange them for Treasury Savings certificates.

In addition, six million forms have been printed for distribution among postmasters and for use as interim receipts in exchange for War Savings certificates pending the arrival of funds to redeem them.

Five million more forms printed for the use of certificate holders who wish to exchange their War Savings certificates for Treasury Savings certificates.

The redemption of the certificates will mean not only a great deal more work for postal clerks and in the smaller offices the postmasters, but will add considerable bulk to the mails during the holiday season when it already is at its maximum.

Ex-Service Men Find Work

Washington, Dec. 1.—The Veterans' Bureau announces that their unemployment agency, which places rehabilitated ex-service men, has functioned so efficiently that numerically there are but very few ex-service men who have graduated from their vocational training that are not placed. In Pennsylvania and Delaware only one man is unemployed. In Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana only three graduates of the vocational training work are still to be placed. The only men unemployed in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan are those who will not accept employment in the trade for which they have been trained.

Bemidji Mill Closes Long Sawing Season

The longest sawing season in the history of the plant was closed last week when the Crookston Lumber company mill No. 1 at Bemidji completed its operations for the year. Conditions were very favorable for a prolonged season this year. Work in the planing mill will continue all winter according to present plans of the company.

The mill, and other departments affected by the mill, employed about 200 men.

Three logging camps are now being operated by the Crookston Lumber company a short distance from Blackduck. At these three camps 350 men are now employed and another 100 men will likely be added within the next ten days. These camps will operate until April or May, according to the present plans.

The demand for lumber is now considered fair, and general lumber conditions are much better than they were a year ago, states Mr. Lted, general manager. During the past ten years the transportation service has been much improved, at least as far as the local mill is concerned.

General lumber reports are optimistic, although the car shortage has had its effect at times. Retailers are now, as a rule, getting along with short stocks and will not begin their spring buying until after the first of the new year. This usually is the case, since the majority of the retailers desire to wait until after taking inventory before ordering their new stocks for the spring trade.

BROKE PAROLE TEN YEARS AGO, FOUND HERE BY OFFICIAL

Alleged Horse Thief, at Liberty for Decade, Returned to St. Cloud Reformatory

Robert Kolseth of this city was last evening placed under arrest by H. B. Whittier, state parole agent, charged with having violated his parole in 1911. Mr. Whittier left last evening for St. Cloud, having his prisoner in charge.

Kolseth, it is alleged, was sentenced from Red Lake county in 1908 for horse stealing. He served a little over two years in the reformatory at St. Cloud, when he was released on parole. The prison officials placed him in charge of Mahnomen county parties and for a time he made his reports regularly. Finally becoming tired of this procedure, the claim is made that he went west, where he at different times went under the name of Robert Lund and Robert Nelson. It was by the latter name he was known in Thief River Falls.

The accused has a very creditable war record, having served with the American forces. About three years ago he married at Granite Falls, this state, and there are two children. The fact has been established that the wife knew nothing of his past career nor that he at times had traveled under any name but Kolseth.

Mr. Whittier had with him photographs of Kolseth taken at the time of his first arrest and it is understood no attempt was made by the latter to deny his identity. While he has been lost to the state officials for a dozen years they have never given up hunting for him and finally got onto his trail at Crookston.

Valley Holsteins Lead World

The Red River Valley now boasts of Holsteins owned by the Spaulding farm, near Warren, that are fast piling up all the state and world's records for production. J. H. Barg is the herdsman who has placed these records on the cows. C. L. Spaulding is the proprietor of the farm. The latest world's record taken is in the junior 4 year class when Marsell Johanna produced 31,616.2 lbs. of milk in 305 days, equal to 1315.7 lbs. of butter. Another cow in the herd, Nieltje Mercedes DeKol Homeland produced last year 1418.1 lbs. butter in a year, becoming thereby state champion for combined milk and butter production which was second in the United States and third in the world at that time.

Other remarkable animals are to be found in the Spaulding herd which with the prominent Holstein and Guernsey herds of the Red River Valley are placing this section of the state in the forefront in producing high record animals. A recent article on the Spaulding herd was written for the December number of the Northwest Monthly published by the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston. Anyone wishing a copy may secure it by addressing the school. Other Valley herds will be featured in the future in this publication according to an announcement made by Supt. Selvig under whose direction the series of articles on Red River Valley herds are prepared.

Dies From Tuberculosis

Joseph E. Hanson, aged 19, whose home was formerly at Salol, Minn., passed away at the Oakland Park sanatorium Wednesday, Nov. 29. The young man had been suffering from an attack of the dreaded disease for some time, having been brought to the institution when the malady was too far advanced to be checked and his condition became gradually weaker. He was confined in the sanatorium for the past couple of years. The remains were sent to Salol, where funeral exercises took place Tuesday.

No G. N. Freights Monday

On account of the unusual snowstorm combined with a strong gale which swept this section last Monday, the freights on the Great Northern running in to Thief River Falls were unable to make the regular haul and even had difficulty the following day. The passenger trains, however, made their rounds but were quite late.

Have Fitting Celebration of Golden Wedding Anniversary

A very pretty golden wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Klingborg of Alvarado in honor of Mrs. Klingborg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Peterson of Newfolden, Minn., Thursday Nov. 30.

The house was appropriately trimmed in gold and white. The tables were decorated with a wedding cake, candles and bouquets of yellow pom-pom chrysanthemums, besides the usual place cards and bonbon baskets.

After some very fitting remarks by Rev. Matson, a three course dinner was served at 4:30 to a number of guests consisting of members of the Peterson family, and then old friends and neighbors. Several of those who were invited were unable to attend on account of the condition of the weather. The gifts were several gold pieces and china.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson were born in Varmland, Sweden, and began their wedded life in that country fifty years ago, where they lived for nine years before coming to America.

They came to Marshall county 41 years ago last September, and settled on a homestead in the township of Vega where they lived for sixteen years. From there they moved to Newfolden. Some years ago they moved to Washington where they lived for three years near Ferndale. Being dissatisfied with conditions out west they came back to Marshall county and located again at Newfolden.

Mrs. and Mrs. Peterson have had twelve children, ten of whom are living. They are Emil Peterson, Argyle, Mrs. Otto Klingborg, Alvarado; Benning Peterson, Newfolden; Mrs. Pete Anderson, Argyle; Ivar Peterson, Even, Mich.; Mrs. Ida Lund, Bemidji; Theodord Peterson, Newfolden; John Peterson, Atkins Iowa; Albion Peterson, Indiana Harbor, Ind., and Miss Selma Peterson, St. Paul.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are well advanced in years they are both active and in good health. Their many friends join in extending hearty congratulations.

ASKS PROPOSALS ON HIGHWAY BRIDGES

State Department Calls for Bids Dec. 28 on First Lot of New Bridges for Trunk Routes

The first important list of new bridge projects under the Babcock good roads plan, on which bids are to be opened Dec. 28 at the rented headquarters of the state highway department in St. Paul, was officially announced this week.

It includes six concrete and three steel structures and is being undertaken now, Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner said, because the improvements are needed and buying conditions are believed favorable.

J. T. Ellison, assistant highway commissioner and chief bridge engineer, said that steel types were adopted in some cases because of lower costs and to avoid obstructing streams. The nine structures are estimated to cost nearly $175,000 and the list follows:

T. H. No. 1—Over Straight River in Owatonna, 120-foot concrete bridge of 3 spans, 24-foot roadway and one 8-foot sidewalk.

T. H. No. 5—Over Minnesota River at LeSueur, 400-foot steel bridge with creosoted wood block floor, to be pushed to completion.

T. H. No. 5—Over Swan River at Mississippi Junction, 75-foot steel and timber bridge with 29-foot roadway.

T. H. No. 8—Over Mississippi River between Bemidji and Cass Lake, 225 foot bridge of 3 spans, 20-foot roadway.

T. H. No. 10—East of Maple Plain, 10X6 foot box culvert on timber piling.

T. H. No. 11—Over Baudette River, between Baudette and Spooner, 400-foot steel bridge of 5 deck truss spans, 20-foot roadway, 5 foot walk.

T. H. No. 11—Near Ericksburg, 15-foot pile trestle, 20-foot roadway.

T. H. No. 16—Over Des Moines and boat channel, in Windom, 120-foot concrete bridge of 3 deck girder spans, and 50-foot concrete deck girder, each with 24-foot roadway and two 5-foot sidewalks.

T. H. No. 17—South of Marshall, double 20-foot concrete slab span with 20-foot roadway.

The projects at Ericksburg and Mississippi Junction are maintenance undertakings to replace structures now on the verge of failure.

The list is the first of a series planned under the policy of putting trunk highway funds to the best public use as fast as the money is available.

Mrs. Goar, Stephen, Brings Suit Against Electric Co.

The village of Stephen together with the Minnesota Electric Distribution company, which serves that town, are defendants in a damage suit wherein $40,000.00 is asked by Mrs. Elmer Goar of Stephen, for injuries and burns received when a high power transmission wire became crossed with the service wire at the plaintiff's home. Mrs. Goar was the victim of the accident last August when a 2300 volt current passed thru her body while she was ironing clothes at her home. She was taken to the Physicians hospital in this city where she was confined for some time, it being necessary to amputate three fingers on the right hand. Several other permanent injuries were sustained by the Stephen lady.

Signs of Winter!

Further indications of winter having taken hold of Thief River Falls is evidenced by the fact that "Charley Vorachek is now seen on the street and elsewhere with a cap adorning his scantily covered head. He says that as soon as he feels that spring is here, he will discard the headgarb, which act will hereafter guide the citizens of this city and community in determining the time to begin spring house-cleaning. Why worry about the groundhog next spring?

Attend Funeral of Relative

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Storhelm were to Crookston Wednesday of last week to attend the funeral of the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. Hans Storhelm, who died suddenly Monday, Nov. 27.

Only Way in Which These Places of Business Can be Brought Under Supervision

Mayor John Bratrud appeared at the last meeting of the city council and asked that an ordinance be drawn providing for the regulation of soft drink places by a license fee and other restrictions. The matter was favorably received by the council and City Attorney H. O. Chommie was instructed to prepare the ordinance and present it at the next regular meeting of the council.

Small License Fee Probable

It is likely that the license fee named in the new ordinance will be nominal but it will provide a means of bringing the places under the supervision of the authorities. Among other things contemplated is the establishment of an early closing hour and the removal of all curtains and other obstructions from the windows of the places.

Establishments Numerous

A surprisingly large number of business places are devoted to the dispensing of soft drinks and Mayor Bratrud is of the opinion that a limit should be placed on the number permitted and the business thus put on a different basis. There are very few cities in the state where card playing in these establishments is permitted and some here have expressed themselves as favoring the abolishment of it here.

Just what view the members of the council will take in the matter is not known but it appears certain that an ordinance somewhat along the lines suggested will be adopted.

PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

Local High School Team Will Meet Red Lake Falls Here December 15th

Friday evening, December 15, at 8 o'clock, the Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls high school debating teams will meet at the high school auditorium here. The subject will be: "Resolved, That Minnesota Should Adopt the Kansas Industrial Court as a Solution of its Labor Problems."

This is certain to be of great interest to the laboring men and the business people of the city as well. For this reason a special invitation to attend the debate is extended by the school authorities. The members of the local high school team have been making splendid progress this year and this fact together with the importance of the subject for Dec. 15 assures an interesting evening.

Runaway is Fatal to Young Pinewood Farmer

Conrad B. Dromnes, a farmer living about four miles north of Pinewood was killed recently when his team ran away, according to report in the Bemidji Sentinel of last week. The fatal accident occurred when Mr. Dromnes was thrown beneath a wagon loaded with wood which he was hauling into town.

The team started to run when it was about a mile from Pinewood and it was then that Mr. Dromness fell from the wagon. He was dragged about a quarter of a mile and it is thought he died after falling as his neck was broken. The load of wood was scattered along the road and the wagon was demolished. When the team arrived in Pinewood the citizens there, knowing it belonged to Mr. Dromness immediately began a search and soon found the man's body. Mr. Dromness was 24 years old. He was single and was survived by his parents at Pinewood and several brothers and sisters, one of whom is Mrs. Ole Esterby of Bemidji.

Sons of Norway Will Initiate Fourteen Candidates Tonight

At the regular annual meeting of the Snorre lodge, No. 70, of the Sons of Norway, this evening, 14 new members are scheduled to be initiated into the mysteries of the order. Mattson, Knut Helgeson, Axel Ander, Henry Falk, Thorwald Myhrum, Helmer Aga and Paul Brandvold. This is an unusually large class and it is expected that this number will soon be increased considerably as the new home has a great deal of attraction as a clubhouse for members of the lodge.

The lodge home, a photograph of which appears in this issue, is a one-story stucco building, the dimensions of which are 36x100. The structure contains a spacious hall 35x54, at one end of which is a large stage and dressing rooms which will make it possible to accommodate various performances. There is a splendid club room, a feature of which is a cozy fireplace. A large ladies dressing room, well equipped kitchen, reception hall, coat room and basement, complete the quarters. The cost of the building including the grounds was approximately $18,000.

Officers for the coming year will also be elected at tonight's meeting.

WINTER ROAD WORK BID AT LOW PRICES

Highway Commissioner Awards Contracts at Costs 20% below Engineers' Estimates

Winter work on Minnesota trunk highways in many parts of the state will start soon under the contracts awarded recently at a saving of nearly one-fifth from the engineers' estimates, according to the state highway department bulletin.

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, pointed to the low prices as evidence of the wisdom of issuing the first highway bonds to speed up the highway program now that it can be done economically and without increasing road taxes. Figures compared favorably with those on winter work last year, and give the state nearly $5 worth of improvements for every $4 used, he said.

Sharp competition was a feature of the recent contract letting at the rented offices of the highway department in St. Paul, the bulletin adds. As high as 60 bids on a single project were opened, and many were from local contractors in small towns at extremely reasonable prices. One job estimated at $75,000 was bid in at $50,000, a saving to the state of $25,000 or 33⅓ per cent. The bids were opened publicly as usual.

The winter work list is made up of more than 150 miles of new gravelling, some grading and several bridges.

Farmers Voting in Bureau Referendum

Farm Bureau members all over Minnesota are voting on questions concerning state and national legislation of importance to agriculture. The questions were submitted early in the month by the state federation, in an effort to determine what its members desire from law-making bodies. The referendum will be completed by January 1.

Unusual interest is manifest in the questionaire, according to F. L. French, secretary, who last week received scores of calls for blanks in addition to the regular supply sent to counties late in November.

WINTER CARNIVAL FOR CHARITY FUND PLANNED BY ELKS

Will Give Big Show at Club Rooms on Friday and Saturday of Next Week

The big event of the early winter in Thief River Falls will be the Elks carnival, which will be held on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 15 and 16.

This will be an indoor affair held at the lodge room, but this will in no manner prevent its being one of the really great shows put on locally in recent years.

While the carnival is sponsored by the Elks, a general invitation is extended to everybody to attend and have the time of their lives. According to the posters announcing the circus, the attractions will be many and varied. They include a wild animal show, merry-go-rounds, scenic railway and aeroplane swing. One of the outstanding features of the carnival will be Madam Ponzi, the celebrated Swedish fortune teller and medium. This woman's vision is said to be most marvelous and her ability most uncanny. She tells of the past and foretells the future with unerring fluency and has created a sensation wherever she has appeared.

Besides the madam there will be Geisha girls, dancers of all descriptions, pygmies, giants, bearded lady, two-headed dog and other unusual and astonishing sights without number. At the close of the carnival a $200 radio set will be given away absolutely free of charge to some person who has purchased an admission ticket.

The club rooms of the Citizens State Bank building will be fitted out in carnival regalia and all who come will forget that outside the north wind may be blowing and the snow falling.

This will be the only pre-holiday festivity in the city and everybody—not the Elks alone—is interested in making it a success. The proceeds will be used for charitable purposes in the city and surrounding country, this being always a part of the Elks Christmas program.

H. W. Protzeller is at the head of the general committee in charge.

Monkey in "Pair of Kings" Shows Human Intelligence

A monkey used in Larry Semon's comedy, "A Pair of Kings," which will be shown at the Lyceum Theater on Sunday and Monday shows almost human intelligence. He steals a passport from Larry, scampers over to the railing of the boat, apparently reads the document, decides it is no good, tears it up and throws it away.

The act is similar to others done by apes but when a moment later the monkey discovers Larry in peril high up on the derrick of the boat, the monkey, grabs a knife, climbs the boom, cuts the rope and sends Larry head first into the ocean.

It is a thrilling scene with a comedy twist. Many unusual scenes are found in this comedy which deal with two men who look alike—one a king and the other an imigrant. They change places and do not live happily ever afterwards.

"Five Dollar Baby" is Special Offering By Mgr. Brumund

"The Five Dollar Baby," the story by Irvin S. Cobb, which appeared originally in the Saturday Evening Post, has been converted into a photoplay by Metro, with Viola Dana in the title role. It comes to the Lyceum Theatre Sunday and Monday with an exceptionally fine record of popularity, and critics who have witnessed it during its run at the Criterion Theatre in New York had only the highest praise to give it.

Mr. Cobb's story has its setting in New York's Ghetto. It abounds in the colorful athmosphere of that interesting section, and its characters are such faithful portrayals that one would believe that they were lifted [illegible] off the streets and into the Metro studios.

"The Five Dollar Baby" tells the story of an abandoned infant who is pawned for five dollars by a hobo who finds her on a door step. Uncle Ben the pawnbroker, thinks some one is playing a joke on him, until he realizes that, as no one claims the child and the required interest is paid he is up against the proposition of bringing up the foundling. A warm attachment grows between the Jewish pawnbroker and Ruth, as he has named the girl. When eighteen years are gone, and Ruth grows up into a beautiful miss, the hobo returns to demand the girl.

"Hurricane's Girl" Presents Life in the Great Outdoors

Patrons of the motion picture theatre whose preference runs to stories of the great outdoors—stories of fast action and a liberal supply of real thrills—are having their appetites satisfied in thorough fashion at the Lyceum Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, where Allen Holubar's "Hurricane's Gal," a First National attraction starring Dorothy Phillips, is being shown.

The sea scenes bring into play a hydroplane which is shot down from the air, a government torpedo boat destroyer and a large three masted schooner that is in the smuggling trade. Exquisite boudoir sets that were designed by Mr. Holubar and Miss Phillips are shown in the interior scenes.

Report of Salvation Army Congress At Minneapolis

The most important event of the Salvation Army year in this division began on Thanksgiving day in Minneapolis and ended Monday, Dec. 4. Colonel Barker divisional commander, convened all officers of Minnesota, North and South Dakota for the annual fall congress. Over one hundred officers and assistants from all parts of the divisional field assembled for this notable event.

It had been planned from the very beginning that Commander Evangeline Booth, officer in charge of the forces in the United States, would be present at many of the meetings. The Territorial congress having just been completed in Chicago, it had been arranged that she would come direct to Minneapolis councils from there, but she was taken very ill just at the time and was forced to cancel her engagement.

Notwithstanding the inability of the Commander to be at the congress, which was indeed a great and heartfelt disappointment to both the officers from the field and the divisional staff, everyone helped to make the councils an inspiration from start to finish. Commissioner William Peart, territorial commander of the central territory, ably assisted by the chief secretary, Col. Sidney Gauntlett, Col. Alfred Chandler, Principal of the Chicago Training College and Col. [illegible] Mrs. Col. Gauntlett and staff. Capt. Agnew Blomgren, led a wonderful series of councils and public meetings.

Thursday evening, Friday morning, afternoon and evening were devoted to inspirational officers' councils. Saturday evening a public salvation meeting, preceded by a march of officers of the division and soldiers of the twin cities, drew a host of people to the Number One Citadel. A wonderful and blessed hour with many penitents at the altar ended the first week of gatherings.

Sunday morning the commissioner led a Holiness meeting at the Army hall. Sunday afternoon upwards of three thousand people packed the Metropolitan theatre on Marquette avenue to hear the commissioner's address on "The World's Greatest Romance."

Music was furnished by the Fort Snelling military band. Gov. Preus, Judge Buffing and Rev. Riley, pastor of the First Baptist church, and many of the prominent business men of the twin cities were present. Gov. Preus gave an address in support of the Army's great work in Minnesota. Col. Parker acted as chairman of the service. The commander's address, explaining that the Army's work was the outcome of their practical religion, stirred the masses to great enthusiasm. The Salvation Army parade, which preceded the session at the theatre, was said to be the best ever held in the city. Hundreds of Salvationists fell in line, forming a march many blocks long through the business streets of the city. This great procession was led by the divisional band of forty pieces.

The parade was made up of officers of the division, soldiers of the twin cities, the Scandinavian troops, girl guards of Minneapolis and St. Paul No. 1. The Scandinavian band furnished music for the rear of the march.

Sunday evening thousands of people filled the First Baptist church, packing the building to the outside doors. The crowd was so great that [illegible] and have part of the service in the church parlors. Commissioner Peart addressed the great part of the crowd while Col. Gauntlett led a meeting in the other rooms. The Army was ably supported throughout the service by the students of the Northwestern Bible school and members of the Baptist church. As in other public Salvation services, a number of courageous people took up their cross and were saved from their sins.

Monday morning councils led by Col. Barker, assisted by Mrs. Barker, were given up to discussion of how to do the most intensive fighting in the various sectors where the Northern troops are now battling. The congress closed with a meeting Monday evening for Salvationists, held in the Elks' Auditorium.

All present felt the great work that is still to be done, and are going back to their various posts knowing better how to do the great and noble work.

"Channels only, Blessed Master,
But with all thy wondrous power
Flowing through me, Thou canst use me,
Every day and every hour."

BEAR THE FACTS IN MIND

What is undoubtedly the most important hearing involving a drainage project ever held in the state, is being conducted at the court house in this city today before Judges Andrew Grindeland and C. W. Stanton. On the outcome depends to a large extent the future of this region as an agricultural section. If the improvements planned by the Red Lake Flood Control and Conservancy commission are approved by the courts it will mean the removal of the one barrier that has always stood in the way of Northwestern Minnesota's rapid development.

There is a certain amount of opposition voiced to the project, as is but natural. Many farmers feel that they are at the present time taxed as heavily as they can stand for drainage and would oppose any further efforts to increase this assessment, no matter to what extent it might improve their property. This short-sighted view has been fostered by certain interests in the district and it is to be feared that a number of farmers who have been clamoring for flood relief for a quarter of a century look upon the project as simply another ditching move which will do them in spite of the fact that the move for providing an adequate outlet for flood water was started by farmers whos crops were periodically destroyed by flood.

These opponents of the program have not taken the trouble to become thoroughly acquainted with the facts. Had they done so they would not be opponents. For this reason The Times below sets forth the salient points of the proposed enterprise, as these are presented by Chairman C. G. Selvig of the commission.

First—It is not expected that the final cost of the Red Lake drainage construction will equal even the estimate. It will prove to be less than the estimate by more than 10 per cent according to well-informed persons who are in touch with recent large projects of this nature.

Second—The improvement of Red Lake river is primarily for draining the low lands on both sides of the river and to relieve these low lands from floods. High lands down the river below the area of direct benefits are not included because they are not thus drained.

Third—The dam and control works at the outlet from Red Lake are required for drainage. The same structures would be built in this particular project whether there were any water power benefits or not. The purpose of the dam is to hold back the water from the Red Lakes until the water on the lands adjoining the river below the dam has had time to empty into the channel. A smaller channel costing much less money is made to serve the purpose in this way because the water in the lake is to be held back during the high water period and to be released after the wet period.

Fourth—The water of the Red Lakes is held back until the river below the dam is at a low water stage. This is during the fall and winter, which is also the time that additional water can be profitably used by the water power companies. This is a project where water power companies will pay for water that the farmers wish to get rid of instead of using coal. No thinking person should object to such a plan.

Fifth—Contrary to the opinions of many who have not studied the matter, the proposed plan of selling surplus water to the power companies will bring greater returns by far to the land owners comprising the district than any plan of immediate assessment of present powers. All present and all future power plants will pay rentals for water used. In this way the full benefit of the improved water sold to the water companies will go to the farmers comprising the area assessed who will have their assessments greatly reduced thereby. Engineer A. F. Meyer has conclusive evidence upon this point.

Sixth—The only possible argument against this plan is that there may be no great development of water powers at all during the future. If this is to prove true, no assessments either could be levied against the existing power plants. It is equally certain that no water sites would be worth anything if there is to be market for electric current in the future.

Seventh—Everything, on the contrary, points to larger use of electricity in the future. The Red Lake river has the only water power in this section of the state and the eastern half of North Dakota. We are fortunate in having this river in our midst. A power line has already been built as far south as Hillsboro. This will in time be extended so that Fargo and southeastern North Dakota will eventually be supplied with electricity generated from Red Lake river dams.

Eighth—There is plenty of water now flowing in the Red Lake river during the summer months. The control works proposed will impound the water during heavy rain periods for drainage purposes and release it during the fall and winter for water power purposes. This increased flow during fall and winter will be sold to the power companies. A constant yearly income from water thus released will be paid through all the years, providing in time, as estimated by some, an amount that may eventually equal the entire cost of the project.

Ninth—The bonds for this project should be issued for 30 years or even a longer period, as the water power development will come gradually. The rentals will then return to the owners of farm lands that are assessed a larger part of the original cost of the project than if the bonds were issued for the customary 20 year period. Interest only is all that should be paid during the first 10 year period.

Tenth—During July and August, 1922, there was an urgent demand from the farmers affected that the Red Lake river drainage and flood control work be immediately started. Thief River Falls citizens joined enthusiastically in this program. Many difficulties have been met and overcome. The necessary federal authorization has been secured. The state appropriated money for the surveys of both the Clearwater and Red Lake basins. The best engineers obtainable have prepared the plans. The estimate of cost is judged by all to be reasonable. The work proposed is absolutely necessary to insure the territory affected protection from excessive water during the ordinary flood seasons, which come in this section of the state at least every 2 or 3 years.

Eleventh—The first big rain that comes in these two basins will destroy thousands of dollars of crops. It will be followed by a demand for drainage as surely as night follows the day. Laterals, plus an outlet, are required for a complete drainage system. The courts have ruled on that point.

Twelfth—The Red Lake drainage and Conservancy board has made available to those interested all the facts regarding these projects. Its annual report for 1921 is a very comprehensive one. The Red Lake river project report was given full publicity in both local and state papers when issued. The members of the board and staff have done everything in their power to comply with the laws governing their work, as in taking their oath of office they were in duty bound to do. All they ask is that the plans receive fair treatment, which means that in the discussions, people should stick to the facts, the law and the actual conditions as they exist.

RIPE STRAWBERRIES IN MID-NOVEMBER

Ripe, red, delicious strawberries the middle of November, and only eighty miles from the Canadian line—no, its not a dream, nor even a desire; its a well-witnessed fact.

November 17th Mrs. Andreas Hoveland invited a few guests for supper, the principal dish to be strawberry shortcake, made of berries she had picked that afternoon. We saw the berries and we ate the shortcake. They were real, beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Minneapolis may boast of its strawberry blossoms in November, and feel proud of them. Thief River Falls does not notice blossoms, but picks and eats the ripe berries.

Figures given us by Mr. and Mrs. Hoveland give eloquent testimony to the great possibilities resting in the strawberry, even this far north. Mrs. Hoveland cultivated and cropped about half an acre of overbearing berries this summer. Half of the patch was one year old and the other half was but half a year old. From July 25th to the close of the season the half-acre yielded 1767 quarts of marketable berries, netting an income of $486.55. A good part of the berries were picked on shares, and the owner canned about 90 quarts for domestic use. Thus the yield would possibly total 2000 quarts. All of the berries were sold to the home trade. Beside the berries Mrs. Hoveland expects to realize a neat little sum from the sale of from ten to twenty thousand plants in the spring.

The everbearing strawberry has its splendid possibilities also in these northern latitudes. Good soil and careful work will bring wonderful results. Ask Mrs. Hoveland, and see her smile.—Contributed.

Some Cheap Advice

It does beat all, the immense quantity and varied assortment of good (?) advice one can gather in any community, entirely unsolicited, and we venture to say that if anyone should start out with an honest solicitation for advice, in twenty-four hours he would have enough gathered to answer every purpose in life, if it would only come up to the guarantee.

And it is observable that advice comes most freely from those less qualified on any given subject. The man who never tasted liquor can tell the drunkard just how to quit drinking and make a man of himself. The fellow who has never had the thrilling experience of holding a lovely maiden's hand, can tell exactly how you can raise a large family and get along happily with your wife. The fellow who has never been sick a day in his life can diagnose your disease the minute you impart to him you are "a bit under the weather." The fellow who can't write his own name knows just how the schools should be operated and what should be taught. The fellow who can't repeat the Lord's prayer or the Ten Commandments knows exactly how to run the churches and how the preachers should preach. And the fellow that doesn't know the difference between a printing press and a cider mill, or whether you spell bull with a big or a small "b" can just beat the socks off the editor publishing a newspaper.

Now, isn't it rediculous that all that immense amount of ego should be found waiting in every corner to harass people who are getting along pretty well doing the real things of life and tending to their own business.

The man who has thoroughly mastered one profession does not pretend to know everything. He knows that to keep up his own vocation he has to keep busy learning the new things that are continually coming before him, or he will lose out, and if you ask him for information on any subject which does not come within the scope of his profession, he will tell you frankly that he is not posted, and will refer you to some one that is. When you are sick, you have a physician visit you who knows what to do for a man in your condition; you don't send for a plumber who was never sick a day in his life. If you are a habitual drunkard and want to quit the pesky stuff, you can't afford to take the preacher's or the Sunday school teacher's advice who don't know the effect of hard cider, but rather you should confer with some one who has been through the mill and delivered himself safely from your same condition.

And so it goes down the line of life's everyday problems. Men who have drank deep in experience are the best advisors, but are loath in giving advice, fearing their good intentions will be misconstrued and knowing that after all, experience is the best and most reliable teacher—Norman Co. Herald.

TRIBUTE PAID TO DEPARTED AMONG ELKS' FRATERNITY

Hon. J. H. Hay Delivers Stirring Memorial Address Here on Sunday Afternoon

The annual memorial service of Thief River Falls lodge of Elks was well attended last Sunday afternoon. The services were public and quite a number of citizens not members of the order were present. The usual ritualistic work was very creditably carried out by the officials while the musical program was appropriate to the occasion and excellently rendered. A quartet composed of Dr. J. N. Nesse, S. Carl Sundahl, F. C. Niclai and E. M. Bennes sang "The Vacant Chair" most impressively and a solo by Mr. Sundahl was greatly appreciated. Mrs. C. O. Erickson presided at the piano.

The memorial address was delivered by Hon. J. H. Hay, a charter member of the local lodge, who is now assistant state commissioner of agriculture. Mr. Hay was personally acquainted with all of the 15 members of the lodge who have departed this life and his tribute to their memory was both eloquent and touching. He called attention to the fact that in more than 1600 lodges scattered all over the United States and its possessions the same services were being conducted by a large part of the Elks membership, which now stands at more than 800,000, and liked to think that in some manner the brethren in whose memory the exercises were being held had means of knowing what was going on. The Elks' creed, said Mr. Hay, in its final analysis meant "Service"—service to humanity in general but more particularly to those enrolled under the spreading antlers.

The address was listened to with rapt attention and received high praise from lodge officers after the ceremony.

The local lodge has lost 15 members by death since its institution in 1913, these being as follows: K. O. Dock, M. C. Cutter, W. W. Pierce, H. L. Anderson, J. H. McKinney, A. J. Gorman, Geo. J. Johnson, Chas. A. Pitkin, H. G. Hieber, D. J. Carney, Glenn [illegible], C. W. Bennett, E. H. Taylor, E. M. Stanton, Fred W. Johnson.

Advertise The Debate

The first debate of the season will be held a week from tomorrow, on the evening of Dec. 15. This leaves only a week to arouse interest in and advertise the event. In debate more than perhaps any other school activity does a large, enthusiastic audience have a great influence on the outcome. A speaker of limited eperience will invariably respond to the attitude of his audience. If the audience is small and uninterested, the speaker of little eperience will fall into a mood of indifference, and a languid, uninteresting debate follows; on the other hand, if a large crowd turns out with the intention of enjoying a keen battle of wits, the debators will respond with animated discourses.

It is not often that we exhort an audience to take the initiative in making a speech worth listening to; it is usually left to the speaker to hold his audience with own force of utterance. But in the coming debate, where the participants are more or less inexperienced, and our own enjoyment of the contest as well as the judges' decision depends largely upon the co-operation of the audience, we feel that we can not urge too strongly upon the school and upon the public in general the advisability of an interested co-operation.

Value of Commercial Department

The appointment to a Federal office of George Votava, a senior boy not yet out of high school, with no further training than the stenography and shorthand courses of the local high school, is another proof of the value of the commercial department at Lincoln High. Many of its graduates are now holding positions of promise in the business world; but it is when a student not yet thru the course wins out in a competetive Civil Service examination in that particular kind of work that we get a true visualization of its worth.

Are You a Genius?

Beautiful Nature, unkown to most of us, scatters geniuses with a lavish hand among the ordinary run of men—geniuses unknown and unsung. Here and there a man will be found who, if subjected to a mental test, would rate considerably higher than our most successful men. These men, these rustic founts of knowledge, if arraigned for not achieving success commensurate with their powers, can offer no defense except that they chose All Knowledge for their kingdom, instead of specializing in some one phase of Humanity's problems.

An almost infinite array of knowledge is theirs—concerning everything from archaeology to radio, from the "dawn man" to the twentieth century scientist; and the pity of it all is that this huge reference library avails them so little in the sordid race for material things. The world today calls for men trained in some one phase of the multitudinous works on earth, not for men with an incomplete knowledge of everything in general. Success today depends on the degree of perfection attained in specialization. A man need not be a mental giant to achieve success; let him concentrate all his energies in learning some one thing better than his fellows, and Fortune will smile on him; the man who has a wide range of knowledge, but little in any one branch of learning, will be hopelessly outdistanced. The realization of our hopes depends little on total brain power; it depends on the amount of knowledge of one particular thing acquired. Though a man be a walking encyclopedia, he will not be a success unless he knows more about some particular line of endeavor than does any one else.

The following officers were elected: Alyce Berg, Pres.; Clara Olen, Vice Pres.; Lillian Knight, Sec'y-Treas.; Elsie Buringrud, Reporter. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the organization. Mildred Loftness gave a short talk on the purpose of the Social Activities Committee.

A lunch was served by Miss Kirk and Miss Stapleton. Miss MacNair, Miss Thompson, the grade teachers of the Washington School and the Normal girls were guests.

Musical Entertainment

Carl Sundahl accompanied by Miss Maude Johnson entertained the High School students with three vocal solos in a very unusual program during chapel period a week ago Wednesday.

Mr. Sundahl started the program with three solos "My Jean," "Bells of St. Mary," and "I love a little cottage." The program was concluded by two duets by Miss Johnson and Mr. Sundahl.

Mr. Sundahl has made several appearances before the high school in former years, and is always very enthusiastically received.

Add'tional Information on T. R. F. School System

The Washington School

The Washington enrollment this year includes two hundred and thirty eight students with a teaching force of seven strong. The enrollment according to grades with the teachers of each is as follows:

Sixth grade, Miss Kloppe	38
Fifth grade, Miss Larson	36
Fourth grade, Miss Jorgenson	37
Third grade, Miss Smith	36
Second grade, Miss Humphner	35
IA and IIB, Miss Goldsmith	24
IB, Miss Byler	32

As in other grade buildings, particular stress this year is laid on arithmetic, and health education.

Manual Tra'ning Dept.

The Manual Training Department occupies the Industrial Building. It is very large and holds an important part in the departments of the school.

It is modernly equiped and has the best wood working department in the district. Its work shop is 45X35 feet and has 18 working benches fully equipped with hand tools.

It has a power cross-cut and circular saw, a band saw, two leaves, a new power jointer, and a planer. The latter two being added to the department three years ago.

An addition to the Mechanical Building was built in 1920. At that time a finishing room and a modern Mechanical Drawing room was added. This room is equipped with 22 drawing desks. Mechanical drawing boards, T squares, angles and curves are furnished, while the student must furnish the remainder of the instruments.

A two year course is offered. In mechanical drawing, students are given the fundamentals of building construction and the making of blue prints. A dark room in connection with this department makes possible the making of the blue prints.

The Eighth graders are given training work on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 3 to 4 while the seventh grades take the subject Mondays and Thursdays also from 3 to 4 o'clock.

This department puts out a large and very excellent display of fine furniture and drawings every year.

Esther Larson Elected Class Poet by Seniors

Esther Larson was elected class poet and Charles Herron was chosen captain of the senior class basketball team at a senior class meeting held on Wednesday, Nov. 29.

The basketball boys had nominated two candidates for captain, which were voted on by the class. The candidates were Charles Herron and Stanley Sorenson, both of whom played on the first team last year. This year part of the class games will be played before the opening of the regular basketball season, so first team men are also eligible for the class teams. Herron was elected by quite a large majority.

At a class meeting some time ago candidates were nominated for Class Poet. The nominees, Rose Costello, Esther Larson, and Lucille Curtis, submitted a sample of their poetry to the class president. These were read before the class meeting Wednesday by Pearl Weeks, who had been recommended by Miss MacNair as one of the best readers in the class, without announcing the author of each poem. The class then voted by the number given each composition, and Esther Larson's "Value of Ignorance" won by a decisive majority.

The office of Class Poet is a new one in this school, but it is a regular custom in many schools and to be thusly selected is considered quite an honor. The holder of this title will from time to time submit poetry pertaining to the class and the school for publication in the Progress, and her best work will be incorporated in the "Prowler."

Value of Ignorance

Sure, knowledge is good for girls and boys, for women and for men,
But a good share of ignorance is handy now and then;
When the teacher asks a question,
 which half the class don't know,
It's nice to be able to answer, and not be compelled to say no;
But when the teacher draws near you,
 and for exact information calls,
As to who propelled the eraser, 'tis best to know nothing at all.

If one of your school mates one day,
 should drop down on a tack,
Or nightly prowlers in the school
 leave behind their tracks,
Or all at once the bells decide they're needed now no more,
Or due to excessive whispering, the teacher should get sore,
Or someone in the back of the room should compell a chair to fall,
Knowledge is by far the worse and it's best to know nothing at all.

Trade Mark

Girls don their mannish coats and hats,
 Boys ties, and great big boots;
 And one would think he'd met a boy
 Before he really knew't.

 But if you look a trifle closer.
 Below their hair there swings
 From each small ear an ornament;
 A clear and bright ear-ring.

FOOTBALL SEASON RESULTS TABULATED

District One Championship Goes to East Grand Forks

Five Schools Submit Data

East Grand Forks high school carried off the honors of district champions in football for this season. Thief River made a good showing and came out second on the list. The athletic editor of the Progress, thru the kind co-operation of the various athletic instructors in the district, secured data from all but three of the high schools who had teams in this district. These high schools have a smaller enrollment and consequently did not make such a creditable showing, and reports were not submitted.

The final reports of all the football teams in the district are submitted a little late due to several late games by some of the teams in the district.

The official reports are as wollows:

	Played	Won	Lost
E. Grand Forks	5	5	0
T. R. Falls	3	2	1
Crookston	5	3	2
Warren	5	3	2
Ada	5	1	4

These are the only high schools in the district that submitted reports, and are the leaders in this kind of sport. These reports do not include all the games played by each team, but are the official reports of the coaches as to District games played.

G. Halvorson Gives First Education Week Address

Attorney Halvorson of this city addressed the student body Tuesday morning on "The Purpose of an Education," as the first of a series of speakers during education week.

Mr. Halvorson stressed the fact that although school usually attempts to prepare the students for some occupation or station in life, this should not always be its only objective. The chief value of education, he said, lies in character development and a broadening of the mind. When we get out into the world and find that we are the ones who must assume the burden of directing the world's affairs we will find that we can not always follow any definite rules of procedure that can be learned in school. We must be able to think for ourselves and make out our own plan of procedure when all precedents are unavailing.

The altogether too prevalent attitude among students of "getting by" whenever it is possible was deplored by Mr. Halvorson. If a student merely tries to "get by" in school he will certainly find in later years that he was only cheating himself.

Students Attend Y. M. C. A. Convention at Eveleth

University to Serve Newspapers of State

The University of Minnesota this year has established an All-University News Service, with the purpose of supplying newspapers in Minnesota and elsewhere, magazines, and periodicals of every kind with accurate information regarding the University of Minnesota and its varied activities.

In taking this step Minnesota has only followed the lead of a score or more of other important universities and colleges, including practically all of the universities in the western conferences.

Thomas E. Steward, who has had 12 years of experience on newspapers and in publicity work, most of it in Minneapolis, has been appointed editor of the new service.

"I wish to make it particularly clear that the University of Minnesota News Service is a service venture, not an effort to spread propaganda," Mr. Steward said relative to his new work. "The people of Minnesota who support the university by the taxes they pay, are entitled to be kept informed on the interesting and valuable work that goes on there. This we shall endeavor to do. Regular news bulletins will be sent to all Minnesota newspapers, which are free to use them without credit of any kind. If newspapers wish some special service, it will be provided them insofar as time and other duties permit."

It was made clear that a special effort to provide the various Minnesota papers with news of local importance to their communities will be made by the new University of Minnesota News Service.

Tribute to a Poet

Harken to me, dear schoolmates, dear friends,
Let us from the present flee,
Let us glance into the future
Of the rising poet, Matt B.

The scene is a lowly garret,
As ancient as Old Rome—
But let me tell you, Sweeties,
T'is the immortal poet's home.

So humble and so mean it is—
Alas! I weep a tear
To think its sole inhabitant,
Is one of us so dear.

But lo—'midst social outcasts,
'Midst sordid dregs of crime,
In the face of black discouragements,
Our hero writeth rhyme.

T'is many a year since last we met
In the school house by the way;
Thy friends have turned feeble,
Whilst thou have grown gray.

Thy luscious curls that once were black,
Are now all steel gray kinks,
And on thy shapely Grecian nose,
A pair of specs—by Jinks!

Alas! Thy cheeks are pale and thin,
Oh companion of the muses,
Thy soul-ful orbs have sunken in—
The world all poets abuses.

Despair not, gifted one, while thou hast,
A talent few possess;
Although thy mouth has not a tooth—
Hast thou a pan? Why yes!

Then write, I beg thee, write a poem—
Write yards and yards of verse,
Write till thou has earned for once
Enough to fill thy purse.

University Dean On Athletics in Schools

That athletics in the colleges of the United States are of much value and that they do not have bad effects on the scholarship activities of the undergraduates is the opinion of Otis Randall, dean of Brown University. Dean Randall occupies a position at the Providence institution which gives him a splendid chance to see college activities from both the athletic and scholastic sides and he states that it has been his experience that intercollegiate sports have helped undergraduate activities.

Dean Randall expressed his views at the annual night-before the Harvard-Brown game get-to-gether at the Hotel Lenox recently attended by some 200 Brown alumni. He said in part:

Instead of being undesirable because of bad effects on scholarship, athletics should be made one of the chief agents of the educational machine.

Much has been said and written regarding the encroachment of athletics on the classroom, of the increasing attraction of big games for students and alumni. It is only proper that an activity which attracts the best men we have, which inculcates in them highly desirable traits of character, which teaches them self-reliance and teamwork, should come in for a large amount of attention. I am sure that we should not think much of a Brown man who was not interested.

In spite of this talk, it is not once a year that I have to drop an athlete because of scholarship, and I cannot remember having had to dismiss one for bad character.

I have seen athletics make a man out of a boy who failed in everything.

And it is not only athletics; there are other undergraduate activities. If their attraction becomes too great the classroom will suffer. The classroom ought to be made sufficiently attractive to withstand encroachment. If the correct relations between studies and activities is kept, there is no need to worry at all.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Secret of Success

"What is the secret of success?" asked the Sphinx.

"Push," said the Button.

"Take pains," said the Window.

"Be up to date," said the Calendar.

"Never lose your head," said the Barrel.

"Make light of everything," said the Fire.

"Do a driving business," said the Hammer.

"Aspire to greater things," said the Nutmeg.

"Find a good thing and stick to it," said the Glue.

ALUMNI LISTEN! PROWLER SPEAKS

Alumni! The Prowler speaks to you!

Through these columns, we of the Prowler staff, have for the past several weeks endeavored to keep you in touch with what we are doing.

We have outlined our plans for putting out the best annual Lincoln high school has ever seen. We have told of the work already accomplished in getting the book started.

The sales campaign of a week ago was an unqualified success—a bigger success than any which has been put on in previous years—and that very fact serves to spur us on to greater effort.

In three days, the business manager, with the generously contributed help of the four classes, sold more than four hundred fifty books. That was a success—and if we do not sell a single book more, we shall try our level best to publish an annual which will appeal to those people alone—those who have subscribed. But we hope to extend the range of Prowlerdom even farther than that. We hope to make it so interesting that everyone will want one of the Prowlers of '23, and we are trying to apportion to each department space equally and exactly according to the number of subscribers who would be more interested in that department than in any other.

Give us a chance! Let us prove that this annual will be just as valuable to the graduate of three or four or five years ago as it will be to us. Send us your dollar and a half now—tomorrow you may have forgotten—so that we may make an Alumni department which alone will more than repay you. And when you do, send us snaps of yourself and your classmates, that will help us make this section more complete than would otherwise have been possible.

Why do it now? If we receive substantial proof in the very near future that you are interested, we will go ahead with our plans for a big Alumni department; while if you do not show us that you are interested, justice compels us to cater only to those who have already subscribed, and there are not many Alumni among them.

When your Prowler was published, did you not try to interest the Alumni in it? And did you not mentally vow to support every succeeding annual that was published? In one of your annuals we read,

 Lincoln High, we will always remember thy work
 And thy beautiful colors of bright red and blue
 Then if at some time we must answer thy call
 We shall e'er to our High school be loyal and true

Isn't that as true today as it was then? Prove that it is, and we will strive to return your investment with 100% interest in the form of real, honest enjoyment. We know we can do it.

Senior School Days

Should Senior school days be forgot,
 These senior days so fine;
Should senior school days be forgot,
 These days of thine and mine.

Chorus:
These days o'thine, these days o'mine,
These days of mine and thine,
 These days well spent in wisdom's
 cause,
And for them we shall pine.

The seniors all have played the game,
 From morning sun till nine,
They've played the game, the fairest game,
 Yes, all along the line.

In future years we will recall
 Our senior days so fine,
Those days well spent in wisdom's
 cause,
And for them we shall pine.

The Value of Required Outside Reading in English Classes.

To read good books is highly cultivating and beneficial. When the pupils are required to do outside reading, it induces them to become acquainted with books that are educational as well as wholesome. If students are familiar with the type of books that are worth reading, they will be able to select good reading material instead of choosing some cheap fiction—a cheap detective or love story. Readers of good books will gradually be able to write and speak more effectively. Unconsciously, they will begin to imitate the author's sentences and his various means of expressing thoughts. By observing the new words with which they come in contact, they will enlarge their vocabulary. Reading is one of the very best forms of diversion and is certainly one of the best ways of occupying one's time of leisure.

Attendance Regular

The high school feels very fortunate to be able to announce that as yet there have been only three high school students who have been forced to leave school because of the diphtheria epidemic.

The attendance in the grade schools especially in the lower grades, has shown a marked decline after the first reports of the epidemic; but at present the attendance shows an increase.

Miss MacNair: (making assignments for Journalism) "Ruth, you take 'Our School Plant.'"

Pearl (whispering): "Our school plant is the 'evergreen.'"

Sidney: "Do we get our report cards before Thanksgiving?"

Ruth: "I hope we don't, it will spoil my whole dinner."

Ernest: "Ya, sure" [illegible]

Mrs. Campbell: [illegible]

Parent-Teachers Ass'n. Holds Special Meeting

At the Parent-Teacher's meeting held last Tuesday evening the officers were elected for the coming year. Miss Maude Johnson led the audience in Community singing after which Mr. Simley read an unusually good speech which was delivered by Mr. Webster, superintendent of the Minneapolis schools, before the M. E. A. convention this fall.

Mr. Webster first analyzed the situation as it exists through the world today, speaking of the growing generation which he says is far from what it ought to be. He then explained the reasons and placed the responsibility. The parents, he said, are responsible for what the boys and girls are. Then he shouldered some of the blame on the churches, the community, and the teachers. These and not the boys and girls are responsible for some of the characteristics that we find in them, but would much rather not.

The advanced class in sewing comprised of sophomores had an exhibit of their articles, while the cooking class served a delicious lunch consisting of sandwiches, cookies and coffee.

The following officers were elected for the Parent-Teacher's association for the coming year: President, L. M. Rayson; first vice president, Mrs. J. N. Nesse; second vice president, W. W. Prichard, Jr.; 2nd vice president, Mrs. R. Arnold; secretary, Mrs. E. J. Richards; treasurer, Mrs. M. P. Rapacz.

Seniors Are Champions

The pre-season interclass basket ball games resulted in the Senior team emerging at the top. The Juniors won over the Freshmen Monday, Tuesday the Seniors defeated the Sophs, and Wednesday the Seniors cinched the championship by defeating the Juniors 13 to 10 in a hard fought spirited game.

Alumni Notes

Grace Craik of the class of 1922, now a student at the Bemedji Normal School, spent the Thanksgiving vacation at her home in this city. She returned Tuesday following.

William Herrick, ex-member of the class of 1923, now in Regular Army is home on a month's furlough from Fort Snelling. He will stay at his home in this city until after Christmas.

His company has been called to the Hawaiian Islands for two years and expects to leave February 1st.

Encourage Wit!

"Feature the feature section more"—is the cry of the oppressed Persuers of the Progress. Yes, only feature it without jokes!

The main difficulty lies in the absence of raw material for a feature section. There are not enough "little nothings" being said, or else it is not generally conceded worth one's while to make note of them. All of which speaks well for our superior intelligence. But you know that old wheeze about a little foolishness off and on being digested by the most formidable high brows.

The wit of the class has never been sufficiently popular. His little witicisms are apt to be frowned upon for detracting attention from deeper things. We cannot thrive in such a depressing atmosphere. Encourage the clever one! Laugh at his little quips. Remember the joker is our friend—the spice of the Progress. Only remember to write down his little jocularities and hand 'em to one of the "newsies" listed above.

It's on—the "Crackmore Jokes" campaign!

BASKET BALL QUINT TO USE AUDITORIUM

City Council Grants Use of Auditorium for Games and Regular Practice

New Suits Secured for Boys

The city fathers showed interest in high school athletics to the extent that they have generously donated the use of the city auditorium for basketball practice and games. There will be practice three times a week as soon as the diphtheria ban is removed. The opportunity of practice in the auditorium will be of great aid to the boys because of the inadequate gymnasium in the high school. Since the games must be played in the auditorium the boys should be able to make a better showing if they are allowed to practice on the same floor.

Another generous act in behalf of basketball was the donation of fifty dollars for equipment by the school board. This was a much needed appropriation and will add much to the appearance of the team on the floor. The players and whole school feel fortunate in receiving this aid and appreciate the assistance of the board greatly.

The sweaters are blue with a maroon stripe across the breast. Across the front of the stripe are the letters T. R. F. in blue and the players number in the same shade on the back. The trunks are of the traditional tan with maroon trimmings. Some fine fleece lined sweat shirts are also included in the regalia, to say nothing of the knee-guards and socks to match the suits.

The Teacher's Lament

The bell has tolled the knell of parting day;
Long have I labored, and weary now
 am I.
The students homeward bend their gladsome way,
While I—turn to my papers with a sigh.

Why must we labor thus to teach the youth
Their Latin, Plane Geometry, and Civics;
Nor yet omit the smallest grain of truth
As found in early Greek and Roman epics.

In early morning they are here to ask
Some foolish question—beg some leniency—
Yet fail withal in their appointed tasks,
And expect pardon for delinquency.

At class they try my temper more each day;
Forget their books; their lessons
 unprepared,
And lose assignments despite all I say,
Still violating every rule they dare.

Though school lets out at four, I cannot leave
My post of duty here, till hours later,
For then the wayward student finds he needs
Some help for this—assistance
 there—from TEACHER.

But, though the lot is hard, the workday long,
I will perform my duty ne'ertheless
E'en though the world merrily goes on,
Unmindful of our plight, and coldly
 thankless.

Victory's Race.

"Well, well, Bess! What a name! Who ever heard of anyone naming a colt Victory? Its so unusual, really, its funny!"

"But daddy! that colt is unusual—look at his great big eyes! He looks at you as if he understands and would like to speak. Please call him Victory, daddy, 'cause some day I know he'll live up to that name."

"Very well, little daughter, call him what ever you choose." "You shall have him for your very own."

This conversation was carried on one bright sunny morning by Mr. Parker and his daughter Bess. Little Bess was ten years old. Her mother had died when Bess was a year old and at times she was very lonely. She tried, however, to be everybody's sunbeam bringing cheer and happiness wherever she went.

On this particular morning she was especially happy. She had been admiring the new colt for several days and now he was to be her own.

Time went on. Bess and Victory became the best of friends. Victory was a fiery, high-strung animal. Just a word from Bess, however, and he was gentle as a lamb.

Year after year passed by. Bess was now seventeen years old. Everyday she would take Victory out for a swift canter across the hills. They ran races with other horses on her father's ranch and Victory always won.

One morning Mr. Parker was about to send one of his men across country about forty miles with a very important letter. Just then Bess came running out.

"Oh daddy, let me go! It is such a glorious morning! Everything seems to have caught the morning spirit; hear the robin sing! Even the leaves on the trees seem alive and the cool breeze is beckoning from the hill side. Please let us go, daddy. It is just the kind of a morning Victory and I like."

Bess had set her heart on going. She was so very happy and radiant this particular morning that Mr. Parker did not have the heart to refuse her. "Very well Bess have your way but do be careful. Several forest fires around, I hear." "Don't worry dad, I'm safe when I have Victory."

In a short time they were off. Away they galloped! Mr. Parker watched them till they reached the top of the hill, when Bess turned and waved her hat at her father. Then her errand and was on her way home over the hill-top they went and were lost to view.

The day passed by and the next morning came. Bess had completed All of a sudden she saw a small cloud of smoke coming from the forest through which she must pass. Never thinking of danger, they went on. She was now in the midst of the forest. Suddenly she heard a twig snap and looking back saw the fire close upon them.

"Go, Victory, go!" she yelled. The horse seemed to sense the danger and with one leap was off. Away he bounded! He seemed to go like the very wind. Looking back, Bess saw the fire steadily gaining on them. She spoke to the horse, "On! Victory, on! We've got to beat the fire! Its life or death, Victory, on! on!"

The horse seemed to understand and responded. His feet hardly seemed to touch the ground. But, fast as he went, the fire seemed to gain. Soon the flames seemed to be right behind them. Just a few more rods and they would reach the break which meant safety. The break consisted of plowed land over which the fire could not pass.

"On, Victory, we'll win! We'll win!" Bess cried, as she saw the break ahead of them.

Just one last leap and Victory reached the break. The angry flames behind were cheated.

Bess and Victory had reached the break and were safe. Mr. Parker and his men just came up to the break as Victory took his last leap for safety. Mr. Parker caught the fainting girl in his arms while the men attended to the exhausted horse.

Bess was carried to the house and taken care of. The first words she uttered when coming out of the faint was "Victory lived up to his name, didn't he, daddy?" Too exhausted to wait for a reply, she turned over and went to sleep.

POULTRY

CULLING FOWLS FOR MARKET

To Make Best Possible Returns Every Hen in Flock Should Be Layer—Weed Out Culls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every boy or girl having poultry naturally wishes to earn as much money as possible. To do this every hen should be a good layer. All cockerels, except those kept for breeding purposes, as well as pullets that lack vigor and vitality, should be eaten, canned for home use, or sold as soon as they are large enough, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Selecting or "weeding out" the hens that are poor layers and picking out for market the cockerels least likely to develop into good breeders is commonly called "culling" or culling for eggs and for market.

The best time to cull the hens is during August and September, usually from August 15 to September 15, for at that season it is easier to determine which are the good layers and which are boarders. At that time of year hens which show signs of laying or are laying and have not molted usually are the ones that have been the better layers during the entire season, and the hen that lays best during her first year usually will lay best during her second and third years. She is, therefore, the one to keep. It is not often advisable, however, to keep hens of the heavier breeds, such as Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Brahmas beyond their second year, or the smaller breeds, such as the Leghorns and Anconas beyond the third year, as they seldom prove profitable. You can learn all about the various tests necessary to pick out the good and the poor layers by reading Farmers' Bulletin 1112, which can be obtained by writing to the Division of Publications, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

PORTABLE HOUSES ARE BEST

Make It Possible to Keep Young Growing Fowls on Fresh, Uncontaminated Land.

On a recent visit to a large practical poultry farm, it was observed that good use was being made of a number of portable poultry houses. These were of good size and were on runners made of heavy joists. The runners were braced against each other, so that a horse could be hitched to the front and the house hauled anywhere. This made it possible to keep the young growing birds on fresh, uncontaminated sod, which was always sending up a good lot of fresh grass.

When the movable houses were pulled away from each place where they had been for a few weeks, the rains soon washed the droppings into the soil. This nourished the grass and improved the land. In no case was the sod eaten down till the ground was bare.

For small chicks the same plant used small coops on two wheels that could easily be pushed from place to place by hand. In this way they never were troubled with gapes or contaminated soil.

POULTRY NOTES

Look out for lice when your chickens look droopy and sleepy.

Eat or sell off all your surplus cockerels before commencing on the pullets.

The very early pullet is apt to molt in the fall and be no more profitable for laying purposes than the hen.

Put the coops for your little chickens as high in the yard as possible. A knoll covered with grass is preferable; then a sudden shower will not drown them.

* * *

Where healthy fowls are used for breeding purposes, and they are housed in properly ventilated and arranged houses, and are fed a proper ration for the purpose in mind, disease is practically a total stranger.

Bacteria Furnish Nitrogen.

Sweet clover, like most legumes, depends largely for its nitrogen on the work of bacteria that live in nodules on the roots of the plant. While it is not always necessary to inoculate the seed with this bacteria it is always advisable.

Tomato Wilt Carried.

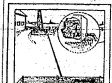
Tomato wilt is carried in the plants and the disease is very often scattered by this means; therefore care should be taken where plants come from.

SIMPLE WATER SYSTEM PLAN

Time and Work Saved by Constructing Drinking Tank in Pasture to Supply Cattle.

In order to save time and work I figured out a plan whereby I was able to eliminate the necessity of bringing the cattle from the pasture field into the barnyard where the water-supply tank was located each time they needed a drink.

I bored a 1¼-inch hole near the bottom of the large tank, putting a nipple through it; then I connected the nipple on the outside of the tank with a coupling to a pipe which ran a distance of 200 feet to the pasture field where I had placed a small drinking tank, the water running into the small tank through a goose neck on the end of the pipe. Inside the large tank I placed a globe valve so when shut off there was no chance for the water to freeze if the supply tank were kept full. The goose neck was laid over flat by pivoting at the lower elbow, thus draining the entire pipe.



Water System Saves Time.

A ¾-inch pipe would have been just as satisfactory for this system but as I had the 1¼-inch size on hand I used it.

Of course, this system naturally requires an incline in the distance between the two tanks.—D. O. Beaty, in Power Farming.

KEEPING RECORD OF LAYERS

By Means of Contest It Is Hoped to Gain Facts for Selection of Better Stock.

The first one-year egg-laying contest in Indiana began March 1 in Clay county, the United States Department of Agriculture has been advised. One hundred hens of several of the Mediterranean, American and English breeds from several farms in the county have been assembled at one farm. Before establishing the hens in their new home a record was made of all their characteristics. As the contest progresses the records of the hens as layers will be compared monthly with their physical characteristics. It is hoped by this means to obtain facts for the selection of more profitable stock.

Must Feed Cow Liberally.

To be a good performer a cow needs a generous ration of hay and grain, and the excess over mere maintenance measures the capacity of milk production.

Go Back in Production.

Cows milked by the calf from year to year go back in their producing capacity instead of improving it.

Roughage for Calf.

Provide all the good clover or alfalfa hay the calf will eat up clean.

Reducing the Hazard

"The enlightened employer interests himself in the conservation of the health of his employes and in their safety, so far as he can provide them," says the Chicago Tribune.

For many years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has followed this plan as a part of its established policy.

This Company maintains an exceptionally high standard of safety insurance. It not only provides safety devices but by encouraging the organization of safety committees in all of its refineries, it has been successful in reducing accidents in its refineries to a point which actually is below that of many businesses naturally less hazardous.

As an example of its efforts in this direction is cited the fact that all Standard Oil Company (Indiana) refineries are provided with elaborate fire-fighting devices, of which live steam and chemicals are notable refinements.

The Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) recognize that an employe who believes himself to be well-treated and secure is a better worker and is more interested in giving full service both to the Company and to the public than is the employe who lacks this feeling of security.

The management of this Company believes that every constructive measure for the benefit of its employes is a definite factor in lowering the cost of doing business, in securing greater efficiency, and ultimately lowering prices of its products to the consumer.

Hazard reduction is but one item, though an important one, in the Company's complete program of attention to the well-being of its employes. Other items include liberal compensation, good working conditions, steady work, and insurance in so far as is possible against unemployment. In addition this Company has devised an annuity system to provide for the protection of those who have grown old in its service.

The efforts of the management to provide ways and means of eliminating the dangers of a highly hazardous occupation is reflected in the enthusiasm of the workers and the whole-hearted endorsement of 26,560 stockholders, not one of whom owns as much as 10 percent of the total.

RED CROSS WINNING IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How it accepted the task revealed to it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report. Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectually the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better nourished citizenry.

The task of the Red Cross Public Health nurse in the 1,240 nursing services now operating throughout the country instructing their communities in health essentials and disease prevention is demonstrating the possibilities of human betterment and the great benefits of enlightenment.

During the last year 313 new public health nursing services were established by Red Cross Chapters, and several hundred services so convincingly proved their effectiveness that they were taken over by public authorities. In order to promote this work $30,000 was allotted to provide women to prepare themselves for public nursing. The home visits made by the 1,240 nurses aggregated nearly 1,500,000, visits to schools numbered 140,000, and in six months 1,250,000 school children were inspected by these nurses and where defects were found advised examination by physicians. In rural communities this service has made a very marked advance and has won thousands of converts to approved methods of disease prevention.

In home hygiene and care of the sick instruction, which fits the student in methods of proper care where illness is not so serious as to require professional service, the Red Cross conducted 3,831 classes during the last year, enrolled 2,350 instructors, 40,448 students and issued 42,650 certificates.

On June 30, 1922, nutrition service embraced 1,195 classes, with a total of 27,523 children and 2,589 enrolled dietitians. Seventy-eight food selection classes graduated 733 who received Red Cross certificates. In general health activities Red Cross Chapters maintained 877 health centers, serving as many communities, provided 38,751 health lectures for large audiences everywhere, while clinics numbered over 10,909.

Red Cross Gains Strength in All Foreign Fields

In insular possessions of the United States and in foreign lands the American Red Cross scored heavy gains during the last year, passing the previous membership high mark of 1918 by 4,201 and advancing the figure to 130,498. The Philippines take the lead, gaining nearly 100 per cent, now having 113,917 members. In Europe the 1921 Roll Call enrolled 11,125, with the Constantinople Chapter reporting 665, a gain of 83 members. China was 1,782 members, a gain of 590; the little Virgin Islands have 1,000, while the Dominican Republic with 2,927 advanced from its previous high mark by 1,423 new members. Haiti, organized in 1920, now has nearly 1,000 enrolled. Mexico reports 354, a gain of 327 in one year. The American Red Cross has spread its membership over some 70 foreign lands and its Junior membership outside of the United States is close to 700,000.

Red Cross Water First Aid Makes Life-Saving Gain

More than 335 Chapters engaged in life saving or water first aid last year with the result that the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps has set a new high mark for enrollment and the number of qualified life savers developed. The influence of "learn to swim week" in many localities in reducing the water fatalities through instruction and the wider dissemination of resuscitation methods demonstrated by the Red Cross representatives. Excellent work has been done in teaching a large part of the American population how to take care of itself in the water. Growing appreciation for this Red Cross Life-Saving Service is shown by the compulsory instruction adopted in many cities for members of the police and fire departments in the prone pressure method of resuscitation.

Help to Help Others

You can't "give until it hurts"—for giving an American dollar to join the American Red Cross helps you to help others who are hurt and who need relief.

MATCHED LUMBER FOR NESTS

Plan to Have as Few Cracks and Crevices as Possible, Built in Portable Sections.

When first in the poultry business we thought that nests made of scrap lumber or small boxes were satisfactory. Now we believe that the nests should be of smooth matched lumber with as few cracks and crevices as possible, says a writer in an exchange. They must never be nailed to the sides of the wall or beneath the dropping boards, but built in portable sections, so they can be easily carried from the house for sunning and spraying.

When we used open nests in some of the houses the birds were constantly roosting on them or bothering the hens while they were laying. After several eggs had been laid in a nest another hen might decide to scratch around in the litter in that nest. This resulted in broken eggs and then it was only a short step to the egg eating habit.

The best nests are built with a small track at the rear where the hens can enter. The eggs are removed by lowering a hinged door in front. These nests are slightly darkened and the hens hardly see the eggs that are laid. There is not much scratching in the litter in a darkened nest. If a soft-shelled egg is laid and broken the danger of the hen eating it is reduced.

The egg-eating habit probably causes as much loss and discouragement as any habit or disease which troubles poultry keepers. The remedy is largely in prevention and this consists in building the right kind of nests.

POULTRY NOTES

Keep chicks out of the wet grass.

The boarder hen always jumps her board bill. Give her the crate.

Geese grow fast, and need no feed in the summer if they have a grassy run.

Filth causes more sickness than anything else. Clean up and keep things clean!

DAIRY POINTS

IMPORTANCE OF ICING MILK

Product Delivered at Night Often in Greater Need of Ice Than During Day Time.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some milk distributors who would not think of sending out loads of milk during the day without icing do not ice the milk delivered by their wagons to the consumer's doorstep at night, giving as their reason that night delivery is more rapid. The United States Department of Agriculture, in a recent statement, calls attention to the fact that milk delivered to the consumer's home at night often is in greater need of icing than that which is delivered during the day.

The important consideration, says the department, is the time elapsing between taking the milk from the plant until it is placed in the consumer's refrigerator. The fact that the dealer delivers it quickly does not mean that it will reach the refrigerator quickly. Bottles delivered at the door usually are not taken in until after the sun has been up for some time.

During the summer months it is very important that milk on delivery wagons be well iced. When milk is liable not to be taken in at once, it should arrive at the doorstep at a temperature of 50 degrees F. or lower. If the ordinary open-bottom cases are used and stacked not more than two high, it is necessary to ice only the top row, as the cold air will pass down to the others. Ordinances, says the department, may well prohibit the delivery of milk at a temperature higher than 50 degrees F.

Consumers may help by placing a properly insulated container on the doorstep, in which the milkman may put the bottles of milk.

CONTESTS IMPROVE QUALITY

Demonstrations in South Carolina Have Done Much to Promote Dairy Industry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

County and state butter contests, a feature of South Carolina extension work for women last year, accomplished much in the way of improving the dairy industry there. South Carolina is not a dairy state. It uses annually about $14,000,000 worth of dairy products shipped in from other states. Some of this importation is due to the fact that while there is a large amount of farm butter produced within the state, no steady demand for it has been developed. For the purpose of creating an interest in this farm-made butter, and to teach the women to make a better product, contests which were open to home-demonstration club members were started during 1921 in 11 counties.

Butter demonstrations were given in all the women's clubs, and all interested persons were invited to a demonstration by the state specialist at the county seat. Three hundred and sixty women and girls enrolled for the contests, and of these 120 sent butter for every judging. Without exception there was a great improvement in the packages brought to market and the quality of the butter sold, as the women learned to what extent the butter is affected by the temperature used for ripening and churning, the care and cleanliness in handling, and the feeds for the cow.

"Contest butter" sold very readily at the various club markets, and those who did not enter the contest were obliged to make improvement in the quality of what they offered for sale or lose the market for their butter. Extension workers report to the United States Department of Agriculture that the butter produced in all parts of the state has been perceptibly improved as a result of these contests.

THE DAIRY

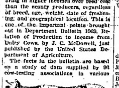
LARGE PRODUCERS EAT MUCH

One of the Important Points Brought Out in Department Bulletin by J. C. McDowell.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cows that produce milk and butterfat in large quantities have keen appetites and roomy paunches, but they bring in higher incomes over feed cost than the scanty producers, regardless of breed, age, weight, date of freshening, and geographical location. This is one of the important points brought out in Department Bulletin 1069, Relation of Production to Income from Dairy Cows, by J. C. McDowell, just published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The facts in the bulletin are based on a study of data supplied by 96 cow-testing associations in various parts of the country. Because of better feeding, better breeding, and better care, cows owned by association members are much better than the general run of cows. The estimated production per head of all the dairy cows in the United States is approximately 4,000 pounds of milk and 160 pounds of butterfat a year. The association cows are about 50 per cent better, producing an average of 6,077 pounds of milk and 248 pounds of butterfat.



This Cow Ate More Than 11 Tons of Grain, Hay, Silage and Beet Pulp in a Year—She Made in That Time More Than a Half Ton of Butter and More Than 10 Tons of Milk.

According to figures based on 18,014 yearly individual cow records, as butterfat production increased from 100 to 400 pounds there was a regular increase of about $16 in income over feed cost per cow for every 50 pounds of increase in average production of butterfat. As the yield of butterfat increased from 109 pounds to 396 pounds, the returns above the dollar expended for feed increased from 35 cents to $1.52.

The cows having an average milk production of 3,250 pounds showed an average income of $32.25 over the cost of feed, while those producing 18,250 pounds showed an average income of $218.10 over feed cost. The cows in the latter group produced about four times as much as those in the other group, and their average income over cost of feed was nearly seven times as great. The increase in income above feed cost grew regularly with the increase in production.

A study of these records shows that it pays best to put feed into big producers, even though they are big eaters, says the department.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

KEEP COLTS IN ROOMY STALL

Young Animals Should Not Be Permitted to Run With Mares Which Are Working in Field.

If mares are being used for farm work, do not let colts run with them in the field. Keep the colts penned in a roomy, clean, cool, ventilated box stall in the barn. If the stall is screened to keep out flies, so much the better. Let the colts nurse morning, noon and night, and run with their mothers in the horse paddock at night.

Busy Bee School Notes

Another happy school month has disappeared from our school calendar. Perfect attendance was attained by: Mildred Solback, Pearl Doran, Clarence Engvald and Olephine Dahl, Betsy and Morris Flann, Leonard Johnson, Eleanor, Ruby and Mildred Hall, Mayme, Anne and Esther Evenson, Margaret, Arnold and Esther Hanson. The leaders of our spelling contest are: 7th grade, Mayme Evenson; 6th grade, Anne Evenson; 5th grade, Morris Flann; 3rd grade, Margaret Hanson. The basket social held netted us $18.10. The funds are to be used in getting paint for inside decoration. A number of men have kindly volunteered to stage a painting bee next Friday to perform the job of rejuvenating. The 5th, 6th, and 7th grades earned a quarter holiday for having two weeks perfect attendance. The vacation period was devoted to making spelling booklets or a library period. The artist studied this month is Landseer. Copies of quite a number of his pictures were obtained and very much appreciated by the pupils. The seventh grade English class wrote some very creditable papers on the life of Landseer. Rosa Bonheur will be taken up as our next artist. The poem studied and memorized this month was "The landing of the Pilgrim Fathers."

FINAL HEARING ON CLEARWATER PROJECT HERE

Expected That All Evidence Will be Presented by Friday or Saturday

Attorney For Opposition to Red Lake Project to Present Briefs to Court

Decision on Both Undertakings Should be Rendered in Two or Three Weeks

The final hearing in the Clearwater river drainage project is being conducted before Judges Grindeland and Stanton at the court house today. It is likely that the hearing will be completed Friday evening or Saturday morning.

Red Lake Hearing Adjourned

The hearing in the Red Lake and Red Lake river matter was adjourned late Friday night with instructions to opposing counsel to submit briefs covering the case.

Considerable opposition was voiced by farmers on account of assessments, especially in view of present agricultural depression. Many farmers also misunderstood the benefits estimated to accrue to their farms to be their assessment of cost. It was brought out at the hearing that the assessments of cost would be only twenty-eight per cent of the estimated benefits.

Because of the misunderstanding in the matter of costs and other things in connection with the project, the following statement of facts prepared by C. G. Selvig, chairman of the drainage board, will prove of interest and instructive to all interested.

For many years and especially ever since the opening of the eleven towns east of and adjacent to Thief River Falls, there has been a constant demand by settlers in the basin of the Red Lake river for relief from flood conditions. All are familiar with the fact that the Red Lake river leaving its source at the outlet of Red Lake for many miles flow through a low, flat, swampy country with great meadows of grass land stretching north and south on either side interspersed with so-called islands of poplar and other native trees and an occasional tamarack swamp. There are, practically, no banks to the river and at other places the banks are ill-defined and in flood stages the river frequently becomes miles in width. The water which leaves the river in its upper course flows generally west, northwest and southwest over the lands further down and valuable farm lands in the towns of Hickory, Star, Deer Park, Reiner, Goodridge, Mayfield, Highlanding and Kratka are subject to inundation even in ordinary heavy rains so that farmers have not been safe in putting in crops.

It has been evident for some time that the established ditch laws of the state were not broad enough to cover the situation besides which the upper course of the river is through the Red Lake Indian Reservation and nothing can be done in the limits of the reservation without the consent of the federal government nor can Indian lands be assessed for the costs of improvement except with consent of the government. The demand for relief in 1919 after the great July flood of that year led to a meeting called at the suggestion of farmers living in the basins of the Red Lake river, more than three hundred being in attendance, in the city of Thief River Falls to organize a drainage district and take advantage of a new law which permitted the comprehensive improvement of an entire river basin.

At this meeting committees were appointed for the several counties, meetings held, petitions circulated signed largely by interested farmers and finally early in 1920, the Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy District was organized for the purpose of inmproving the Red Lake river and its tributaries including Red Lake.

To carry out the spirit of organization the district court appointed as the first board of directors four farmers from as many counties and the superintendent of the state farm school at Crookston. The board entered actively upon the work planned out by the farmers who brought about the organization. Petitions were circulated and presented to the board asking for the improvement of the Red Lake river and Red Lake by the dredging, straightening and deepening of the river and the holding back the water of the lake in flood time by a control dam at the outlet.

The petitions outlined the work asked for and following this outline the drainage board sent its engineers

CHAS. BRINK DROPS DEAD AT PLACE OF BUSINESS TUESDAY

Heart Failure Causes Sudden Death of One of Early Settlers of This Community

Charlie A. Brink, one of the early settlers in this community, and well known among people of Thief River Falls and vicinity, died suddenly at his confectionary store on Labree avenue, Tuesday afternoon about 2 o'clock.

Mr. Brink was going about his work in his store as usual when the final summons came. He was giving one of the patrons chips following a game of cards when he fell to the floor dead. His unexpected death came as a distant shock to his friends and customers, as he was of usual health until the end came.

Deceased first came to Thief River Falls in 1899 when he entered into business with John Morgan with whom he continued until the latter sold out in 1912. Mr. Brink then went to Red Lake Falls where he was located for a short time but returned to this city and started the confectionary business in which he was engaged at the time of his death. Mr. Brink was 59 years of age, being born Oct. 6, 1863 at Lidkoping, Vester Gotand, Sweden. He emigrated to the United States at the age of twenty, coming to St. Hilaire in the fall of 1883. Previous to his moving to Thief River Falls he was in partnership with his brother, O. W. Brink, conducting a blacksmith and machine shop for a number of years.

Mr. Brink was a bachelor but is survived by three sisters and three brothers. They are Miss Emma Brink of Jordan, Mont., Mrs. John Freberg of Crookston, Mrs. L. P. Thyren of St. Hilaire, Emil of Seattle, Wash., Oscar of Salt Lake City, Utah, and O. W. Brink of Eight Point, Mont. M. W. Brink of this city is a nephew of the deceased.

Funeral services will be conducted at the undertaking parlors of the Larson Furniture company Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Dr. Adkins Will Return to Resume Grygla Practice

Dr. C. M. Adkins, for the past three years a prominent Thief River Falls physician, returns this week to Grygla where he will have charge of the hospital which has been erected in the village. It is modern and is equipped to afford the best possible accommodations for its patients. Dr. Adkins took his children out there last week, having taken up residence there and will resume his former practice immediately.

FARMERS OF HICKORY TOWNSHIP CRICITIZE CITY PETITION SIGNERS

Wanke, Minn., Dec. 12.

We, the undersigned Farmers and Land owners in Hickory Township Pennington Co., hereby assert that The Tribune of Thief River Falls and all the businessmen that signed the protest in the Dec. 6 issue of The Tribune took in too much territory when they tried to express the sentiment of Hickory Township.

We wil admit that we are heavily burdened but we are absolutely convinced that the proposed improvement of the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers is the only way out of our difficulties.

If we can not stand the cost of this inprovement we surely can not see our way out under present conditions.

The inprovement should be made as soon as possible in order to remove the element of uncertinly that we now labor under.

The Citizens of Thief River Falls who signed this statement don't believe in wading in water themselves, they have drained the city and then paved their streets at possibly as great a cost per lot as this improvement will cost for each forty acres.

Not a man in Hickory to our knowledge protested against this improvement.

We would of course like to get of easier if we could but we have not heard from The Tribune or any of the signers of this protest of any plan whereby this can be done and done as soon as under the plan proposed by The Red Lake Drainage and Conservancy Board.

And until we do, we don't like to have this plan discarded. We believe that this board and the engineers and experts they have consulted have put forth their very best efforts in our behalf and we also believe that if The Tribune and the signers of this protest can prove that there is a better or cheaper way to go about this work at as early a date as present plans propose, that the board will be glad to make use of such suggestions.

RURAL CREDITS BILL IS OUTLINED BY LEGISLATORS

Draft of Measure Decided on at Meeting of Committee Held in St. Paul

Proposed Bill Would Provide For Commission of Three Members to Pass Loans

Would Loan up to 60 Per Cent of Assessed Value of Land. Maximum of $15,000

An outline of a bill to put into effect the rural credits amendment adopted at the November election was decided upon by a special committee of 10 members of the House of Representatives at a conference yesterday at the capitol. The committee, headed by Co. R. A. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo, was named recently by W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis, after he was assured reelection as speaker of the House.

Covering the general scope of agricultural legislation which will be presented at the coming session, the committee yesterday determined upon salient features of the rural credits bill, discussed a bill to bar sale of filled milk and considered recommending that the legislation memoralize Congress to pass legislation to stabilize prices of farm products. Today the committe will delve into co-operative marketing and revision of cold storage laws.

Credits Come Up First

The proposed rural credits measure in substance is modeled after the South Dakota law. Every effort is to be made to have the Minnesota bill ready when the convention convenes January 2, since Governor Preus has informed Colonel Wilkinson that he hopes the rural credits legislation will be among the first business before the legislators.

A sub-committee consisting of Colonel Wilkinson, W. I. Norton of Minneapolis and O. C. Neuman of Wheaton will incorporate the committee's recommendations into a temporary draft ready for consideration by the committee shortly before the legislature opens.

Provides Three Members

The proposed bill would provide for three members to be appointed by the governor, who in turn would set an executive secretary. The present plan is to pay salaries commensurate with the experience and training required. Governor Preus was opposed to making any state official a member of the board, such as provided in the South Dakota law.

A farmer, under the plan, would make application for a loan direct to the board and such loan could be granted on vote of two members. Money would be loaned on land up to 60 per cent of the assessed value and on improvements up to 40 per cent of the insured value. The insured value is considered to be 75 per cent of the assessed value of the buildings.

Maximum Loan $15,000

In no case would money on improvements be made where the assessed value of improvements exceeds 50 per cent of the assessed land value. The total loan any one applicant would receive would not exceed $15,000.

The loans would be granted thru bond issues bearing 4½ per cent. The rate charged the farmer would be six per cent, which would include the rate for the bonds, one-half of one per cent for administration purposes and creation of a reserve and one per cent to amortize the loan in 35 years. Any time after five years a borrower could diminish the principal by making extra payments.

The sub-committee on rural credits will confer with the attorney general and when the bill is completed it will be printed and distributed to those interested.

Poland China Breeders Elect Fuller President

H. W. Fuller of Mavie was chosen president of the Pennington county Poland-China Breeders' association organized at a meeting of farmers of the county held at County Agent McCann's rooms yesterday during the poultry show. The new organization will have as its aim the promotion of hog raising in Pennington county and the introduction of desirable and profitable breeds. Plans are being made to show a county herd at the Farm Crop show at Crookston which will be held some time in February.

Another big feature of the association will be the holding of an annual sale which will enable the breeders to dispose of their animals to the best advantage, in the same manner as dairy cattle are now being sold in this community.

To create increased interest in the hog industry, Mr. Fuller is offering to every child in Pennington county a hog to feed and care for during the summer and when sold in the fall retain one half of the sum realized from the sale. The child raising the No. 1 hog will receive the full sale price.

The officers, besides H. W. Fuller, president, are: James Dreeland of Wylie, vice-president; Leonard Holmes of St. Hilaire, secretary treasurer; Ralph Mayhew and C. E. Bolin, directors. The two directors in addition to the other officers comprise the complete board of directors.

No Bus to Crookston Now

The motor bus line between Thief River Falls and Crookston has discontinued service on account of snow drifts making it almost impossible to get thru in many places, particularly in the cuts at Red Lake Falls.

School Debate Friday

The debate to take place Friday evening at the high school between Red Lake Falls and the local team is creating a great deal of interest. The question is, "Resolved, That Minnesota Should Adopt the Kansas Industrial Court as a Solution of its Labor Problems." Because of the interest that is taken in this subject by all classes it is likely that a large crowd will turn out to hear the debate.

Attends Church Meet

Rev. George Larson of the Zion Lutheran church was the local representative to a meeting of the Fosston district of the Lutheran Free church held at Winger the latter part of the week terminating Sunday, Dec. 3. The meeting was attended by a large number of delegates and pastors. Rev. Larson preached the sermon at the services held Sunday morning. The next gathering will take place in Thief River Falls next spring, the exact date for which has not yet been decided.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. FRED BEERBOWER

Passed Away at Home in Rockbury Township Following Ten Day's Illness

Mrs. Fred Beerbower passed away Tuesday noon at her family home in Rocksbury township, about five miles east of Thief River Falls, following an attack of pneumonia of only ten days' duration. She was taken seriously ill with the malady Dec. 2, her condition declining rapidly in spite of medical attention, until finally the end came, a decided shock to the many friends of the spendid woman, many of whom did not even know that she was sick.

Deceased, who was nearly 58 years of age at the time of her death, was born at Elkhart, Ind., April 11, 1865, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Price. At an early age she moved with her parents to Wintersett, Iowa, where she was united in marriage to Fred Beerbower, July 2, 1890. They resided in Iowa unti 1904 when they came to this community and settled on a farm north of this city where they remained for only two years. They then moved to the farm where they made their home the past sixteen years, Mr. Beerbower, being one of the most prominent farmers in this section. Mrs. Beerbower was widely known as a kind and oving wife and mother, and was well liked by everyone who had the pleasure of her acquaintance.

The husband and six children mourn the loss of the departed one. The children are: Merle, of Eugene, Ore., Mrs. Carl Olson, of Holt, Jessie, Fern, Lyall and Pat, all of whom reside at home.

Definite arrangements for the funeral have not been made yet, but it is expected that the remains will be laid to rest here, the exercises most likely to take place the latter part of the week. The family is awaiting the arrival of the eldest son from Oregon.

Mrs. Goar Wins $12,500 Personal Damage Suit

Mrs. Elmer Goar of Stephen, who brought suit against the village of Stephen and the Minnesota Electrical company wherein $40,000 was asked for personal damages as the result of electrical burns, was this week given a verdict of $12,000 at the trial in the district court at Warren which terminated yesterday. H. W. Protzeller of this city was one of the principal witnesses for the plaintiff as was also Dr. H. W. Froehlich, the attending physician following the accident. H. O. Chommie was one of the attorneys for Mrs. Goar in the case. Mrs. Goar is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Wedmer of Thief River Falls.

T. R. F. Boy Gets Honorable Mention

Among University of North Dakota students who received high rating in the balloting for a place in the "Who's Who" in the "Dakotah" was Leland Schuster, a Thief River Falls boy and a member of the '20 class from the local high school. Leland is a junior at the University and is taking a course in the department of commerce. The basis of selection was that of prominence in student activities and according to the honors won while at school.

SHIP BILL MAY BE LAID ASIDE FOR CREDITS ACT

LaFollette, Brookhart and Other Progressives Muster 58 Senators to Support Move

Congress Recognize Need of Doing Something at Once to Relieve Farming Industry

Fixing of Prices on Products More Necessary Than Increased Credit Facilities

Prompt enactment of the administration shipping bill was urged in the Senate and at the White House today, but at the same time indications grew stronger that the measure might soon be laid aside by the Senate in favor of rural credits legislation. Developments in connection with these two major pieces of legislation came thick and fast at the Senate wing of the Capitol and were supplemented by the declaration at the White House that the President believed the merchant marine measure should be disposed of before any other legislation was taken up by the Senate. The President, it was further asserted, held the view that the country was entitled to have a decision with respect to the measure without undue delay.

Jones Willing to Lay Aside Bill

Almost simultaneously with this declaration was the announcement by Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, in charge of the shipping bill that he would agree to lay aside his measure temporarily should advocates of rural credits legislation be able to bring before the Senate a bill in which there was a considerable degree of unanimity. He added, later in the day in the course of an extended address in behalf of the shipping bill—the opening statement for proponents of the merchant marine measure—that "there is no legislation we can pass except possibly a rural credits bill, that will benefit the farmers more than this bill to afford transportation across the ocean for their products."

Opponents Hold Conference

The announcement by Senator Jones of his willingness to lay aside temporarily the shipping bill was preceded by a series of conferences between Democratic and Republican opponents of the ship measure during which the stronger advocates of farm relief legislation in both parties were enlisted in the support of a proposal that a motion be made as soon as a rural credit bill was reported from a committee to take up the farm measure and to displace the merchant marine legislation. Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking Democratic, on the commerce committee, leader of Wis. and Brookhart of Iowa, Republican member of the new progressive bloc, conducted these conference and tonight announced they had 58 senators or considerably more than a majority to support the move.

Time of Move in Doubt

How soon the move might be made was a question tonight, although rural credits legislation was much to the force about the Senate throughout the day. The banking and currency committee, to which most of the half dozen or more rural credits bills have been referred, began consideration of the measures before it with the hearing of some of the proponents. Further hearings will be held tomorrow and it was indicated that it probably would be 10 days or two weeks before a measure could be reported. The agriculture committee which also is considering credit legislation, heard additional members of a delegation from the Northwestern states upon the Norris bill to establish a government capitalized corporation to buy and sell farm products and upon the Ladd bill to stabilize prices of the major agricultural products. The witnesses strongly endorsed the Ladd bill, declaring its enactment must go hand in hand with the passage of the credit legislation if the farmers of the Northwest were to be benefitted.

Kelly Makes Charges

Late in the day the hearings were enlivened by charges made by former Representative Kelly, of South Dakota, that the Chicago Board of Trade had contributed $100,000 toward the organization of the American Farm Bureau Federation, one of the largest of the various farmers' associations. The witness accused J. R. Howard, president and Gray Silver, legislative representative of the federation, of misrepresenting the farmers belonging to the organization.

Rural credits legislation also was taken up again at a meeting of the Senate farm bloc tonight. Members of the bloc have been trying to agree on a definite measure but leaders indicated that owing to differences of opinion, the bloc would not go on record in support of any one bill.

Although farm credits legislation was being pushed to the front, the shipping bill received its share of attention. Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, while delivering a speech on behalf of a "real farm credit bill," paused to attack the ship measure, and after doing so, offered as amendments, the soldier bonus bill, vetoed at the last session of Congress by President Harding, and also his own farm credits bill.

Return From Conference

Allison Stitt and Sydney Schutt returned Monday evening from Eveleth where they attended a three day session of the Older Boys' Conference of Northern Minnesota, given under the auspices of the state Y. M. C. A. The two boys who represented the local Presbyterian church and the high school, say that they had a splendid trip, being treated with royal hospitality during their three-day stay there. The conference, which is held for the purpose of installing higher ideals in the young boys of high school age, and works for the promotion of worthy leadership, was addressed by many eminent speakers and men of affairs. Among them may be mentioned: Rev. Chas. W. Ramshaw of Duluth; Earl W. Brandenberg, of Chicago; J. J. Runyan of Minneapolis; Oliver Aas, captain of the Minnesota football team and Norman McLeod of Duluth.

Mail Packages Early

Every person in Pennington county should co-operate with the postoffice employes in their request to mail Xmas packages early. It will relieve the last hour rush that always takes place and will make certain the delivery of packages on time. All packages going any distance should be mailed this week. "Mail Xmas Packages Now" should be the slogan adopted by all.

First Basket Ball Game of Season Auditorium. Locals Have Strong Aggregation

Tomorrow evening the Thief River Falls high school basketeers meet the Greenbush quint at the Greenbush floor and a hot contest is expected as this the local's first game this season and their opponents are reported to be quite a fast group of players.

The members of the squad that will undoubtedly make the trip tomorrow are: Stanley and Clifford Sorenson, Milford LaBree, Charles Herron, John Sether, Sydney Schutt and Herbert Keene. The first conference game of the season will be played here next Thursday, Dec. 21, when Warren comes to meet the locals on the auditorium floor. Thief River Falls and Warren have not clashed for the past two seasons and there is every indication of a real hot contest between the two rivals. It is anticipated that a great deal of interest will be taken in high school basketball this year as the high school has the only team in the city at the present time.

Overheated Stove Causes Destructive Fire in Barn

The dray office and livery barn opposite the post office was practically destroyed by flames last Saturday morning about 2 o'cock when a fire apparently caused by an overheated stove in the office, spread to practically the whole building. Part of the barn presented a mass of flames when the fire department appeared, the alarm being given by the night patrolman. The front section was practically destroyed, the roof falling down within a short time. The loss is estimated at about 700 dollars. George Newberry is the owner of the building, which will now be torn down, as it has been condemned for some time.

Pioneer Residents Pass Away

Three early settlers of Marshall county passed away recently according to last week's issue of the Middle River Pioneer.

Michael Joseph Polansky, who resided on a farm near Middle River, died Nov. 23 at the hospital in Warren following a series of operations for various ailments. Deceased was 48 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss, his widow, six daughters and two sons. Funeral services were held at the St. Bernard's church in this city.

Mrs. August Anderson, who had suffered from lung complications for some time, died at her family home in Spruce Grove, Nov. 27. Mrs. Anderson was a native of Dalarne, Sweden, and was 63 years of age at the time of her death. She is survived by ten children, her husband having passed away four years previously.

On Nov. 30, Ludwig Nyman, a resident of Huntley township, Marshall county, died from cancer at the age of 55. He is survived by his wife and nine children.

ELKS' CARNIVAL PROCEEDS HELP CHARITY FUND

"Best People on Earth" to Provide Regular Indoor Circus Friday and Saturday

Taking This Means to Provide Agency Whereby Everyone Contribute Something

Fine Radio Outfit to be Given Away Absolutely Free on Saturday Evening

The big holiday event for this entire section will without doubt be the Elks' Carnival which opens in this city tomorrow evening and continues until Saturday night. The weather being such as to make an outdoor frolic of this kind in possible a large part of the second floor of the Citizens Bank building has been converted into a play ground for this occasion.

For one reason or another many of the customary Christmas functions will have to be omitted in Thief River Falls this year and the Elks have therefore taken it upon themselves to furnish something unusual for the people, all of whom are invited.

Every cent of the proceeds over and above the actual expenses will be devoted to charitable purpose and will be distributed where they will do the greatest good without regard to the ricipients' race, color or previous condition of servitude. It must not be taken from this, however, that the Elks are depending upon the proceeds of this entertainment to finance their Christmas activities entirely. They will follow their usual custom in this respect in any event. It has come to the notice of the officers that there will be a greater demand upon the pocketbooks of all good-hearted people this season than for many years past, and the Elks are simply providing a plan whereby everybody can contribute a little something and at the same time get more than their money's worth in high-class entertainment.

To add interest to the carnival it has been announced that one of the latest and best radio outfits procurable will be given away to someone attending. This is done merely to help swell the receipts to be devoted to charitable purposes. It should be remembered that the Elks' budget for this item alone is very heavy. Not only are the poor of Thief River Falls—and particularly the children—to receive something of a substantial nature to remind them of Christmas, but the giving will extend to neighboring cities and farms, where the need for help is decidedly more acute. It is a big undertaking and can only be handled in a satisfactory way through some such agency are the Elks are providing through this carnival.

The best amusement features obtainable have been booked for this great winter event. There will be oceans of clean, wholesome fun and everyone is certain to receive more than his money's worth. Come and help swell the crowd.

Crookston Resident Found Dead and Frozen in Car

Following is an item which appeared in the Crookston Times last week concerning the sad demise of one of the early pioneers of the Red River Valley.

"Hans Larson, one of the pioneer residents of Crookston and one of the oldest settlers of the Red River valley, was found dead at about nine o'clock Thursday morning in the rear seat of his Ford sedan car in which he was making the trip from Angus to Crookston last night. Death was due to a sudden heart attack.

His body was discovered this morning by passers-by who reported the matter to County Coroner Dr. H. E. Nelson and other county officials who immediately made the trip to the scene, about two miles north of the city on the King of Trials highway. The face, hands and legs of the man's body were frozen stiff from the exposure during the night. Death was believed to have occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Mr. Larson left the city Wednesday for Angus where he secured his car and started back to Crookston early in the evening. At a point about two miles north of Crookston it is thought that he may have become slightly ill. From tracks in the snow around the car, it is believed that Mr. Larson got out of the front seat and walked around the car. Later it is beieved he got into the rear seat to rest while in the pains of the attack. County Coroner Nelson stated that death came very suddenly.

The deceased was one of the pioneers of this vicinity and was well known throughout the northwest part of the state. He came to Polk county in the early eighties and had lived here ever since excepting for the past few months during which time he has mostly spent at his new home near Faunce, in the new county of the Lake of the Woods. Mr. Larson had been appointed to the county board of commissioners of the new county.

Besides his wife and two sons and two daughters, a number of brothers are left to mourn his death."

Plays With Philharmonics

Miss Ausilga Sorenson, formerly music teacher in Thief River Falls but now of Grand Forks, appeared in a concert with the Philharmonic orchestra of the North Dakota University, at the Metropolitan opera house last Sunday. Miss Sorenson played one of the two violas used in the organization.

RED LAKE FALLS MEN JAILED; SELL BOOZE

John E. Savard, proprietor of the White Front "soft" drink parlor at Red Lake Falls was arrested last week by Deputy United States Marshal Philip Converse on warrants alleging the sale of liquor to operatives of the prohibition enforcement department. John Johnson, who has been employed for some months at the Savard place was arrested also on the same charges. Ernest Porter, who formerly ran a restaurant at Red Lake Falls, was arrested on similar charges by Marshall Converse at Crookston, according to reports.

Exchange War Savings Stamps For Certificates

"It is to be hoped that every person who can do so will exchange War Savings Stamps, soon to fall due, for Treasury savings certificates," said local post office officials. "The large amount of money invested and the great number of persons who purchased war savings stamps showed that the people of this country could save money when the necessity arose. Now, if they will take the money they saved when they bought stamps to aid the government in the prosecution of the war and buy Treasury savings certificates, they will demonstrate that the thrift lessons of the war have not been without effect. The holders of war savings stamps have seen investments of about $20.50 grow to $25 in five years, and larger amounts in the same proportion. They can see the same thing repeated if they reinvest in Treasury savings certificates. Interest accumulates at the rate of 4 per cent each year, compounded semi-annually. These savings certificates are exempt from the normal Federal income tax, and from all State and local taxation (except estate and inheritance taxes,) and may be held to the amount of $5,000, maturity value, for each issue, by every member of a family. They are backed by the credit of the United States Government, and afford an easy and sure method of saving."

Vacation at U. of Minn. Begins Next Wednesday

Final examinations for the fall quarter at the University of Minnesota will begin Saturday, Dec. 16, and continue through Wednesday, Dec 20. The Christmas holiday will start at 5:20 p.m. Wednesday and will last until Thursday, Jan. 4, when classes will be reopened at 8:30 a.m. Registration of new students, entering at the beginning of the winter quarter, has been set for Tuesday, Jan 2.

Arrival of the winter quarter will usher in the year's longest period of uninterrupted hard work as there will be but two holidays, Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, and Washington's birthday, Feb. 22.

With football out of the way and with weather conductive to indoor life and application to books, the average student "get in his best licks" during the midwinter months, according to a concensus of opinion among faculty members. Spring vacation will begin this year on Friday, March 23.

In Declamation Contest

Miss Olive Aaland, a student at the high school, left Friday evening for Minneapolis to participate in the state Sigvald Quale declamation contest held there Saturday at the Augsburg Seminary. Miss Aaland was awarded first place in a local tryout which entitled her to take part in the state contest. The young lady also won honors in a Norwegian essay contest conducted last year by the Sons of Norway lodge, her essay appearing in the columns of the Progress page at that time and received praising comments from several educators. The Sigvald Quale contests are held each year to create increased interest in the Norse literature.

Beets Net $63 Per Acre

Alfred Flattum, a farmer east of Thief River Falls, reports that the returns on his sugar beet crop show a net amount of nearly $63 per acre. This sum is more than was realized from any other crop this year, and will be an impetus to a larger acreage of beets in this section next year.

Thanks For Contributions

The Salvation Army wishes to thank the people who so generously contributed old clothes for distribution among the needy, a call for which was made some time ago. The articles donated will be used for a good purpose and it is hoped that the public will continue to send in their gifts.

Seriously Ill

Miss Christine Clausen is seriously ill at her apartments above the Farmers and Merchants bank, suffering from ailments not yet determined by the attending physicians. She has been confined for about two weeks and showed signs of improvement the early part of the week but her condition has now turned more critical, according to late reports.

When I graduated in 1908 from the Philadelphia School of Embalming my idea was to be able to serve the public at any time a lady embalmer might be needed to care for either a mother, sister or children, believing that this was more appropriate than for a man to do the work.

It does not seem to make any difference here. In other cities in all up-to-date undertaking establishments a lady embalmer is retained to care for their own sex. In many instances they have their own undertaking business and assume full charge of the funerals.

It seems hard in some localities for the people to understand that a woman is capable of such work as well as a man, yet such is the case and I am prepared to serve you at any time I may be called.

over the work and in the most practical and economical manner possible surveyed the river, prepared plans, and brought the matter to a head by appointing viewers to cover the immense territory involved and determine what benefits would be derived and against what lands and property they should be assessed. After a thorough and conscientious examination the viewers prepared their report and the plan as outlined in the farmers' petition, the engineers report, and the viewers' assessments, was presented to the district court at the hearing held here last week. It should be noted in this place that the engineering work to this date has been paid for entirely by an appropriation secured for this purpose at the board's request from the state so that no part of the engineering work now incurred is chargeable to see lands benefitted.

It is generally conceded that the improvement is necessary and advisable but considerable opposition arose owing, first, to the general business depression and hard times; and second, to a misunderstanding as to the actual amounts to be charged against the property benefited. Another cause of misunderstanding was the apparent omission of assessments against water powers along the river, and many farmers who attended the hearing for the purpose of opposing the project came honestly believing that the charge against the lands was too great to be borne and that the water power interests were not going to be made to pay for the benefits they may receive.

The report of the viewers shows the amount in dollars assessed against each forty acres or fraction. These benefits range from $320.00 per forty acres down. Many were misled and understood that the $320.00 which amounts to eight dollars per acre was the amount they would have to pay towards the work. However, their eyes were opened by the testimony taken at the hearing. In the engineer's plans as now revised $81,000.00 has been cut off by reductions in the structure of the dam and controlling works and the total estimated cost now stands at $514,000.00 while the benefits found by the viewers amount to $1,870,000.00.

This means, and the testimony was brought out before the two judges presiding, that the actual cost per acre is the proportion that the cost of the project bears to the total benefits, which will make the total cost per acre twenty-eight (28%) only of the benefits assessed. For example, land assessed at eight dollars per acre benefits (the highest) will be actually be charged $2.24 per acre cost. The engineer's estimate is a very careful one. As the law provided that construction contracts cannot be let for more than thirty per cent above the estimated cost, the greatest possible cost per acre cannot in any event be more than thirty per cent above the estimated cost given above but this 30% is not expected. These facts were brought out at the hearing and it is believed that many farmers who came to oppose the project would not have appeared in court had they known the truth in this respect.

As to the other main ground of opposition it was proven by the testimony of the engineers, especially of Adolf F. Meyer, a man of international reputation, and one of the greatest and most reliable experts in the United States, that if instead of assessing the water powers along the river for the initial cost they are charged an annual rental based upon the benefits they received by the control of water, such rental will be anywhere from $15,000.00 to $45,000.00 per year.

It was further proven that before any new power is developed upon the river the Federal law provides that the parties proposing to develop such power must apply to the Federal Water Power Commission and agree in advance to pay an annual rental to the drainage district to assist in paying the costs of the project, interest, and depreciation. Unquestionably and without a doubt, water power owners would as years went on pay more than they could now be compelled in assessments on their sites.

The state drainage law now provides that water powers can be charged either an assessment for benefits as other lands or an annual rental but not both. So that the question arises as to which plan is most advantageous to the drainage district, and the drainage board and its engineers and viewers after fully considering the subject have found that the annual rental plan will bring in the most money and may be made eventually to pay the bonds and interest of the district. This matter is for the court to determine.

Under the present law no charges against the land need be paid for five years. Only the interest need be paid and it is believed the bonds can be sold at five per cent which would make interest payments very low. Then the charge is divided into fifteen annual installments. It is proposed to ask the legislature this winter to so ammend the law that bonds may run thirty years at least and that no payments except interest need be made on the land for the first ten years. This would give a chance for the land to develop under the benefits brought by the improvement; and this is now the law in regard to county and judicial ditches.

One more cause of complaint was the fact that the federal law limits the charge against Indian lands to $2.50 per acre. But as the average cost of both white and Indian lands of the whole project is $1.70 per acre only, the owners of lands outside the reservation have no cause to complain. Especially is this so since the viewers have assessed benefits against 172,000 acres of Indian lands and against only 177,000 acres of settlers lands. This means that if the assessments stand as reported by the viewers that the Indian lands are going to pay for about seventy-one per cent, or about 5-7, while the settlers' land will pay for about twenty-nine per cent of the total cost less the total aggregate sum to be paid from water power rentals which has already been mentioned as running from $15,000 to $45,000 per year which certainty of reaching one half of the total cost if not more.

It is believed that if these matters had been thoroughly understood before the hearing there would have been very slight opposition to the establishment of the improvement by the court. The development of nearly 300,000 acres of land, upon 172,000 acres of which there are now no settlers at all, and which land is tributary to Thief River Falls and Pennington county to mean a great deal to the citizens of Pennington county and seems to deserve the support of every thinking person.

A COMPLETE REVERSAL

An astonishing spectacle for those who have followed the Red Lake basin drainage question in late years is presented when a large number of farmers present themselves at a hearing in this city and protest against the only plan ever presented which will rid them for all time of the flood menace. Their position is so diametrically opposed to what was to be expected that one is led to wonder at their attitude.

It is only a short time since these same farmers were practically bankrupt because the Red Lake river failed to carry off the water after a severe rain storm. The ditches were found inadequate to meet the demands upon them, this being largely because final discharge arteries of sufficient capacity had not been provided. All ditches in this immediate section find their final outlet in the Red Lake river and when this stream reaches its capacity the waters overflow the farmers' lands, destroying their crops. For a quarter of a century they have been trying to devise some means of protection against this danger as it made farming unsatisfactory and unprofitable. They could not stand the drain of having their crops destroyed by water every few years and stated—many of them at any rate—that they would have to move out of the section unless something were done to insure them against a repetition of such disasters.

Now that the only feasible scheme for thorough drainage is presented they appear to raise objections. The only reason given is that the cost is too great. Very few of the objectors have any idea of what the eventual cost will be, but misinformation and misrepresentation on the part of interested parties concerning this item has evidently so deceived the farmers that they object without having any actual knowledge of either costs or benefits.

It transpired at the hearing that the greater number of these appearing as objectors were of the opinion that the estimated benefits as found and published by the viewers was the amount they would be compelled to pay, whereas the fact is that the estimated costs will be only about one-third the estimated benefits. Another story spread with great diligence by those who for one reason or another want this project killed is that water power companies are to escape paying anything toward the expense of the enterprise. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Under the distribution of costs as announced the costs to the White farmers of the district will be 28 per cent of the total. The balance is to be paid by the Indian lands, water powers and municipal corporations, together with a small sum by the Federal government for the improvement of navigation. The state of Minnesota has already expended a $25,000 appropriation in making surveys.

A great deal of work has been done in getting this project to its present status and all of this as well as the money spent for surveys will be a total loss unless the project goes through. This will not only halt the drainage program for the present, but it is certain that the government aid will be withdrawn at the expiration of the time limit in February and it is a quality certain that it will not be renewed for many years to come. This will automatically remove the heaviest contributors from the list of those assessed.

One thing is certain: This drainage project will be carried out as now planned or it will not be started with any of chance being taken seriously during the lifetime of the present generation of farmers. Congress, the state, and the commission have done everything in their power to bring about this vitally necessary improvement, which was undertaken at the request of the farmers themselves. Now the latter—who have not been troubled with water for a couple of years—seem to have forgotten that not so very long ago they announced that unless something were at once done to protect them against floods in the future they would have to walk away from their holdings and seek a home elsewhere. Another flood season will bring the same demand but if anything along the line of river improvement is then undertaken these farmers will find the cost falling almost entirely upon their own shoulders, whereas under the present plan three-fourths of the expense will be paid by other interests.

Leaguers Lose Best State Senator

Senator Naplin of Pennington county was defeated for re-election by C. L. Hansen, a banker of Thief River Falls. Naplin was one of the Nonpartisan League senate members for the last two sessions, and his district is the strongest League district in the state. He was a man whose character was above reproach and he has always been a tireless worker for the farmers organization in his district. A man who was not posted on the indifferent attitude which many Leaguers held towards the most loyal and most able men they have in their organization, would naturally be surprised that any such able, clean and loyal man as Senator Naplin is to the farmers organization, could be defeated in such a strong League district. But to those who have watched the trend of politics it is no surprise for, as we have before stated, the more and worthy a man is to the League the harder it is to elect him to a public office. Senator Naplin was a dangerous man to the big special privilege corporations as a state senator—he was a man of high learning and possessed an abundance of ability which made it posible for him to stir things up in the state legislature for the good of the common people. The opposition were afraid of him, so they centered their guns on him in this campaign and got him. Had Naplin kept quiet and not tried to advance the farmers organization nor have ably and loyally fought for the farmers' and laborers' interests on the floor of the state senate, he could have held his seat in the senate for years. The opposition to the League always try to kill off the best men first. If the Farmer-Labor party had had a live county committee in Pennington county, to fight the opposition with their own weapons, Senator Naplin would have been re-elected. The only way to successfully fight the Devil is to fight him with his own weapons. Senator Naplin's defeat at this time is a great loss to the progressive movement in this state, and should be a warning to the Leaguers to provide themselves with a county committee of action in every campaign hereafter. —Moorhead Country Press.

Sandford Biography Ready for U. Alumni

To commemorate the remarkable life work of Maria L. Sanford, one of Minnesota's great women, for many years assistant professor of rhetoric at the University of Minnesota, members of the General Alumni association have had prepared a life story of Miss Sanford, which will be ready for distribution within a few weeks.

The book is one that Miss Sanford started as an autobiography, but which was never completed, although she was at work on it at the time of her death. As it is coming from the presses, but one chapter, the first is entirely her own work. The remainder has been written by Miss. Helen Whitney, also formerly an assistant professor of rhetoric at the university. Miss Whitney was delegated to complete the biography about a year ago, a task which she completed recently.

Graduates of the University of Minnesota in all parts of the state have been asked by E. B. Pierce, alumni secretary, to watch for the appearance af the book.

"It will be their one opportunity to gain possession of one of the most valuable bits of Minnesota history yet produced," he said. "We are directing production of this book as a service to graduates, not with any thought of profit. If there are profits, they will be set aside as the beginning of a fund from which eventually a memorial to Miss Sanford can be financed.

The book, entitled, "Maria Sanford," has the recommendation of J. M. McConnell, commissioner of education, for public school use in teaching patriotism and Minnesota history. Miss Gratia Countryman, librarian of the Minneapolis public library, also has recommended it for acquisition by libraries.

Polk Co. Sheriff Election Contested by Oscar Bolstad

It appears that the fight for the sheriff's office in Polk county was, and still remains to be, a very hot and spirited one.

Last week Sheriff Oscar Bolstad filed a petition of contest against the recent election of Anton Nelson to succeed Mr. Bolstad in that office. The petition filed with the clerk of the district court, is based on charges of misrepresentation of facts and alleges violation of the corrupt practices act.

The main points to Mr. Bolstad's petition are:

That Mr. Nelson "circulated and published statements" to the effect that Mr. Bolstad was a candidate for a third term and had held the office for two terms, "when he knew that such was not the fact;" that Mr. Bolstad had held the office for only one term; and that "such statements and the publishing thereof tended to was attended for and did influence the voters adversely to Mr. Bolstad," violation of the corrupt practices act, "treating," giving away cigars and intoxicating liquors to influence voters, and also by making promises of appointment as deputies in exchange for votes and work in his behalf.

The contest will be heard by one of the judges of the district court, and in case the contest grounds are held to be true and the court finds that Mr. Nelson cannot hold the office, there will be a vacancy to be filled by election by the county board.

Society

Entertain at Banquet.

A very pretty and elaborate affair of this week was the banquet given Tuesday evening by the Dorcas society of the Trinity Lutheran church at the church parlors. The society had invited as guests all girls in the congregation and others who are interested in the work of the organization. The basement was very prettily decorated in yellow streamers with the lights festooned and table appointments to match. A most delicious two-course banquet supper was served, covers being laid for about 80 girls. Eight little girls acted as waitresses.

A program was rendered including appropriate remarks by the president of the society, Miss Emily Fossum, piano solo by Miss Mildred Engen and violin solo by Miss Lorraine Will.

Officers for the coming year were selected at the regular business meeting following the banquet, and Miss Fossum was again chosen as president. Others elected were: Edna Larson, vice-president; Jeanette Oftedahl, secretary; Josie Weeks, treasurer.

Another pleasing feature of the event was the presentation of gifts as tokens of remembrance to Misses Effie Christianson and Blanche Hoium, members, who will leave for Madison, Wis., after the holidays.

A letter written to the members of the Dorcas from Miss Helen Weeks who is preparing for missionary work at the Peking station, was read and very much enjoyed. Miss Weeks told very interestingly of life in China and the work which she is about to enter.

P. S. Harrison, picture critic of New York City, sends the following report; When the moving picture history of 1922 is written: will be listed in the front rank. The well known story by Charles Felton Pidgin, known and loved far and wide because of its humaneness, has been made into a masterpiece. Mr. Bernard McConville's adaptation is intelligent, the continuity is fine and smooth, director Badger's work flawless, and the acting of every one of a remarkable array of real artists could hardly be surpassed.
"QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER"
At a private showing in Minneapolis last week they all pronounced it great. We want you to see

CREAMERIES OPEN OWN SUPPLY HOUSE

New Branch to Save Farmers $200,000 a Year, Says A. J. McGuire

Organization of a supply department, which will save farmers of the state $200,000 a year, was announced this week by A. J. McGuire, general manager of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association. The jobbing house has the possibilities of doing more than $1,000,000 worth of business yearly, Mr. McGuire says, because creameries in the association annually spend that amount for machinery and supplies.

The department, which has been under consideration for several weeks, is the most important project undertaken by the association in recent months.

W. M. C. Rasmusson of Albert Lea, an experienced creamery supply man, has been placed in charge. Offices have been obtained in the central warehouse in St. Paul.

"We long have realized the need for such a department," says Mr. McGuire. "Thus far, without trying to push that phase of the association, we have handled more than $70,000 worth of machinery."

"We know that the department will save 20 per cent on the average purchases—probably more. If our supply house handles all the business of member creameries, which it should, the annual saving will be around $200,000. This money will go directly into the pockets of farmers patronizing co-operative creameries, because the various companies will be able to pay that much more for butterfat, by reason of the lower operating cost."

Intruders Beware!

The boys who broke into the high school building during the party given last Saturday evening committed a serious offense and the student body feels that they should be dealt with accordingly. Affairs of this nature have been treated in the past by many more or less as humorous escapades. We fail to see the humorous side of it; it is at best a dangerous and unprofitable joke. We do not see how it is less a crime to enter the high school building by ripping open the screen and shade to open a locked window than it is to break into Stebbin's drug store; stealing ice cream and cake from the senior class or any other class should be dealt with as severly as stealing the same articles from Jung's bakery.

Our schools are maintained for the purpose of training and educating the youth of the community. If an offense against the school such as was committed Saturday evening were to go unpunished, the school would be encouraging further criminal acts, and these boys would be led on on the path to the state penitentiary. Think of the influence upon the other students. If a serious offense of this kind is looked upon lightly and personal character ignored, degradation of the moral atmosphere of the school is inevitable. The youth of the city is not safe in our schools if such boys are allowed to continue and their acts looked upon as adventurome frolic.

This is not the first time that the building has been broken into, its property destroyed, and other property stolen. The very same thing has happened at almost every party that has been held for a number of years. It has come to appoint where it is unsafe to leave eatables unwatched, in a locked room, for even a few minutes while the serving committee is away enjoying the program. The vandalism of the invasion Saturday evening caps the climax, and this situation ought no longer to be tolerated. When parties are given hereafter, they ought to be given with the assurance that nothing will be done to mar their peaceful enjoyment, and it ought not to be any more necessary to guard the food supplies than it is necessary for Jung Brothers to employ a night watchman to stand guard over their cakes. If the boys who get their sole enjoyment of life from breaking in at parties to which they were not invited resort to desperate action to get their ice cream at other people's expense, the school including the student body should be ready to take just as drastic measures for the defense of its own welfare. Lincoln high school does not intend to have its character besmirched by carrying on its enrollment chronic house-breakers and thieves. The senior class has vowed that if it initiates no other constructive measures this year, it will at least establish a precedent that will make it inexpedient for any high school student, whoever he may be, to take part in future ventures of this kind.

A Senior.

If parties are to be interfered with, it will be impossible to have school parties of any kind. The school board cannot be expected to give the use of the building to any organization if it is almost inevitable that the building be broken into and property destroyed and stolen. The students and teachers demand more parties and social gatherings at which they can all get together and get to really know each other. The spirit of partnership that should exist between students and teachers can be much more easily attained if both groups associate at school socials than if they meet only in the class room; and the school is willing and perfectly able to take measures against acts that tend to break up further social affairs within the school.

Basketball Squad Picked After Inter-Class Games

The Inter-class basket ball teams clashed for the title last week in the High school gymnasium.

In the first game the Freshmen made a gallant fight against the Juniors but were out weighed and consequently were defeated. They did well considering the team they played against, the score being 35-6. In the second game, the Sophomores and the Seniors clashed but of course; the Sophomores knew how it would come out. The Sophomores had splendid team work around their territory but were unable to get through the Seniors strong five man defense. But the Seniors admit that the Sophomores were no snap. The score was 38-5, Seniors leading.

The last and best game was played between the Seniors and the Juniors both teams being evenly matched. In the first half, the Seniors played the best game. The score at the end of the first half was 11-3 in their favor. The Juniors were unable to make one basket on account of the strong defense of the Seniors.

In the second half the tide turned, the Senior defense went to pieces and the Juniors were able to net a few baskets, which made the audience very excited. The game ended with the Seniors in the lead of a 13 to 10 score. These two teams are very evenly matched and shows that the competition for the first team will be very strong.

A number of the players were picked from each team for the high school squad, but in a short time the squad will be thinned out and the best men will remain. The first seven or eight are usually the first team men, and as nearly all of last year's men are still with us the prospects look very bright.

The following men were picked on the first squad: Sydney Schutt, John Sether, Stanley Sorenson, Milford LaBree, Craig Halvorson, Charles Herron, Clifford Sorenson, Herbert Keene, Michael Parenteau, Math Barzen, Allan Sorenson, Arthur Penny, Kenneth Streeter, Francis Ohm, Lawrence Mulry, Edmund Keene, Roy Langevin, William Stageberg, Tien Gullingsrud, and Melvin Peterson.

Dr. Froehlich Speaks

"The world about you is full of bacteria," said Dr. Froehlich in his address before the high school assembly last Friday. "There are two kinds, continued the speaker, "the vegetable bacteria such as yeast plants, barbers itch, and ringworm; and animal bacteria such as diphtheria, typhoid, and influenze. Both kinds always from a toxin or poison and that is where we get the term "anti-toxin," which fights the poison.

Dr. Frehlich went on to say that this anti-toxin takes the form of reaction and the reaction which is first noticed is a high temperature or fever. He stated that some bacteria have not the power to form an anti-toxin as is the case with influenza germs, but " the diphtheria bacteria is a good example when the body does react," he continued, and taking that fact, man is able to manufacture an anti-toxin for this disease. The question is, if the germs enter the body, how are we to manufacture something as a reaction against the germs?"

He went on to explain how they obtain the anti-toxin in the case of diphtheria, and was successful in explaining the process very clearly without using any confusing scientific terms.

Dummy Newspaper Edited

A miniature newspaper was edited last Wednesday by each student in journalism. Articles of current news, crime and accident stories, sporting news, society items, and feature stories were cut out of other papers, arranged in the best newspapers contained three pages, each page having four columns. A duplicate of his paper was made by each student in which they wrote criticisms of the various articles. A great deal of time was spent on these and the class unanimously feel that through these practical assignments their teacher, Miss MacNair, is giving them much instruction which will be of benefit in the future.

Democracy

The spirit and morale in our high school have been in every way of such conspicuously high order this year that it is painful to have to record the one lone incident that has had a tendency to be unpleasant. But such a thing has actually happened in this high school of ours, and since both students and teachers feel that its repetition can best be prevented by giving it publicity, considerable space is devoted to it in this issue. Here is the story:

"At the party last Saturday evening a small group of individuals, who seemingly neither can nor will learn what is proper and what is improper; what in fun and what is rowdyism, or what is right and what is wrong, broke into the buiding, injured the lock on the front door, tore a window shade, destroyed a screen, and stole four gallons of ice cream and a large cake.

The student body as a whole and the senior class in particular have been applying their influence to put a stop to vandalism of this kind in our school. Consequently when this unfortunate and unexpected thing did occur, the senior class for the student body, took it upon themselves to get to the bottom of it, to help apprehend the guilty culprits, and to see to it that proper punishment was meted out. In this they have had the hearty approval and cooperation of the whole student body as well as the sanction and backing of the faculty. There has been such resolution and dispatch that even the morally deaf, dumb, blind, and bankrupt will know that escapades of this kind will be tolerated in the future by neither student body nor anyone else.

Who says there is no democracy in our schools, and who dares say that the mind of the student body is not both well balanced and right when it comes to issues of this kind. He should have been at the general assembly on Tuesday, and he would have changed his mind.

The Norma Training girs began work in the fifth grade Monday.

The pupils of Miss Lura's and Miss Ryan's rooms enjoyed a Victrola concert Friday afternoon.

Viola Erickson entered the fourth grade last week.

Vioa Erickson entered the fourth grade and Teddy Blinsmon the sixth grade in the Studebaker tests having completed test 44 last Friday.

Seventh Graders to Debate

"What side are you going to take, Tom?"

"I don't know, I've figured and studied on it and yet I've come to no definite solution."

This is the spirit over at Central School, amongst the seventh graders. The subject for discussion is a debate, the team having been picked by the English instructor, the rest of the students given preference to choose their own side for any additional points. The question for the debate is, "Resolved that a horse is more useful than a cow," and is scheduled to take place Tuesday in the individual classrooms.

The question is of such a nature that a considerable amount of time, study and reseach work is needed to produce the desired effect. Some students claim that a horse is of more value as in a diphtheria epidemic it gives us anti-toxin, and to disprove this the other half points out that a cow is more useful, as twice a day it gives about a pail full of milk to growing children.

The interest worked up is marked and we know that five years hence the Lincoln High will have a debating team that can bring back winning laurels.

Knox School

Those who visited in the Knox school last week were: Mrs. L. G. Larson in the fourth grade, Mrs. Shuster and Mrs. Effinger in the third and fifth grade, Mrs. Brokke in Miss Foxen's department, and Mr. and Mrs. Cronkhite in the sixth grade.

Enrollment at the Knox has improved greatly during the past week.

Paul Melby, Otto Stenberg, Vernon Peterson, Gordon Helland, and Ernest Girard have returned to the sixth grade after a long absence due to the epidemic in the city.

Bert on "The Evils of Child Labor." "Many of our machines such as those into which hogs, spices, hay, and cabbage are poured, and by a simple manipulation of a lever, transform the whole into sausage, catsup, or baked beans can easily be run by children."

Lucile: "I can't hear what you say, I took my glasses off!"

Seniors Head Race for Members on Honor Roll

The Honor Race of the second period shows the seniors are the leading group in scholarship.

There are 13 seniors whose work classifies them as honor students. Two of these are normal students taking post graduate work.

The Juniors rank next with a total of eight. The sophomores have five and the Freshmen only three. This was the greatest surprise of the year, for the total students enrolled in the class is much larger than that of the other three.

Never before, since the Honor Roll was established, have the freshmen had so few on it.

The Freshies have been beaten in basket ball, due to the inexperience and size of their team.

Honor Roll—Second Period

Boost Clean Assembly

"Cleanliness is the order of the day" and the spirit of neatness has arrived in Lincoln High—to stay.

Think of the janitor who has to care for the paper and refuse that we so unthinkingly scatter with a prodigal hand in the vicinity of our desks. Think of the impression created in the minds of those who come to our school, and see the things to which our eyes are apparently blind; the scraps of paper on the floor, more scraps of the same on our desks, and the general air of untidiness and carelessness that pervades the entire school.

There is no compulsion about 'retrieving' your scraps of paper; but their wanderlust can be checked, if it be done in time. Do it! Don't let them get away from you! Show them their proper place—the wate basket, and soon our school will look as if there are no careless boys and girls around it at all.

And hark ye! Hereafter some member of the faculty will daily cast an appraising eye over the different sections of the assembly, and (if seeing is believing) will decide which of the four classes has been doing the best 'pickup' work At the end of every week these solemn decisions will be properly balanced, and an award given to the winner—the class that has kept its section the cleanest during the preceding week.

Don't mistake our motive; we are doing this, not in a spirit of fun, but in an earnest desire to make school as pleasant as possible, through eliminating untidiness.

And we are not doing this as a diciplinary measure—if you are naturally untidy, you will remain so, and vice versa—but rather through a desire to commend those who do keep their deeska and the immediate neighborhood clean.

Boost for the total exile of scraps from the assembly.

Boost for the 'limitation of paperdom' around your desks.

Boost for your class, and at the end of this week and every week we shall announce the winning class. Watch for it!

Central School

The Seven A spelling class which sits in room5, has had a higher per centage in spelling than any other division of the eighth grade for over six weeks.

Among those who availed themselves of the special invitation given to visit Central School during Educational week were: Mrs. Hilson, Mrs. Hermanson, Mrs. Sponheim, Mrs. Simley, Mrs. C. M. Carlson, Mrs. Skog, Mrs. Aman, Mrs. Bertha Lonson, Mrs. Effinger, Mrs. Richards, Mr. Quist.

Last Tuesday morning the students of the Junior High assembled the following program:

Song .... Vive L'Amour .... School
Song .... Seventh Grade
Group Songs .... Cast Thy Burden-Unaccompanied .... Eighth Grade
Carry Me Back to Old Virgiony
Reading .... "If" by Kipling .... Rita Fiterman.
Group Songs .... America, the Beautiful .... Boy's Glee Club
John Brown's Baby
Levee Song
Address .... Be Prepared .... Mr. Gerlinger
School Song .... School

This was the first appearance of the Glee Club and the teachers and students alike spoke in praise of their singing and are proud that we now have a Boy's Glee Club. The talk by Mr. Gerlinger on the subject, "Be Prepared," was especially instructive and interesting to the pupils.

Nearly all of the pupils who were absent on account of sickness have returned to school.

Mrs. Hill's, Miss Week's and Miss Batten's rooms enjoyed a haf holiday on account of excellent attendance—over 98% for a period of six weeks.

The eighth grade presented Lawrence Langevin with a beautiful bouquet of flowers during his stay at the hospital.

Christmas List

Sydney Schult—Free dancing lessons.
Myrtle Helgeland—"Hanky."
Math Barzen—Volume of Milton's Sonnets.
Lydia Dahlen—Wallace records.
Mr. Harner—Years subscription to the Women's Home Companion.
Stephen—Book of Etiquette.
Camille—Spanish Comb.
Miss MacNair—Grosgrain ribbon for her "specs."

There seems to be a great real of interest shown in tardiness. Monday evening there were about eighteen students to make up forty minutes.

Senior Party Enjoyed

In accordance with the results of the Prowler contest between seniors and juniors, the seniors last Saturday evening were hosts at a party at which the juniors and faculty were guests. And, leave it to me, it was a real party.

The formalities opened with a snappy grand march led by Class Advisor Powley and Miss Maude L. Johnson. Down the hall, into one class room and out another, up on second floor, down again on first, down still further into the basement, up again and down, creeping, bobbing, and whatnot, they led their stepping and panting followers until at last they finally were in the gym. When breath and sight were restored, what a transformation we beheld to have taken place in the usually barren and uninviting gym! A large room within a room had been built of streamers. This had been cozily "feathered," to borrow from Hartmann, with rockers and tables and floor lamps and "music boxes" "'n everything." How inviting it was, and how readily we made ourselves at home.

Then commenced a series of stunts, contests, and games of which the most interesting was probably the shadow operation performed on Henry Mellum, an unfortunate victim of an unfortunate appetite, by that distinguished scientific-medico-magician Bertiniusulius Umland. A star act by the star "nuts" of the high school followed, and if it were not for the fact that the writer thrives in Lincoln high, he would divulge some names of participants. Then we posed for a "Jump and holler" when Mr. Salveson set fire to clearer for the atmosphere for his camera.

Other stunts and games, acts, laughs, songs, and lunch followed in rapid succession until we could have sworn every last chronometer in the building was "off" when it was announced that the bewitching hour of twelve bells was at hand. At any rate, at about the same time, Mr. Powley kindly feelings to the hospitable and capable seniors and their efficient advisor, Mr. Powley, we betook to our homes.

Mrs. Bishop Tells of Trip to New Orleans

An account of her trip to the southland was presented to the students and faculty Thursday afternoon by Mrs. J. M. Bishop, who recently returned from New Orleans, where she attended the Legion Auxiliary convention.

According to Mrs. Bishop the city of New Oorleans is different from other American cities. It is picturesque and fairly breathes of history and romance. Among the sites of historical reminisence visited by Mrs. Bishop were Jackson square, Napoleon House, a historic hotel, where human souls were once auctioned, and a Haunted House, believed to have been the slaughtering place of many slaves at the hands of their masters.

In the southern states society and education are organized on a widely different status from that of the northern states. The three social castes include the aristocratic landholders, the poor whites, and the negroes, the two latter classes being scorned by the more fortunate ruling class for whom therefore common education holds no charm. We envy the sweet voices and sacharine manners of our southern brethern, but pity their narrow racial predjudices and unequal opportunities.

In closing Mrs. Bishop told of the convention itself, and the significant display of the states which could not but inspire the fire of patriotism in the breasts of the spectators.

Personals

The debating team under Miss MacNair, the coach, are working hard for the debate with Red Lake Falls. The debate will be Friday, December fifteenth, in the high school assembly.

The Senior-Junior party which was the outcome of the Prowler campaign was held in the gymnasium Saturday.

Miss MacNair has been spending all her vacant periods practicing with those who are taking declamation. All the elimination contests in declamation will be held before Christmas vacation.

The students know a great deal more about the facts of diphtheria since they heard Dr. Froehlich's speech on Friday.

Physicial training was enjoyed for a change last Tuesday since folk dances formed the main part of the exercises.

Supt. Simley spoke before the assembly on Tuesday of Educational Week. He gave a part of an educational talk by Mr. Webster of Minneapolis. His speech contained excellent advice and was much enjoyed by the student body.

The Progress staff which embraces all the members of the journalism class took their picture at Salveson's studio immediately after school Friday noon. The orchestra had theirs taken at twelve thirty the same day. As a result some of the students went dinnerless.

A short senior class meeting was held Friday after school in the assembly room to inform the class concerning the party.

Red Cross stamps were sold by the teachers to all the students in the assembly room Friday after chapel. Miss Thompson sold the most and was announced champion salesman. Over $14 worth of stamps were sold.

William Anderson, Esther Lunsetter and Lillie Stenseth returned to school Monday after spending a week in the diphtheria hospital.

Mrs. Bishop's speech was especially enjoyed because of the interesting facts about Louisiana which she told the high school.

Esther Lunsetter, a member of the Class of 1924, returned to school Monday morning from the auditorium pest-house where she has been since the culture results returned from Minneapolis. Having a positive culture, she was confined there until the signs of the germ had disappeared.

RIVAL SCHOOLS TO DEBATE INDUSTRIAL COURT AT HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY

Friday night comes one of the big events of the year-one of the really decisive ones-the debate with Red Lake Falls at the auditorium of the local high school. Then will be decided whether Thief River Falls shall continue in the elimination race for the state debating championship, or whether she shall be eliminated at the beginning. Debating is unlike most other school activities in that a single defeat counts the school out of that pursuit for the rest of the year, at least as far as the state contest is concerned.

The state question to be debated, "Resolved that the Kansas type of Industrial Court of Adjudication should be established in the state of Minnesota," is an unusually interesting and timely one. Customarily the debate questions are rather anticipatory and touch more upon problems that may loom up in the future, and which at present interest only economists and politicans; but this year the question is one which will be immediately recognized by every mature person in the state, whether he be a laborer, business man, farmer, or educator. The struggle between capital and labor has been for many years, and is today, the greatest evil with which America has to contend. Strikes have cost the nation billions of dollars in unearned wages, industrial losses, and decreased revenues. The suffering and discomfort resulting directly or indirectly from strikes are incalculable; the families of the strikers can assert better than anyone else the destructiveness to home, comfort, and happiness of the continued struggle between organized labor and combined industry.

The Kansas court, which is proposed as a model for one in Minnesota, was created by the Kansas state legislature at the request of Governor Allen in 1920, just after the great coal strike in Kansas, which tied up completely the mines of the state just as winter was coming on. State institutions, schools, churches and hospitals were closed because there was no coal to heat them. Then as the situation was becoming desperate and the people of the state were demanding action, Governor Allen issued a call for volunteers to dig coal until the strike was settled. His next step was to call upon the legislature to pass a law that would make strikers in public utilities illegal, and to provide a court which should have power to remove the causes for strikes. The state legislature, with ravages of the coal strike fresh upon their minds, passed, against the bitter opposition of the labor representatives, the bill creating the court of Industrial Relations, which was signed by Governor Allen and became a law. Since the court came into being in the winter of 1920, it has handled quite a number of cases, none of which seem to clearly establish the success or failure of the court.

Organized labor is unalterably opposed to the Kansas Industrial court. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor said in the famous debate between Gompers and Governor Allen at Carnegie Hall, New York: "The Kansas court takes away labor's only effective weapon, that of the strike. I realize that strikes are uncomfortable and make for inconveniences, but, my friend, there are things worse than strikes and lockouts. They are degraded manhood."

The Industrial court was made a politicial issue in Kansas this fall. Governor Allen's opponent, running on an anti-court platform, was elected by a small majority.

The debators for Thief River Falls, defending the negative of the question are, Herbert Johnson, Rose Costello, and—Albert Stengelson. Red Lake Falls will be represented by Donovan Salley, Herman Hilleboe, and Jessie Higinbotham.

Student Wins Honors in Sigvald Quale Contest

Miss Olive Aaland left last Friday evening on the Winnipeg limited for Minneapolis, where she took part in the Sigvald Quale contest.

This contest, which consisted of Norse declamations, was given in the auditorium of the Augsburg Seminary Saturday, December 9, 1922.

The contests are named after Sigvald Quale who was very interested in literature, and especially in Norse. After his death his mother, a wealthy woman, set aside a sum of money in his memory for the purpose of holding these contests.

It is very difficult for a High School student to compete in this contest, because not only High School students, but also academy and college students are participants.

In the first local contest Miss Aaland won the silver medal sent by the Chairman, Waldemar Ager, Eu-Claire, Wis.

We know Miss Aaland will make a fine showing and hope she will come back carrying honors to our high school.

Imagine the Faculty

We were suddenly aroused from the quietness of the study room and the jokeless classrooms to the unusual Wednesday morning chapel. There did not seem to be anything up, but when our faculty filed on the stage, our perspective abilities telegraphed to our minds that something was up. Miss MacNair was chairman of the day, and so ably did our Public Speaking instructor preside that the Juniors have her in mind as the toastmistress for the Junior-Senior banquet. The program was as follows:

"How can she lie in bed when so much of her is on the dresser?"
Solo—Mr. McFarlane
"Would You"
Recitation—Miss Leavitt
"The Girl I Left Behind Me."
Solo—Mr. Harner

Annual Shipping Ass'n Meeting

The sixth annual meeting of the Rosewood L. S. Shipping Association was held at the business rooms of the Farmers State Bank last Saturday evening. The business done during the last year was reviewed, but was not as heavy as during former years owing to low prices, and inability of securing full carloads, and to offset this, decided to join in with the Viking Shipping Association in disposing of some stock. Three carloads have been shipped out this summer, one in June and one in August and one last Nov. These cars contained 111 head of mixed which had been disposed of for the sum of $1918.50 and with shipping expenses of $1918.50 leaving a net at home of $1561.70. The sinking fund now contains $87.30. As Directors for the coming year were appointed: Thom Holten, Carl Mellem, F. G. Dols, Adolph Haugen and Emil Anderson, while Joel E. Shoberg remains as Secretary-Treasurer for another year. The first meeting of the new directors will take place at the bank on Wednesday, Dec. 20, at 1:00 p. m. for the purpose of electing president, vice president and appoint a manager for the coming year.

The annual business meeting of the Rindal church congregation took place at the church last Tuesday forenoon, but owing to the bad roads was not well attended. Rev. The evening terminated with the serving of a light luncheon and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The Monday evening service advertised to be held at the Swedish church in town, was cancelled as the speaker, Rev. Fred Broding from Thief River Falls, failed to show up evidently owing to the inclement weather conditions that day.

Eivind Aakhus, noted Norwegian Hardanger violinist from Grand Forks, held a few concerts north of town the last week, and drew large crowds to the school building where he performed. It was thought once that he would include Rosewood in his route but he evidently changed his mind and did not come closer than the Busy Bee district about four miles north. Mr. Aakhus is a personal friend of Steiner Johnson, also an old time violinist of this place.

Miss Gunda Mattson left on Friday morning for Warren where she expects to be employed this winter.

Peter Mellem spent Friday at Warren on business with P. O. Landeen.

Garageman J. S. Sorsnson left on Saturday for his home northwest of town where he expects to spend a few days helping his brother with various duties, and may return to town again by Wednesday.

Cashier O. S. Hellerud and garageman J. S. Sorenson, left on the Wednesday evening train for Thief River Falls where they will attend to business matters.

ALL PATIENTS ARE RELEASED FROM HOSPITAL

Auditorium No Longer Needed As Detention Hospital For Diphtheria Cases

Considered Remarkable That None Developed Serious Condition During Epidemic

Prompt Action of Authorities Undoubtedly Prevented Serious Consequences

All patients who have been under quarantine for diphtheria at the city auditorium, which was used as a detention hospital, have been released, the last ones leaving Thurday.

At no time since the outbreak of the epidemic has there been a serious case of the disease in Thief River Falls and it is considered very fortunate that such has been the case. Medical authorities state that it very often happens that a mild epidemic of diphtheria changes to a most severe form of the dread disease and the local health authorities have been complimented very highly by the state department for the prompt and efficient manner in which the epidemic was stamped out here.

Some Suffer Complications

There are a few in the city who are suffering from complications that so often follow even mild cases of diphtheria but aside from this there is no more evidence of the disease. These are mostly cases where some form of heart trouble has followed the ailment.

George Lipscombe Dies At Home In Lake City Sunday

Word has been received by friends of George Lipscombe, that he passed away at Lake City, Minn., Sunday, following an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Lipscombe was one of the earliest settlers in this section, having come here over forty years ago, residing part of that time at Crookston. He moved from Thief River Falls last spring and since that time has made his home at Lake City. Deceased was 62 years of age at the time death occurred.

Mr. Lipscombe is survived by his widow, a daughter, Beulah, who is teaching near Rochester, and a son, Allan, principal of the Roosevelt school at Grand Forks. Fred Copp is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

Examinations Prove Rural Health Not Always Best

Contrary to popular belief, students coming from rural districts in Minnesota are somewhat less healthy than those who grow in the larger population centers.

This is the decision Dr. H. S. Diehl, director of the Students' Health Service, University of Minnesota, and his assistants have made as a result of comparing statistics based on examinations at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and those at the University main campus. More than 50 per cent of the students on the main campus are from the twin cities and nearby.

"It was the opinion of the examiners that students from rural homes seen at agricultural schools show in a most astonishing manner the evidences of early neglect in the matter of infant, school, personal and community hygiene," said the report.

During the examination of 135 students at Crookston a total of 365 defects were noted, averaging 2.7 defects per student. Of these 165 were minor, in some cases no more than a need for vaccination, in which treatment was optional; 165 were moderately severe, in which treatment was necessary, and 33 were severe, with treatment urgent.

The physicians employed by the Students' Health Service treat students with slight or moderate ailments, and send those with severe ailments to consult their family physicians.

Mrs. Beerbower Buried

The funeral services for Mrs. Beerbower were held in the Methodist church on Tuesday. Two beautiful pieces were rendered by a mixed quartette consisting of Mesdames Prichard and Nason, and Messrs. Bottelson and Durrin, the sermon being delivered by Rev. J. S. Smith. The esteem in which Mrs. Beerbower was held was amply attested by the large number of friends and neighbors who braved the inclemency of the weather to pay their last respects to the deceased.

LEGISLATIVE ACTION TO GAGE ROAD WORK

Improvements during 1923 and 1924 on all state trunk highways—so-called Babcock roads—will depend largely upon action by the next legislature on recommendations by the state highway department for first issues of state trunk highway bonds.

Presenting the important fact, John H. Mullen, assistant commissioner and chief highway engineer, said that only by issuing bonds can the state make greatly needed improvements, stop waste of funds for maintenance, give immediate benefits in proportion to funds used, speed up the highway program to keep among the good roads states.

"The highway bond proposals are for the advantage of all parts of the state," said Mr. Mullen. "They will provide not only for permanent improvements on heavy traffic routes but equally far more extensive grading and graveling work covering big mileages of light-traffic sections. Otherwise the latter class of work must wait under the policy of using funds to best serve the largest numbers of highway users."

"There is no magic in road building," said Mr. Mullen. "Reasonable amounts must be forthcoming to carry on the necessary work. Results thus far have come from low prices, economical administration and so forth, but have been governed primarily by the funds available. The highway department is recommending highway bond issues because they fit into the general scheme and will insure greater fairness and satisfaction."

Mr. Mullen predicted that the public through its senators and representatives will put through the legislative program and that far-reaching results will follow to prove the wisdom of such favorable action.

FORMER CITIZEN IS NAMED AUDITOR OF NEW MINN. COUNTY

Arthur Tanem, at One Time President of City Council Refuses to Accept Position

A former Thief River Falls citizen, Arthur Tanem now of Spooner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tanem, was appointed auditor of the recently established county of Lake of the Woods, but refused to accept the position. He gave as a reason for his refusal, preference for the banking business in which he is now engaged at Spooner.

Baudette is the county seat of the new Lake of the Woods county, according to a decision of the county board of commissioners. At their first business session the county commissioners appointed county officers for the next two years as follows: Auditor, Mervin D. Weeks of Spooner; treasurer, John F. Clark of Williams; register of deeds, Hans B. Imsdal of Pitt; sheriff, Thos. Slind of Faunce; county attorney, E. C. Middleton of Baudette; superintendent of schools, Wm. H. Ripon of Baudette; clerk of court, J. U. Williams of Baudette; coroner, John R. Norris of Williams; surveyor, John Gjelhaug of Baudette; court commissioner, Morris Willett of Baudette.

The judge of probate will be appointed by the governor later on.

Christmas Seals Should Be Important Part of All Gifts

The "Christmas feel," as James Whitcomb Riley calls the wonderful holiday spirit, is in the air. It has already penetrated to lour heart.

Gay ribbons are waiting to tie festive gift packages. Cards with good will messages are piled high as snow banks in their white envelopes.

But there's something lacking if you haven's bought Christmas seals!

For not only do they add to the gaiety of package and letter, but they have come to stand for the Christmas spirit itself—the old fashioned, true Christmas spirit of doing something for those whom "Santa Claus" is but a lost illusion—to whom Christmas is but another "hollow" day.

The money from the sale of Christmas seals is used to fight tuberculosis.

The fight against this disease must be nation-wide in its scope. Therefore, each community should assist. The results are apparent. As compared with the death rate of ten years ago, Minnesota is saving 972 lives a year.

Think this over, and if you consider it worth while, buy what Christmas seals you can afford.

Winter Term At Northwest School Begins January 2nd

The winter term at the Northwest School of Agriculture begins January 2 and continues until March 29. During the past year it has been difficult for many to attend school. Prices have been low, making it necessary in many cases to keep the older children at home to help with the work on the farm. The Northwest school has been able to assist hundreds of students in Northwestern Minnesota to secure an education. There is no tuition and living expenses at the school are exceptionally reasonable.

New classes will be organized for the winter term so that new students will not be handicapped because of having missed the first term. Some of the courses offered which are in the most demand are dairying and stock work, business training, dressmaking, soils and crops. Students are also able to take history, mathematics, English, economics and allied subjects, thereby meeting the entrance requirements for the University and Teachers' colleges.

Those who are interested in attending school this winter and making use of their spare time would do well to write the Northwest School for full particulars.

Certain loan funds bequeated to the University are available to those who are in need of funds for continuing in school. Before anyone gives up his intention to go to school this year because of lack of funds, he should secure further particulars regarding this matter. The courses open to students are for both young men and and young women.

Red River Valley Winter Shows Will Open Feb. 5th

The Red River Valley essay contest held in connection with the winter shows will be put on again this year, according to an announcement by a committee, consisting of Messrs. Jos. Hamre, Erskine; David Johnson, Warren, and S. A. Aas, Fertile. The subject to be written on this year is "The Red River Valley winter shows as a factor in promoting diversified farming in the Red River Valley." The winter shows will be held in Crookston, Feb. 5-6-7-8-9, 1923. All pupils of sixth, seventh and eighth grades are eligible to write essays on this subject. The grand sweepstakes prize of five dollars ($5.00) will be awarded for the best essay. The best essay written by eighth grade contestants will be given, 1st, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $1.00. Similar awards will be given seventh and sixth grade contestants. Best essay from each county will be given, 1st, $1.50; 2nd, $1.00; 3rd, $.50. Counties included in essay contest district are the northwest counties of Minnesota. All essays must be in hands of county superintendent or chairman of committee, S. A. Aas, Fertile, not later than January 30, 1923.

Last year the essay was written on the subject of "The Future of the Red River Valley." A great many took part in the contest and it is expected that even a larger number will take part this year.

MARKETING THEME AT BUREAU MEETING

Low Rates, on Certificate Plan Obtained for State Convention, St. Paul, Jan. 2-4

Marketing will be the theme stressed at the annual convention of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, to be held in St. Paul, Jan. 2, 3, and 4. On the second day of the meeting, most of the time will be devoted to reports from farmer-owned sales agencies, representatives of live stock, grain, wool, potato and other terminal selling institutions with which the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is cooperating, will be on the program to report on progress during the year and suggest plans for expansion in 1923.

Railroad rates of a fare and a half for the round trip for all persons attending the convention have been obtained by F. L. French, secretary. "To profit by this arrangement," Mr. French says, "delegates and others attending should obtain a certificate at the time the ticket is purchased. Sometime during the convention these certificates will be endorsed by federation officials, which indorsement will entitle the purchaser to a ticket home at half price."

Farm Bureau officials have been assured by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he will be present for an address the opening day if he can arrange his work at Washington so he can make the trip west. However, the question of his coming is still unsettled.

Consideration of the Federation's agricultural program for 1923 will be an important part of the delegates' work.

Trainmen Say Poor Condition Of Locomotives Causes Delay

Great Northern passenger trains running through Thief River Falls have been regularly late during the last few days, particularly the northbound train which is supposed to arrive here at 11.15 a.m. but lately has been several hours behind scheduled time.

The delays have been partly due to the cold weather, but the real cause, say railroad employes, is the poor condition of the locomotives. Power on the northern division is lacking and the freight and passenger service out of Crookston is greatly hindered because of the bad condition of the engines.

The Crookston Times explains the condition of the service as follows: The Great Northern is making every effort to bring their trains in on time and to furnish reliable freight service, but thus far they have not been very successful. They have a large crew of men working at the Crookston round house, and are trying hard to repair the engines and cars, which are damaged much easier in cold weather.

The striking shopmen of Crookston are still out and as yet none have returned to work. A number of them have left the city for Winnipeg, where they have secured employment on the Canadian government railways. At the present time there seems to be no indications of a settlement between the Great Northern and its striking shopmen. Railway officials have stated that as far as the railway company is concerned, the strike has been settled long ago.

FINE BIRDS AT SIXTH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

Quality of Exhibits is Best Ever Shown in Annual Event in Thief River Falls

Olaf Neset And C. D. Gustafson Win Silver Loving Cups For Second Time

Attendance Not As Large As in Former Years Due to Bad Weather Conditions

The Sixth annual exhibition of the Pennington County Poultry association held in the city auditorium last week was one of best ever held in this section and probably in the state in so far as the exhibition was concerned. However, due to the inclement weather conditions many farmers and others were unable to get here to view the wonderful display of every variety of poultry. The number of chickens displayed was about the same as last year, but proved to be of a better quality, and more interest was shown by poultrymen a long ways from Thief River Falls or Pennington county. Expert W. E. Standfield of Minneapolis was the official judge at the show.

A great deal of effort was put forth by County agent McCann and the other officers of the association to make it a success, and deserve due credit.

Grand Champion Sweepstakes

The silver loving cup for the best female in the show was awarded Olaf Neset, local jeweler, and a similar cup for the highest scoring male was won by C. D. Gustafson, also of this city. These prizes were awarded Neset and Gustafson last year also. The fifteen dollar loving cup for the

CATHOLIC CHURCH AT RED LAKE FALLS IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Firemen Have Difficulty in Saving Parochial School And Convent

St. Joseph's Catholic church at Red Lake Falls, the oldest church in the city, was completely destroyed by fire Thursday last week. The blaze threatened to burn down the parochial school and convent and the nearby homes when it was finally overcome by the immediate and prompt action of the fire department.

The fire started in the basement about 11 a.m., the cause being thought to be either spontaneous combustion from a bin of lignite coal or from an overheated furnace. The fire department which was called instantly at the discovery of the fire, acted promptly, sending streams of water down into the basement. However, this did not check the flames as they had gotten in between the walls and up to the roof. Holes were chopped in the sidewalls and streams of water directed into them but this procedure was soon found to be of no help as the fire had taken complete control of the roof of the building.

When it was realized that the church could not be saved from the ravages of the flames, all efforts were put to saving the school, which was done successfully. One corner of the school caught fire but it being a brick building, was put out before serious damages were done. Some damage was done by smoke and water and the contents suffered from moving.

The church was built in 1892 at a cost of $8,000 and was 46x46x110 feet in size with a spire 110 feet in height. Two years ago a full basement was put under the building and some $1,500 spent in interior decorations. The advance in the cost of material made the structure and contents worth approximately $30,000. The insurance will partially cover the loss. The school was built in 1902 and the convent addition in 1916. This is the second time St. Joseph's church has been destroyed by fire, the first time being in 1891.

This is a heavy loss to the St. Joseph parish and is a hard blow to its members. It is expected that plans will be made immediately for the construction of another church. Father E. J. Lemire is the pastor of the congregation.

Good Roads Builders

Traffic on many of the graveled highways in Minnesota is getting to be so heavy that the roads are soon worn out. A graveled highway is a mighty good highway—as long as it lasts. The road between St. Paul and Jordan, for instance, is a fright today. Eventually, the arterial highways of the state will have to be paved. It looks as if paving were the only way to solve the road problem successfully. Traffic is increasing every day. More and more people are using the highways and every day the roads are deteriorating.—Winnebago City Enterprise.

Electric Power at Viking

It is reported that an electric power line will be built soon from Newfolden to Viking, a distance of eight miles, which will afford the residents of the village with electric power. It is being constructed by the Northern Minnesota Eelectrical Distributing company of Crookston.

Two Boys Severely Dealt With For School Pranks

Two young men, Jessie Davidson and Donald Fiterman, until recently students at the local high school, appeared in juvenile court before judge Lars Backe yesterday and admitted having broken into the high school and taken ice cream during a recent party given by the senior class. They had gotten into the building by breaking a lock and succeeding in getting away with a considerable amount of ice cream from one of the rooms, but were seen as they attempted to make their escape. It was found out that another group of young boys had joined them in satisfying their appetites with the stolen eats.

The matter was first taken into hand and acted upon by the senior class and high school authorities, which resulted in expelling from the school the two boys in question. It was then turned over to the juvenile court for further consideration.

The judge placed both under probation, each of them to report to local authorities at certain intervals. Davidson will remain in the city and may be permitted to return to school on good behavior, while Fiterman will leave for Sask, Canada to stay with his uncle during the coming winter.

Studying in Minneapolis

The following item which appeared in the Minneapolis Journal last Sunday will be of interest to local friends of Mrs. W. A. Barnard of this city: "Mrs. Effie Hanson Barnard of Thief River Falls, Minn., has come to Minneapolis to take piano lessons from Helga Olsen. Mrs. Barnard is a graduate of St. Olaf's college, music department, where she studied piano with Miss Olsen at the time she was head of the piano department."

FARM POPULATION SEX AND AGE IN 1920

Figures Show 109.1 Males to 100 Females; Large Proportion Under 21 Years

Washington.—The Department of Commerce announces that, according to the Fourteenth Decennial Census, the 31,614,269 farm dwellers enumerated as of January 1, 1920, were grouped according to sex and age as follows: Males, 16,496,338; females, 15,117,931. Under 10 years of age, 8,138,070; 10 to 20 years, 7,824,106; 21 years and over, 15,652,093. The farm population comprises all persons actually making their home on the farm, regardless of whether engaged in agriculture, together with farm laborers and their families living elsewhere than on farms but not living in incorporated places.

The sex ratio for the farm population in 1920 was 109.1 males to 100 females, as against a ratio of 104 to 100 for the entire population of the United States. In every state except three—West Virginia, Wyoming, and Arizona—the ratio of males to females was higher for the farm population than for the total population, despite the fact that the foreign born element, in which the males considerably outnumber the females, is found mainly in the cities. This means the larger number of women than of men are leaving the farms in search of more lucrative fields of endeavor. East of the Mississippi river the highest ratio for any state is that for Wisconsin, 115,7 to 100, while the lowest 100.8 appears for South Carolina. West of the Mississippi the corresponding ratio ranged from 149.4 for Nevada to 103.7 for Louisiana. In general, the ratios are higher in the west than in the North and higher in the north than in the south.

Of the total farm pouliation, 25.7 per cent were under 1 years of age, 24.7 per cent between 10 and 21 years of age, and 49.5 per cent were 21 years of age and over. The corresponding percentages for the entire population of the United States where 21.7, 20.7 and 57., respectively. Thus the farm population includes a relatively large proportion of persons under the age of 21 and a relatively small proportion of persons 21 years of age and over. This difference in age distribution is due in a large part to the fact that the majority of persons who leave the farm to take up their residence elsewhere have reached or passed the age of 21. Moreover, the foreign-born population, which is found mainly in the cities, consists in a large part of persons past the age of 21. The largest proportions of children and youth in the farm population are shown for the Southern states and the lowest for the New England states, New York, New Jersey and California.

Minnesota's farm population of 997,181 consists of 486,048 maes and 411,133 females.

Students May Enter Course For Nurses at U. Jan. 4

Nursing, like teaching, appeals to woman because it is an expression of the natural functions of womanhood, said an announcement sent out this week by Miss Marion Vannier, acting superintendent of nurses at the Elliot Memorial hospital, University of Minnesota, in which she called attention to the fact that a new class will be entered in the school for nurses on Jan. 4, the beginning of the winter quarter.

The school of nurses, she explained, admits entrants at each quarter, at it continues throughout the entire year on a four quarters basis. Already 12 young women have registered to enter the school Jan. 4. After that the next date for admission will be April 3, at the opening of the spring quarter.

"The rearing of children, the care of the sick, the relief of suffering, the protection of health are essentially woman's work," said her announcement. "Women are always the chief agents of human betterment.

There is a definite urge of their own nature toward such a vocation as nursing, but there is an invitation, too. The profession gives to all newcomers an invitation to service, to positions of consequence, and to the adequate compensation these positions offer. In recent years nursing has developed large possibilities. Private nursing, hospital nursing, institutional nursing, visiting-nursing, are all services of relief to the sick. But opportunity does not end here. Public school nursing, rural community nursing, infant and child welfare work, industrial nursing are agencies of preventive medicine. These things mean not only making but keeping people well. These mean the making of better boys and girls, better men and women."

"The University of Minnesota, she explained, offers two nursing courses. One is of five years duration, including two years in the academic college, two in the school of nurses and one in advanced nursing study. The three-year course, which one may enter without the two years of academic work, prepares for private duty and hospital nursing, but not for advanced work in the nursing profession.

FATHER COMES INTO HIS OWN PICTURE 'THE GOOD PROVIDER'

Papa Not Such a Bad Skate After All As Is Shown In This Photoplay

If your father complains that he is not appreciated in his own home, that your mother and your sisters and brothers overlook the fact that he is supporting them, that his love for you falls on deaf ears, just advise him to go to the Lyceum Theatre next Sunday and Monday when there will be presented a photoplay that will make up for Dad all of the gratitude that he thinks he has missed for years. It will make him happy, make Mother happy and you happy, too.

"The Good Provider," written by Fannie Hurst and directed by Frank Borzage, is father's own picture. "Humoresque" revealed the beautiful quality of a mother's love. "The Good Provider"—written by the same author and directed by the same director—shows that father isn't such a bad skate, after all.

Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson are the featured players in this new Cosmopolitan Production released by Paramount. Everyone who saw "Humoresque" knows what an inimitable Papa and Mama they make. And Mariam Battista, who was the little girl in "Humoresque," plays a similar part in "The Good Provider."

As usual with Cosmopolitan Production, the cast is particularly noteworthy. It inculdes, besides those mentioned, Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier, Jr., John Roche, James Devine, Blanche Craig, Ora Jones, Edward Phillips, Muriel Martin and Margaret Severn, the dancer.

LOKEN BROTHERS TO CLOSE STORE HERE SATURDAY

Will Move at Once to Madison Wisconsin Where New Store Will be Opened

Thief River Falls Loses One of Most Progressive Retail Business Houses

Splendid Opening Here For Some Concern to Succeed This Establishment

Saturday Loken Brothers will close their store in Thief River Falls and immediately commence packing their big stock to move to Madison, Wis., where they will open one of the finest department stores in that section of the state.

New Store Opens February 3

They now have a crew of men busy putting in the fixtures and interior decorations of their new store and their buyers are now in the markets selecting the necessary merchandise with which to stock the establishment. The store is much larger than the one that they have operated here, it consisting of three floors 85 by 140 feet. To arrange for the opening of this big store is considerable of a task but Mr. H. O. Loken announces that everything will be in readiness for their opening day, which will be February 3rd.

Here Ten Years

Loken Brothers opened their store in Thief River Falls about ten years ago and in this short time it has grown from a small undertaking to one of the finest and most progressive retail business establishments in this section of the state. The agressive and up-to-date business methods of the firm have met with generous and appreciative response on the part of the public and their store has long been recognized as the shopping center of a territory that extends many miles in all directions from Thief River Falls.

Distinct Loss to City

The removal of the fine store is a distinct loss to Thief River Falls and it is regreted by the business houses of the city as well as the public in general. H. O. Loken and Geo. C. Loken have at all times taken a keen interest in the upbuilding of the city and have taken a prominent part in the business, social and religious life of the community. They and their estimable families will be greatly missed.

Splendid Opening Here

The building that is to be vacated by Loken Brothers offers a splendid opening for some firm to engage in the department store business here and it is not likely that it will remain vacant for any great length of time.

ADVERTISING MEDIUM OF VALUE TO FARMER

Idea of Advertising Farm Products is Growing Among Wide Awake Farmers

The day when American farm products will be as extensively advertised throughout the country as the automobile and other manufactured articles, soon will arrive, Dr. W. M. Jardine, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, declared before the Washington Ad club.

The American farmer has been acquainted with only one side of the advertising business," he said. "In the main, he thinks of advertising as a more or less tricky device employed by middlemen to separate him from his money. He probably has somewhat the same opinion of advertising as a target has for rifle ranges.

"The signs of the times, however, are pointing in another direction. Bankers and members of chambers of commerce have begun to take the farmer in as a business partner. They see they must help him earn more money, and they are beginning to see that he needs help, principally with his marketing and selling problems.

"Agriculaural men of America have begun to concern themselves with the selling end of their business. They have begun to learn to sell co-operatively, to organize and to respect their organization. The next generation of farmers is going to grow up already 'sold' to the idea of organization."

Selling Kota Seed Wheat

N. H. Diamond, representative of the Kota Seed Wheat Growers, Inc., came here last week for the purpose of selling seed wheat to the farmers of this vicinity. The supply of Kota seed is very limited so that only 200 bushels were allotted to be sold in this community. However, only about 100 bushels were purchased here. In some sections people are very enthusiastic about the new variety, having received better yield and much better returns from Kota wheat than the usual kind. The scarcity of the wheat causes the price of it to be very high, enabling the grower to realize a neat sum when it is sold for seed purposes which will be the case until the variety is more generally grown. The cooperative company assures the growers for next year a net return of about $5 per bushel of the wheat if pooled with the concern or sold locally to neighbors.

ALL PATIENTS ARE RELEASED FROM HOSPITAL

Auditorium No Longer Needed As Detention Hospital For Diphtheria Cases

Considered Remarkable That None Developed Serious Condition During Epidemic

Prompt Action of Authorities Undoubtedly Prevented Serious Consequences

All patients who have been under quarantine for diphtheria at the city auditorium, which was used as a detention hospital, have been released, the last ones leaving Thursday.

At no time since the outbreak of the epidemic has there been a serious case of the disease in Thief River Falls and it is considered very fortunate that such has been the case. Medical authorities state that it very often happens that a mild epidemic of diphtheria changes to a most severe form of the dread disease and the local health authorities have been complimented very highly by the state department for the prompt and efficient manner in which the epidemic was stamped out here.

Some Suffer Complications

There are a few in the city who are suffering from complications that so often follow even mild cases of diphtheria but aside from this there is no more evidence of the disease. These are mostly cases where some form of heart trouble has followed the ailment.

George Lipscombe Dies At Home In Lake City Sunday

Word has been received by friends of George Lipscombe, that he passed away at Lake City, Minn., Sunday, following an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Lipscombe was one of the earliest settlers in this section, having come here over forty years ago, residing part of that time at Crookston. He moved from Thief River Falls last spring and since that time has made his home at Lake City. Deceased was 62 years of age at the time death occurred.

Mr. Lipscombe is survived by his widow, a daughter, Beulah, who is teaching near Rochester, and a son, Allan, principal of the Roosevelt school at Grand Forks. Fred Copp is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

Examinations Prove Rural Health Not Always Best

Contrary to popular belief, students coming from rural districts in Minnesota are somewhat less healthy than those who grow in the larger population centers.

This is the decision Dr. H. S. Diehl, director of the Students' Health Service, University of Minnesota, and his assistants have made as a result of comparing statistics based on examinations at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and those at the University main campus. More than 50 per cent of the students on the main campus are from the twin cities and nearby.

"It was the opinion of the examiners that students from rural homes seen at agricultural schools show in a most astonishing manner the evidences of early neglect in the matter of infant, school, personal and community hygiene," said the report.

During the examination of 135 students at Crookston a total of 365 defects were noted, averaging 2.7 defects per student. Of these 165 were minor, in some cases no more than a need for vaccination, in which treatment was optional; 165 were moderately severe, in which treatment was necessary, and 33 were severe, with treatment urgent.

The physicians employed by the Students' Health Service treat students with slight or moderate ailments, and send those with severe ailments to consult their family physicians.

Mrs. Beerbower Buried

The funeral services for Mrs. Beerbower were held in the Methodist church on Tuesday. Two beautiful pieces were rendered by a mixed quartette consisting of Mesdames Prichard and Nason, and Messrs. Bottelson and Darrin, the sermon being delivered by Rev. J. S. Smith. The esteem in which Mrs. Beerbower was held was amply attested by the large number of friends and neighbors who braved the inclemency of the weather to pay their last respects to the deceased.

LEGISLATIVE ACTION TO GAGE ROAD WORK

Improvements during 1923 and 1924 on all state trunk highways—so-called Babcock roads—will depend largely upon action by the next legislature on recommendations by the state highway department for first issues of state trunk highway bonds.

Presenting the important fact, John H. Mullen, assistant commissioner and chief highway engineer, said that only by issuing bonds can the state make greatly needed improvements, stop waste of funds for maintenance, give immediate benefits in proportion to funds used, speed up the highway program to keep among the good roads states.

"The highway bond proposals are for the advantage of all parts of the state," said Mr. Mullen. "They will provide not only for permanent improvements on heavy traffic routes but equally far more extensive grading and graveling work covering big mileages of light-traffic sections. Otherwise the latter class of work must wait under the policy of using funds to best serve the largest numbers of highway users."

"There is no magic in road building," said Mr. Mullen. "Reasonable amounts must be forthcoming to carry on the necessary work. Results thus far have come from low prices, economical administration and so forth, but have been governed primarily by the funds available. The highway department is recommending highway bond issues because they fit into the general scheme and will insure greater fairness and satisfaction."

Mr. Mullen predicted that the public through its senators and representatives will put through the legislative program and that far-reaching results will follow to prove the wisdom of such favorable action.

FORMER CITIZEN IS NAMED AUDITOR OF NEW MINN. COUNTY

Arthur Tanem, at One Time President of City Council Refuses to Accept Position

A former Thief River Falls citizen, Arthur Tanem now of Spooner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tanem, was appointed auditor of the recently established county of Lake of the Woods, but refused to accept the position. He gave as a reason for his refusal, preference for the banking business in which he is now engaged at Spooner.

Baudette is the county seat of the new Lake of the Woods county, according to a decision of the county board of commissioners. At their first business session the county commissioners appointed county officers for the next two years as follows: Auditor, Mervin D. Weeks of Spooner; treasurer, John F. Clark of Williams; register of deeds, Hans B. Imdal of Pitt; sheriff, Thos. Slind of Faunce; county attorney, E. C. Middleton of Baudette; superintendent of schools, Wm. H. Ripon of Baudette; clerk of court, J. U. Williams of Baudette; coroner, John R. Norris of Williams; surveyor, John Gjelhaug of Baudette; court commissioner, Morris Willett of Baudette.

The judge of probate will be appointed by the governor later on.

Christmas Seals Should Be Important Part of All Gifts

The "Christmas feel," as James Whitcomb Riley calls the wonderful holiday spirit, is in the air. It has already penetrated to your heart.

Gay ribbons are waiting to tie festive gift packages. Cards with good will messages are piled high as snow banks in their white envelopes.

But there's something lacking if you haven't bought Christmas seals!

For not only do they add to the gaiety of package and letter, but they have come to stand for the Christmas spirit itself—the old fashioned, true Christmas spirit of doing something for those whom "Santa Claus" is but a lost illusion—to whom Christmas is but another "hollow" day.

The money from the sale of Christmas seals is used to fight tuberculosis.

The fight against this disease must be nation-wide in its scope. Therefore, each community should assist. The results are apparent. As compared with the death rate of ten years ago, Minnesota is saving 972 lives a year.

Think this over, and if you consider it worth while, buy what Christmas seals you can afford.

Winter Term At Northwest School Begins January 2nd

The winter term at the Northwest School of Agriculture begins January 2 and continues until March 29. During the past year it has been difficult for many to attend school. Prices have been low, making it necessary in many cases to keep the older children at home to help with the work on the farm. The Northwest school has been able to assist hundreds of students in Northwestern Minnesota to secure an education. There is no tuition and living expenses at the school are exceptionally reasonable.

New classes will be organized for the winter term so that new students will not be handicapped because of having missed the first term. Some of the courses offered which are in the most demand are dairying and stock work, business training, dressmaking, soils and crops. Students are also able to take history, mathematics, English, economics and allied subjects, thereby meeting the entrance requirements for the University and Teachers' colleges.

Those who are interested in attending school this winter and making use of their spare time would do well to write the Northwest School for full particulars.

Certain loan funds bequeated to the University are available to those who are in need of funds for continuing in school. Before anyone gives up his intention to go to school this year because of lack of funds, he should secure further particulars regarding this matter. The courses open to students are for both young men and and young women.

Thanks For Patronage

The Girls Community club has requested the Times to thank the public for the liberal patronage given them at the annual bazaar held last Saturday, and the women of the city for their generous donations. The club also wishes to extend its appreciation to Miss Maude L. Johnson and the Glee club for the musical numbers rendered.

Red River Valley Winter Shows Will Open Feb. 5th

The Red River Valley essay contest held in connection with the winter shows will be put on again this year, according to an announcement by a committee consisting of Messrs. Jon. Hamre, Erskine; David Johnson, Warren and S. A. Aas, Fertile. The subject to be written on this year is "The Red River Valley winter shows as a factor in promoting diversified farming in the Red River Valley." The winter shows will be held in Crookston, Feb. 5-6-7-8-9, 1923. All pupils of sixth, seventh and eighth grades are eligible to write essays on this subject. The grand sweepstakes prize of five dollars ($5.00) will be awarded for the best essay. The best essay written by eighth grade contestants will be given, 1st, $5.00; 2nd, $3.00; 3rd, $1.00. Similar awards will be given seventh and sixth grade contestants. Best essay from each county will be given, 1st, $1.50; 2nd, $1.00; 3rd, $.50. Counties included in essay contest district are the northwest counties of Minnesota. All essays must be in hands of county superintendent or chairman of committee, S. A. Aas, Fertile, not later than January 30, 1923.

Last year the essay was written on the subject of "The Future of the Red River Valley." A great many took part in the contest and it is expected that even a larger number will take part this year.

Mrs. A. W. Swedenburg has returned from Harvey, N. D., where she purchased a complete line of hospital equipment from the hospital there which recently discontinued business. The equipment is being installed in the new Swedenburg hospital clinic.

MARKETING THEME AT BUREAU MEETING

Low Rates, on Certificate Plan Obtained for State Convention, St. Paul, Jan. 2-4

Marketing will be the theme stressed at the annual convention of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, to be held in St. Paul, Jan. 2, 3, and 4. On the second day of the meeting, most of the time will be devoted to reports from farmer-owned sales agencies, representatives of live stock, grain, wool, potato and other terminal selling institutions with which the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is cooperating will be on the program to report on progress during the year and suggest plans for expansion in 1923.

Railroad rates of a fare and a half for the round trip for all persons attending the convention have been obtained by F. L. French, secretary. "To profit by this arrangement," Mr. French says, "delegates and others attending should obtain a certificate at the time the ticket is purchased. Sometime during the convention these certificates will be endorsed by federation officials, which indorsement will entitle the purchaser to a ticket home at half price."

Farm Bureau officials have been assured by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that he will be present for an address the opening day if he can arrange his work at Washington so he can make the trip west. However, the question of his coming is still unsettled.

Consideration of the Federation's agricultural program for 1923 will be an important part of the delegates' work.

Trainmen Say Poor Condition Of Locomotives Causes Delay

Great Northern passenger trains running through Thief River Falls have been regularly late during the last few days, particularly the northbound train which is supposed to arrive here at 11.15 a.m. but lately has been several hours behind scheduled time.

The delays have been partly due to the cold weather, but the real cause, say railroad employes, is the poor condition of the locomotives. Power on the northern division is lacking and the freight and passenger service out of Crookston is greatly hindered because of the bad condition of the engines.

The Crookston Times explains the condition of the service as follows: The Great Northern is making every effort to bring their trains in on time and to furnish reliable freight service, but thus far they have not been very successful. They have a large crew of men working at the Crookston round house, and are trying hard to repair the engines and cars, which are damaged much easier in cold weather.

The striking shopmen of Crookston are still out and as yet none have returned to work. A number of them have left the city for Winnipeg, where they have secured employment on the Canadian government railways. At the present time there seems to be no indications of a settlement between the Great Northern and its striking shopmen. Railway officials have stated that as far as the railway company is concerned, the strike has been settled long ago.

Robert Olson, aged 77, died Monday, Dec. 18, at the home of his son Carl, near Holt, after having been of ill health for some time. The aged man was a native of Norway and had been in this country for many years. Deceased was a widower and leaves only a son to mourn his death. Funeral services are held today from the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. Geo. Larson officiating.

FINE BIRDS AT SIXTH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

Quality of Exhibits is Best Ever Shown in Annual Event in Thief River Falls

Olaf Neset And C. D. Gustafson Win Silver Loving Cups For Second Time

Attendance Not As Large As in Former Years Due to Bad Weather Conditions

The Sixth annual exhibition of the Pennington County Poultry association held in the city auditorium last week was one of best ever held in this section and probably in the state in so far as the exhibition was concerned. However, due to the inclement weather conditions many farmers and others were unable to get here to view the wonderful display of every variety of poultry. The number of chickens displayed was about the same as last year, but proved to be of a better quality, and more interest was shown by poultrymen a long ways from Thief River Falls or Pennington county. Expert W. E. Standfield of Minneapolis was the official judge at the show.

A great deal of effort was put forth by County agent McCann and the other officers of the association to make it a success, and deserve due credit.

Grand Champion Sweepstakes

The silver loving cup for the best female in the show was awarded Olaf Neset, local jeweler, and a similar cup for the highest scoring male was won by C. D. Gustafson, also of this city. These prizes were awarded Neset and Gustafson last year also. The fifteen dollar loving cup for the

CATHOLIC CHURCH AT RED LAKE FALLS IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Firemen Have Difficulty in Saving Parochial School And Convent

St. Joseph's Catholic church at Red Lake Falls, the oldest church in the city, was completely destroyed by fire Thursday last week. The blaze threatened to burn down the parochial school and convent and the nearby homes when it was finally overcome by the immediate and prompt action of the fire department.

The fire started in the basement about 11 a.m., the cause being thought to be either spontaneous combustion from a bin of lignite coal or from an overheated furnace. The fire department which was called instantly at the discovery of the fire, acted promptly, sending streams of water down into the basement. However, this did not check the flames as they had gotten in between the walls and up to the roof. Holes were chopped in the sidewalls and streams of water directed into them but this procedure was soon found to be of no help as the fire had taken complete control of the roof of the building.

When it was realized that the church could not be saved from the ravages of the flames, all efforts were put to saving the school, which was done successfully. One corner of the school caught fire but it being a brick building, was put out before serious damages were done. Some damage was done by smoke and water and the contents suffered from moving.

The church was built in 1892 at a cost of $8,000 and was 46x46x110 feet in size with a spire 110 feet in height. Two years ago a full basement was put under the building and some $1,500 spent in interior decorations. The advance in the cost of material made the structure and contents worth approximately $30,000. The insurance will partially cover the loss. The [illegible] was built in 1902 and the con[illegible] addition in 1916. This is the second time St. Joseph's church has been destroyed by fire, the first time being in 1891.

This is a heavy loss to the St. Joseph parish and is a hard blow to its members. It is expected that plans will be made immediately for the construction of another church. Father E. J. Lemire is the pastor of the congregation.

Good Roads Builders

Traffic on many of the graveled highways in Minnesota is getting to be so heavy that the roads are soon worn out. A graveled highway is a mighty good highway—as long as it lasts. The road between St. Paul and Jordan, for instance, is a fright today. Eventually, the arterial highways of the state will have to be paved. It looks as if paving were the only way to solve the road problem successfully. Traffic is increasing every day. More and more people are using the highways and every day the roads are deteriorating.—Winnebago City Enterprise.

Electric Power at Viking

It is reported that an electric power line will be built soon from Newfolden to Viking, a distance of eight miles, which will afford the residents of the village with electric power. It is being constructed by the Northern Minnesota Eelectrical Distributing company of Crookston.

Two Boys Severely Dealt With For School Pranks

Two young men, Jessie Davidson and Donald Fiterman, until recently students at the local high school, appeared in juvenile court before judge Lars Backe yesterday and admitted having broken into the high school and taken ice cream during a recent party given by the senior class. They had gotten into the building by breaking a lock and succeeding in getting away with a considerable amount of ice cream from one of the rooms, but were seen as they attempted to make their escape. It was found out that another group of young boys had joined them in satisfying their appetites with the stolen eats.

The matter was first taken into hand and acted upon by the senior class and high school authorities, which resulted in expelling from the school the two boys in question. It was then turned over to the juvenile court for further consideration.

The judge placed both under probation, each of them to report to local authorities at certain intervals. Davidson will remain in the city and may be permitted to return to school on good behavior, while Fiterman will leave for Sask, Canada to stay with his uncle during the coming winter.

Studying in Minneapolis

The following item which appeared in the Minneapolis Journal last Sunday will be of interest to local friends of Mrs. W. A. Barnard of this city: "Mrs. Effie Hanson Barnard of Thief River Falls, Minn., has come to Minneapolis to take piano lessons from Helga Olsen. Mrs. Barnard is a graduate of St. Olaf's college, music department, where she studied piano with Miss Olsen at the time she was head of the piano department."

FARM POPULATION SEX AND AGE IN 1920

Figures Show 109.1 Males to 100 Females; Large Proportion Under 21 Years

Washington.—The Department of Commerce announces that, according to the Fourteenth Decennial Census, the 31,614,269 farm dwellers enumerated as of January 1, 1920, were grouped according to sex and age as follows: Males, 16,496,338; females, 15,117,931. Under 10 years of age, 8,138,070; 10 to 20 years, 7,824,106; 21 years and over, 15,652,093. The farm population comprises all persons actually making their home on the farm, regardless of whether engaged in agriculture, together with farm laborers and their families living elsewhere than on farms but not living in incorporated places.

The sex ratio for the farm population in 1920 was 109.1 males to 100 females, as against a ratio of 104 to 100 for the entire population of the United States. In every state except three—West Virginia, Wyoming, and Arizona—the ratio of males to females was higher for the farm population than for the total population, despite the fact that the foreign born element, in which the males considerably outnumber the females, is found mainly in the cities. This means the larger number of women than of men are leaving the farms in search of more lucrative fields of endeavor. East of the Mississippi river the highest ratio for any state is that for Wisconsin, 115,7 to 100, while the lowest 100.8 appears for South Carolina. West of the Mississippi the corresponding ratio ranged from 149.4 for Nevada to 103.7 for Louisiana. In general, the ratios are higher in the west than in the North and higher in the north than in the south.

Of the total farm population, 25.7 per cent were under 10 years of age, 24.7 per cent between 10 and 21 years of age, and 49.6 per cent were 21 years of age and over. The corresponding percentages for the entire population of the United States where 21.7, 20.7 and 57., respectively. Thus the farm population includes a relatively large proportion of persons under the age of 21 and a relatively small proportion of persons 21 years of age and over. This difference in age distribution is due in a large part to the fact that the majority of persons who leave the farm to take up their residence elsewhere have reached or passed the age of 21. Moreover, the foreign-born population, which is found mainly in the cities, consists in a large part of persons past the age of 21. The largest proportions of children and youth in the farm population are shown for the Southern states and the lowest for the New England states, New York, New Jersey and California.

Minnesota's farm population of 997,181 consists of 486,048 maes and 411,133 females.

Students May Enter Course For Nurses at U. Jan. 4

Nursing, like teaching, appeals to a woman because it is an expression of the natural functions of womanhood, said an announcement sent out this week by Miss Marion Vannier, acting superintendent of nurses at the Elliot Memorial hospital, University of Minnesota, in which she called attention to the fact that a new class will be entered in the school for nurses on Jan. 4, the beginning of the winter quarter.

The school of nurses, she explained, admits entrants at each quarter, at it continues trroughout the entire year on a four quarters basis. Already 12 young women have registered to enter the school Jan. 4. After that the next date for admission will be April 3, at the opening of the spring quarter.

"The rearing of children, the care of the sick, the relief of suffering, the protection of health are essentially woman's work," said her announcement. "Women are always the chief agents of human betterment.

There is a definite urge of their own nature toward such a vocation as nursing, but there is an invitation, too. The profession gives to all newcomers an invitation to service, to positions of consequence, and to the adequate compensation these positions offer. In recent years nursing has developed large possibilities. Private nursing, hospital nursing, institutional nursing, visiting nursing, are all services of relief to the sick. But opportunity does not end here. Public school nursing, rural community nursing, infant and child welfare work, industrial nursing are agencies of preventive medicine. These things mean not only making but keeping people well. These mean the making of better boys and girls, better men and women."

The University of Minnesota, she explained, offers two nursing courses. One is of five years duration, including two years in the academic college, two in the school of nurses and one in advanced nursing study. The three-year course, which one may enter without the two years of academic work, prepares for private duty and hospital nursing, but not for advanced work in the nursing profession.

FATHER COMES INTO HIS OWN PICTURE 'THE GOOD PROVIDER'

Papa Not Such a Bad Skate After All As Is Shown In This Photoplay

If your father complains that he is not appreciated in his own home, that your mother and your sisters and brothers overlook the fact that he is supporting them, that his love for you falls on deaf ears, just advise him to go to the Lyceum Theatre next Sunday and Monday when there will be presented a photoplay that will make up for Dad all of the gratitude that he thinks he has missed for years. It will make him happy, make Mother happy and you happy, too.

"The Good Provider," written by Fannie Hurst and directed by Frank Borzage, is father's own picture. "Humoresque" revealed the beautiful quality of a mother's love. "The Good Provider"—written by the same author and directed by the same director—shows that father isn't such a bad skate, after all.

Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson are the featured players in this new Cosmopolitan Production released by Paramount. Everyone who saw "Humoresque" knows what an inimitable Papa and Mama they make. And Mariam Battista, who was the little girl in "Humoresque," plays a similar part in "The Good Provider."

As usual with Cosmopolitan Production, the cast is particularly noteworthy. It inculdes, besides those mentioned, Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier, Jr., John Roche, James Devine, Blanche Craig, Ora Jones, Edward Phillips, Muriel Martin and Margaret Severn, the dancer.

LOKEN BROTHERS TO CLOSE STORE HERE SATURDAY

Will Move at Once to Madison Wisconsin Where New Store Will be Opened

Thief River Falls Loses One of Most Progressive Retail Business Houses

Splendid Opening Here For Some Concern to Succeed This Establishment

Saturday Loken Brothers will close their store in Thief River Falls and immediately commence packing their big stock to move to Madison, Wis., where they will open one of the finest department stores in that section of the state.

New Store Opens February 3

They now have a crew of men busy putting in the fixtures and interior decorations of their new store and their buyers are now in the markets selecting the necessary merchandise with which to stock the establishment. The store is much larger than the one that they have operated here, it consisting of three floors 85 by 140 feet. To arrange for the opening of this big store is considerable of a task but Mr. H. O. Loken announces that everything will be in readiness for their opening day, which will be February 3rd.

Here Ten Years

Loken Brothers opened their store in Thief River Falls about ten years ago and in this short time it has grown from a small undertaking to one of the finest and most progressive retail business establishments in this section of the state. The agressive and up-to-date business methods of the firm have met with generous and appreciative response on the part of the public and their store has long been recognized as the shopping center of a territory that extends many miles in all directions from Thief River Falls.

Distinct Loss to City

The removal of the fine store is a distinct loss to Thief River Falls and it is regreted by the business houses of the city as well as the public in general. H. O. Loken and Geo. C. Loken have at all times taken a keen interest in the upbuilding of the city and have taken a prominent part in the business, social and religious life of the community. They and their estimable families will be greatly missed.

Splendid Opening Here

The building that is to be vacated by Loken Brothers offers a splendid opening for some firm to engage in the department store business here and it is not likely that it will remain vacant for any great length of time.

ADVERTISING MEDIUM OF VALUE TO FARMER

Idea of Advertising Farm Products is Growing Among Wide Awake Farmers

The day when American farm products will be as extensively advertised throughout the country as the automobile and other manufactured articles, soon will arrive, Dr. W. M. Jardine, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, declared before the Washington Ad club.

"The American farmer has been acquainted with only one side of the advertising business," he said. "In the main, he thinks of advertising as a more or less tricky device employed by middlemen to separate him from his money. He probably has somewhat the same opinion of advertising as a target has for rifle ranges.

"The signs of the times, however, are pointing in another direction. Bankers and members of chambers of commerce have begun to take the farmer in as a business partner. They see they must help him earn more money, and they are beginning to see that he needs help, principally with his marketing and selling problems.

"Agriculaural men of America have begun to concern themselves with the selling end of their business. They have begun to learn to sell co-operatively, to organize and to respect their organization. The next generation of farmers is going to grow up already 'sold' to the idea of organization."

Selling Kota Seed Wheat

N. H. Diamond, representative of the Kota Seed Wheat Growers, Inc., came here last week for the purpose of selling seed wheat to the farmers of this vicinity. The supply of Kota seed is very limited so that only 200 bushels were allotted to be sold in this community. However, only about 100 bushels were purchased here. In some sections people are very enthusiastic about the new variety, having received better yield and much better returns from Kota wheat than the usual kind. The scarcity of the wheat causes the price of it to be very high, enabling the grower to realize a neat sum when it is sold for seed purposes which will be the case until the variety is more generally grown. The cooperative company assures the growers for next year a net return of about $5 per bushel of the wheat if pooled with the concern or sold locally to neighbors.

Mary has a little plan
To do her Christmas buying;
She shops and mails three weeks ahead—
Now, that's a stunt worth trying.

Consulting Engineer Explains Plan Whereby Power Concerns Will Pay Share of River Improvement Costs

(By A. F. Meyer)

"In order to get the facts bearing on the Red Lake improvement project before the people of your community, I offer the following statement:

"In the first place, at no time have I recommended that the payment of rentals by the water power companies shall be postponed, to the dim future, as claimed by Mr. W. J. Brown in the recent hearing on the Red Lake priject. Under the proposed plan the companies now developing water power on the Red Lake river will begin to pay annual rentals as soon as the project is completed because they will be able to lease the district water for reasonable compensation.

"Mr. Brown claims that under the proposed plan no portion of the initial cost of this improvement is assessed against the power companies. This is not correct. I propose to mawe the water power companies pay a larger portion of the cost of this improvement than the government engineers did, and under the proposed plan the farmers outside of the Indian reservation will pay much less than the government engineers estimated.

"There is nothing in the government enginners report, House Document No. 61, to indicate that the contribution of the water powers was to be in the form of an immediate lump-sum assessment of $240,000 as claimed by these who are opposing the project. In fact, a careful reading of this report indicates the very opposite. The government engineers on page 29 of this document recommend that:

1. "The drainage district shall comprise all lands in that portion of the Red Lake and Red Lake river watershed above Kratka, outside of the Indian reservation, which are susceptible of benefit by existing or proposed drainage ditchees and the proposed work of river improvement.
2. "Title to the works of improvement shall rest in the drainage district.
3. "The drainage district shall receive the apportionments from the pater-power and municipal interests,, and shall disburse the funds in accordance with the Minnesota drainage laws."

"In other words, the government engineers recommend that the drainage district, consisting of all the benefited landns, shall have full and complette title to all the works of improvement. The water power interests are not to share in the ownership of these workrs in any way, and therefore are not entitled to any future income off the drainage district. On the other hand, the drainage district, consisting of all the benefited land, is to receive money from the water-power and municipal interests.

"The statement of the government engineers on pages 27 and 28 of House Document No. 61 clearly shows that the benefit to water powers was computed in terms of annual benefits to the developed water powers and not in terms of increased capital value of both developed and undeveloped water power.

"According to the Minnesota law the present developed water powers can not be forced to use the district water and therefor I do not believe any court wolud sustain a present lump-sum assessment against those water powers.

"In the Federal Water Power Act the United States does not attempt to make lump-sum assessments against water powers. On the other hand, the Federal law does provide for annual rentals to be paid during the life of the license, which is 50 years and subject to renewal. What better precedent could the District have for its plan of assessment?

"Sec. 23 Ex. Ses. 1919, Laws of Minnesota, state that the District Board, shall not part with the permanent control of the use of the District water. How could the district retain control if a lumm-sum assessment were levied?

"I do not find anything in the Mennesota law which appears to permit a lump-sum assessment against developed water powers. On the other hand, the method of applying for the use of District water, the contract covering the lease of such water, and the method of determining reasonable rates for such use, are all covered by the State Law in considerable detail:

"Lump-sum assessments against undeveloped water powers, except where the fall is concentrated at one point, are absolutely impracticable because no riparian land passesses water power value unless the fall adjacent to it is sufficient to make power development commercially feasible. This is well established by court decisions in condemnation proceedings.

"Under the terms of the Federal License the Drainage district can take over water powers when the license expires. If a lump-sum assessment were levied against the water powers the District would be forced to pay back this assessment with interest, and more too, upon the expiration of the license. By assessing annual benefits the District retains title to all water power values created by the improvement.

"In my judgment the plan of assessment off benefits against water powers which has been adopted by the District is the only feasible plan, and the only plan which will make the water powers pay any substantial portion of the costs of this improvement and its maintenance and operation."

SENTIMENT IS CHANGING

There has been a marked change in the position taken by farmers in this region since the hearings on the Red Lake drainage project were concluded. Many of those who at that time appeared in opposition to the program of the Drainage and Conservancy board have acknowledged that they were misinformed on numerous points and now that they have a clearer understanding of the proposed improvement, together with its probable cost to the farmers, they favor going ahead with the work. It was predicted at the hearing by those best in a position to know whereof they spoke that such would be the case. Nor is this the only change noticeable where this important undertaking is concerned. A number of Thief River Falls business men who listened to those who are opposed to the project, signed a request asking the courts to deny the original applicants' petition. By far the larger number of these same business men now admit they paid no particular attention to what they were signing at the time and would gladly set themselves right by a counter petition if it were not that such proceeding would make them appear ridiculous. As stated by one such signer: "You can get signatures on a petition for anything in the world, even to hanging your neighbor. One dislikes to refuse when a supposedly good friend comes forward with a petition, with the asurance that the contents are harmless, and asks you as a friend to sign it. That is how I came to put my name down and I know the case is the same with others. Our action simply proves that all persons should be more careful about attaching their signatures to petitions."

There is a good reason for the change noted in the attitude of farmers. They now understand that the improvement will cost them about one-third as much as they were led to believe would be the case and they are, for the most part at least, willing to assume this indebtedness, extending as it sees over a long term of years, if their lands can thereby be insured against flood. They are willing to do anything within reason to escape this menace and now that it has been proven that this insurance is within their reach their opposition has almost entirely disappeared.

Those opposing the plan have laid much stress upon the assertion that the water powers will not be compelled to pay their just share of the expense under the plan regarded as the most feasible by the board. In another column of The Times today will be found a statement by A. F. Meyer, consulting engineer for the board, in which he sets forth his views regarding this phase of the question. It should be apparent to anyone that paying a fixed yearly rental for the flowage will in a very short time be productive of more revenue than would be the case were the water power companies assessed the entire sum stipulated as their share of the cost at one time. This would only have the effect of producing long years of litigation with a consequent possibility of their escaping the assessment altogether. A water power site can hardly be taxed on the supposition that it will some day be developed but it can be made to pay for water as soon as this is put to use. The government itself follows this policy in supplying power through its large irrigation projects.

The water power produced by the river will never become the property of the power companies, as is pointed out by Mr. Meyer, but will revert to the commission at the expiration of any period contracted for.

Read the communication by Mr. Meyer. It will prove to your entire satisfaction, providing you are reasonable, that the commission's plan is sensible, the cost reasonable, and the system recommended the only one circulated to meet all objections.

SUPERVISION NEEDED

If half what is being told concerning the goings-on at certain dances in the city is true—and it is very much to be feared such is the case—it is high time something in the shape of supervision were provided for these affairs.

The story recently coming to light is so unbelieveable that The Times hesitates to credit it. Constant repetition from many different sources, however, lead one to fear there is something more than mere hearsay in it.

The assertion is made that at a dance recently at a well-known hall in this city and attended almost entirely by persons of tender years, there was a perfect orgy of drunkenness in which some of the girls were as bad as the boys. This was not a rifraff party, be it understood, but an invitation affair in which were represented some of the best families in the city.

This is a situation about which something will have to be done. The hall in which the dance was held is regarded as one of the most respectable in the neighborhood and is the property of one of the foremost secret societies in the world. It is safe to say the trustees know nothing of what went on at the dance referred to as it is the first time any similar stigma has attached to the place. That they will be more careful in the future is certain.

But that is not the idea. The fact that a party of young men and women should so conduct themselves, no matter where the dance were held or by whom given, is the sad part of it. That liquor of some kind or another might find its way there through subterranean channels might also be more or less expected, but that matters should go to such extremes as reported is astounding.

The Times hopes this affair has been fictured worse than it really was but the fact of its being possible to launch such a tale is sufficient ground for demanding the strickest supervision of dances attended by unchaperooned young folks. It is not enough that officers of the law do what they can to prevent these things. By far the heavier duty devolves upon parents. The excuse that they do not know where their children spend their evenings or in what kind of company, will not do. They should know or responsibility for what happens is largely theirs. If it is necessary to provide an officer whose particular duty it is to supervise dance halls, such officer should be appointed without delay.

Let's forget this episode in the interest of those who were present, at the same time taking such steps as will make repetitions highly improbable if not impossible.

A movement has been commenced in Thief River Falls for the purpose of organizing a Y. M. C. A. and it is to be hoped that something tangible will be the result, for if there is an institution more than any other that is needed in our city it is a suitable place for the young men to gather and where they may pass their spare time to advantage.

It is perhaps true that conditions are not such as to cause the people of Pennington county and Northwestern Minnesota to feel unduly jubilant, but it likewise certain that they have many causes for being happy at this season. Happiness is contageous. If you wear a bright smile during this holiday season you will infect those around you with good cheer and help them forget their troubles. Join with The Times in wishing everybody a Merry Christmas.

CHRISTMAS EDITORIAL

The jolliest season of the whole glad year is at hand. The very ether breathes the spirit of the Yuletide; the frosty welkin rings with the tinking of sleigh-bells, the laughter of children and cheery greetings of bustling shoppers.

How wonderful is the Christmastide! What a wealth of dazzling visions it calls to mind—of holly, and tinsel, and sugar plums, of minstrels and carol singers, of camels on burning deserts and reindeers hearths, of gitt—laden evergreens, and bulging stockings, of the Bethlehem star, of chiming bells, and twinkling candles and mysterious packages, of grandfather's clocks, and red brick chimneys and lowly mangers.

And how wonderful it is to know that this glad day is celebrated at the world over, and in the meanest cottage as in the manor house. Akin to its democracy is the spirit of charity that prevades the season with a sweet essense as of frankincense and myrrh. At Christmas there is no autocracy of blood or wealth—we are all the children of God paying homage to his Son, the Christ-child.

Here is a little poem expressive of the warmth and hospitality of the Yuletide:

Of weathers bleak and of winds ablow,
Never a flower—fold on fold
Of grace and beauty tops the snow
Or breaks the bleak and bitter mold
Yet it is warm—for the chill and gloom
Glow with love and with children's glee;
Yet it is sweet with the rich perfume
Of sacrifice and charity.
Christmas Tide, it is warm and sweet,
A whoe world's heart at a baby's feet.

Thoughts of 1923

Not of winter sports I dream,
When thus the snow falls soft and still,
Clothing all the world in white
Except the stream beside the mill.
Nor is it of the days to come,
When spring brings joy and bright sunsets,
And April winds bend low again
To woo each purple violet.
But of my school days long ago
In the dear old Lincoln High,
When we thought of naught but fun,
And let the days slip swiftly by.
Again I see my schoolmates all,
Just as they were and quite unchanged;
I live again those dear school days,
All bright, all clear and quite unstained.
But the howling of the wind without
Awakens me from out the past,
The fire burns low and it is cold:—
Oh, if our dreams would only last!

H. S. DECLAIMERS TRY FOR POSITIONS

30 Girls and 9 Boys Compete In Preliminary Tryouts; 8 To Be Selected

The aspiring young orators and declaimers will be given an opportunity this week to give vent to their eloquence. The orations will be delivered Tuesday night after school from 4:30 till 6 and three boys of the nine participants will be chosen, of which number one will be selected after the holidays to represent the high school in oratory.

On Tuesday evening from 7:15 till 9:30 fifteen girls will compete for declamatory honors, which will be awarded to the five best. An equal number of contestants will declaim on Wednesday from 4 till 6, and the five receiving the highest rating together with the above mentioned five will match voices in an elimination contest from which seven declaimers will be selected who will further compete in the big finals along with the three orators. This final contest will determine the one declaimer and the one orator to use their talents in bringing home more laurel wreaths to Lincoln High School.

Rapacz Finds Lincoln Compares Favorably With Neighboring High Schools

The percentage of attendance in Thief River Falls High School is better than that at either Crookston or Grand Forks, is the conclusion reached by M. P. Rapacz, principal of Lincoln High, who visited at those places last Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Rapacz visited West High School at Grand Forks, and Crookston High at the latter place. He states that our school is as good as either of those in almost every way.

The two schools and our own are relatively the same size, at least in so far as comparing the work done in them, is concerned. The total enrollment at Grand Forks is six hundred twenty-five; that of Crookston is three hundred eighty-eight, and of Lincoln High three hundred ninty-one.

Mr. Rapacz noticed a number of improvements which he says he will make in our school next semester.

We are glad to note that our school is much the same as other of the same size; the only difference is that we are more crowded.

Friday's Chapel

Friday's chapel was a very unusual one and was enjoyed by everyone Besides singing a few Christmas carols, the students had the opportunity to listen to some Christmas carols played on the victrola and also to the Hallelujah chorus, taken from the oratorio Messaiah, by Handel. The attitude displayed by the students certainly changed the mind of many who before this had had the opinion that all of us did not like to have singing chapels.

Notice

People who take lunch to school are requested to be a little more careful with the part they do not consume, many of the students have found their desks in a very sticky condition, on returning to school after lunch.

Miss Richter will probably be absent from school during the entire week, due to illness. A stenogropher has been secured to take her place.

Alumni, Listen!

The 1923 Prowler is now in the making and considerable space has been allowed the alumni. The most interesting feature of an alumni department is pictures—and pictures, snaps and reproductions of Lincoln high school graduates, in any form, design, or shape, which are all in demand. If every alumnus in Thief River Falls—and the streets are swarming with them during vacation—hand in one picture, it will be an easy matter to produce something of interest to everyone who has been connected with the Thief River Falls high school. They will be taken care if handed to members of the department or other members of the Prowler staff. Pictures may be left at the Times office. Do it NOW!

Teachers Plan Student Competition for Grades

The High School Teachers held a meeting in the assembly room last Tuesday.

The meeting was called chiefly for the purpose of giving announcements. They also discussed what might be done to obtain a better grade of work from the students. Some of the teachers suggested that a plan of competition between the classes might help. To that end Mr. Powley, Mrs. Korstad, and Miss Kirk were put on a committee to work out such a plan. If a satisfactory method can be worked out it may be used next semester.

Seniors Have Cleanest Section in Assembly

The effects of the "pick-up" campaign, instituted last week, are already beginning to be seen. According to Mr. Rapacz, who judged the relative cleanliness of the different sections of the assembly, the Seniors had by far the neatest desks and aisles during the first week of the "pick-up" movement.

Perhaps the victory of the Seniors can be ascribed more to their preponderance of years than any superiority on their part. At any rate, it seems only natural to see more scraps around the desks of the lower classmen than around those of their seniors, because a younger person is naturally more careless than an older one.

Time will tell which of the classes has the most inborn neatness; every day a survey of the assembly will be taken, and it will be noted which section is the neatest. Could anything be more fair? No compulsion about cleaning-up-no nagging about recovering the vagrant piece of paper and refuse—no daily lectures about the virtue of cleanliness; only a weekly reminder that such and such a class has best observed the rule that "Cleanliness is next to godliness."

Come Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors! Don't let the Seniors beat you! If you don't, they will soon swell up so much in importance that it will be impossible to live in the same school building with them. Don't let them do t! And tell your next-desk neighbor to tell everyone else.

Physics student: "Wasted work goes off into space."

Harner: "Well, what's space?"

Student: "I don't exactly know how to define it but I have it in my head."

NORSE CLASSES HONOR INSTRUCTOR

Miss Stavig, Resigning Because Of Recent Illness; Entertained by Students

A party for Miss Stavig, who is resigning her position as instructor in the local high school at Christmas time, was given by the Norse classes last Tuesday evening. A Norwegian two course supper was served at eight o'clock, which was as follows: First course: mashed potatoes, lutefisk, lefse. Second course: Sanbakkelser, krumkaker, ice cream, coffee.

After supper an impromptu program was given and Miss Stavig was presented with a little token of esteem by the Norse I and II classes.

Due to circumstances the party had to be given on a school night and therefore had to be held at the Korstad residence, the Korstad family, Mr. and Mrs. Simley, and Miss Bauman being guests.

Several Changes Made in Basketball Rules for '23

The 1922-23 basket ball code introduces a new term. Heretofore all rule infractions have been called "fouls" either a technical foul or a personal foul. Now "Violations" must be added to the list.

"Violations" take the place of technical fouls, and following are five of the "violations":

1. Running with the ball.
2. Double or broken dribble.
3. Technical infraction of the jumping rule, i. e., failure to keep one hand in contact with the back until the ball has been tapped.
4. Kicking the ball; striking it with the fist.
5. Passing the ball to another while making a free trial for the goal without making a bona fide attempt for the basket.

The penalty for all these violations reads:

"The ball shall go to an opponent out of bounds, on the side at a point nearest the spot where the violation was committed." This change in rules helps to speed up the game. Formerly the game was slowed up considerably by trotting to the foul line to shoot fouls for all technical and personal fouls. Now, in the case of "Violations" the ball is thrown to the side and the play started again without perceptibly interfering with the progress of the game.

Game Tonight

Thief River High School meet Warren High on the local auditorium floor at 8:30 this evening. This is the second game of the season. Although our team lost their first game they do not intend to make this a repeater. A good turnout is expected as the city will not have a basket ball team this year. This should assure the High School squad a strong city support.

BASKTEERS LOSE TO GREENBUSH

Locals Defeated 21 to 27 in Contest Friday; Not Conference Game

Greenbush High School defeated Thief River Falls High School in a close thrilling game last Saturday at Greenbush.

Greenbush opened up at the beginning, and held out team for about three minutes; but the Lincolnites stepped out, and had the lead before the quarter ended. In the early part of the second period Thief River lost the margin, and was never able to regain it. The score stood 14 to 13 in Greenbush's favor at the end of the first half.

The third and fourth quarters were without especial incident, the opponents managing to keep a small lead until the final whistle.

The defeat of Thief River can clearly be ascribed to the large number of fouls called on them, which coupled with the remarkable shooting of free throws on the part of Greenbush, gave the latter eleven out of a total of twenty-seven points.

Greenbush is not in the basket ball conference, so the game has no effect on Lincoln's standing. The game was a distinct gain for our boys, who needed this preliminary tussle to get ready for the next big scrap—with Warren.

A Senior

(With due apologies to Spartacus)

"Ye call me cheese and ye do well to call me cheese, who for three long years has met in the high school every face of man or woman your teacher's agency could furnish and who never yet laughed in their faces. If there be one of all your number who says that ever in the assembly room or classroom I deserved a blue card, let him say it. If there be three of all your number dare face me with examinations so hard, let them do it if they dare.

And yet I say I was not always thus a stupid student, of still more stupid student body. My early life ran quiet as the girls, by which I sat, and when at noon we played Farmer in the Dell there was a girl, a childhood sweetheart who was my partner. We played the same games and we ate our simple lunch together.

THIEF RIVER HIGH SCHOOL WINS OVER RED LAKE FALLS IN DEBATE FRIDAY EVE

Judges Give Locals 2-1 Decision in Interesting Contest; Debators Discuss the Kansas Court of Adjudication for Adjusting Labor Troubles; 'The Debait' A La Ring Lardner

The Thief River Falls high school debating team won a signal victory over the Red Lake Falls high school team in a hotly contested debate at the Lincoln auditorium last Friday evening, Dec. 15, and as a result will continue in the race for the championship in the State Debating League. The next debate will undoubtedly be with the winner of the Warroad-Roseau debate, held the same evening as the clash here.

The contest was an exceedingly live and interesting one for high school debating teams. Both sides advanced strong; well organized arguments in a forceful manner, and there was a decided clash of opinion thruout. The Kansas Industrial Court proves to be a more eminant topic than most people realize, and the debaters certainly put forth the strongest arguments for and against it.

Thief River Falls, defending the negative, was represented by Herbert Johnson, Rose Costello, and Albert Stengelson. Jessie Higinbotham, Herman Hillebo, and Donovan Salley debated the affirmative for Red Lake Falls.

Superintendent Orreson of McIntosh, Judge Stanton of Bemidji and Superintendent Anderson of St. Hilaire judged the debate, and may be credited with absolute fairness in their decisions.

Read an account of a listener's impressions of the debate:

"The Debait"

"The Debait"

Well, friends, I am getting to become a regular high brow for being in attendance at the debait last Friday P. X. As a general rule I am not overly fond with debaits them not being my idear of a good time but this one sure knocked me for a ghoul. Now I am not sending myself flowers or anything but I could see 1st thing a block off them Red Lake Falsers hadn't got no more chants then a rabbit vs. our li'l squad.

Now, friends, I have not got the least profession of knowing nothing in regards to the Kansas Court of Industrial Arbitrashun, the which is what the row is about this annum, but from where I sat I could see said court is the bunk, and anyone who can not see that is not so very bright, including Red Lake Falls.

The 1st speaker on the affirmative side (from which I gather is meant "wrong side") was a cute little lade named Jessie Higinbotham who explained the K. C. so's even Mr. Rapacz could grasp it. But she sure didn't make no hit on Herbert the which after 2 bells had rang (like betwixt classes) sprang up and got real immortal about how Minnesota was sick with industrial ills, but the Kansas Court was not the proper perscription (which I gather he meant a old-fashioned 90 percenter would be more to the pt.) As to preventing strikes the old fake (the court-not Herbert) brang 'em on insted. Also said court is not so popular as the affirmative let on like it was in Kan., which was proven in the last 3 elecshuns. When Herman Hilleboe which was the 2nd wrong-side-outer came 4th I got to thinking poor kid you have got a fat chanst after what Herbert has said. But he smoothed it all over in noble fashun about how the K. C. was not perfecshun and was only to be used in ex. cases anyways. So when the bell tinkled we all clapped with great gusto. Rose had all the time been writing (letters Is'pose which is a hairy kind of a thing to do when she should ought to be having stage frite.) So I sure was dummed founded to have her get up on her 2 ft. and say what she said in regards to what a piffle the court is for not even removing the causes of strikes and to have the nerve to break the U. S. constitushun and not pay for damages restrained. The 3rd speaker on the affirmative had the goods though and I was sure enuff weakening when Albert got up and made out like the (the 3rd speaker on the affirmative I mean) had bats in his belfry when he sought instances in regards to coal and clothing which do not amount to nothing in Minn. the winters being that balmy. I had already gotten my mittens on when they started all over again and everybody smiled at me so sweet I did not have it in me to leave so stayed for the second show and got in on a piano recital by Pearl Weeks. The judges which consisted of Judge Stanton of Bemidji, Supt. Orreson of McIntosh, and Supt. Anderson of St. Hilaire, made it up amongst themself's the score was 2 to 1 vs. Red Lake Falls which made me feel so good I swallowed my gum.

The Sunset Hour

By Hilda Peterson

When the sun goes down in the evening
And shadows begin to fall,
There's a hush of deepest meaning
A sweet stillness over all.
As we linger and watch the sun
Shedding its last rays abroad,
Come thoughts of tender beauty,
Beauty which is God.
Then life with all its meaning
Comes to us in the calm;
Life's beauty touches our souls
As a sweet healing balm.
Slowly the sun is sinking,
Shadows quickly fall,
Sleep is gently calling,
Deep darkness is over all.

FARM BLOC LEADER OUTLINES PROGRAM

Adequate Credits and Lower Freight Rates Senate Body's Plan

Adequate credit facilities for farmers and stockmen and reduced rates are prominent planks in the platform on which the Senate Agricultural Bloc will stand, according to Arthur Capper, leader.

"We propose," he said, "to complete the program so well started in the farming industry's behalf. We propose to put through a complete rural credit plan to provide farmers and stockmen with adequate credit facilities. We hope to increase the limit of loans that can be made by the federal land banks and we expect to bring about reduced freight rates. Our program, in addition, includes:

"Repeal of Section 15-A and other objectionable provisions of the Cummins-Esch Act.

"A better system of marketing.

"Placing development of the Muscle Shoals project in the hands of Ford.

"Passage of a Truth-in-Fabric bill.

"A constitutional amendment prohibiting tax-exempt securities.

"Further economies in the administration of government.

"Make undisturbed surpluses and stock dividends pay their share toward the maintenance of government.

"Do something to promote Europeans recovery and the restoration of a foreign market for the surplus products of our farms and factories."

The Senate Agricultural Bloc, formed two years ago in the Washington offices of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is responsible for practically all of the constructive legislation passed to aid farmers during the last two years.

The Spirit of Service

AS the old year passes into history and men take stock of their achievements and of their weaknesses, there is stressed that spirit of service which is the soul of business

It is the Christmas spirit materialized, the spirit of Kindness, Justice, Equity and Fair Dealing, the spirit which gives body to the Golden Rule.

The spirit of service is ever present in the policies of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) permeating every phase of its activities.

The spirit of service is a principle which radiates naturally from the management and through every fibre and unit of the organization. Such a spirit is essential in a big business if the work it is designed to do be comprehensive in its scope.

It provides proper compensation for men and women who have grown old in the service.

It provides pleasant working conditions for employes

It embraces a plan whereby employes may become partners in the business, insuring a comfortable feeling of independence, thereby supplanting worry with peace of mind.

It provides a channel through which the worker in the humblest position may bring his grievance, if he has one, to the attention of the management and be sure of consideration

These four manifestations of the Standard Oil spirit of service reflect themselves directly in developing contented employes, who work with an enthusiasm impossible to those who labor under the lash.

The material benefits of this daily application of the Christmas spirit are mirrored to a superlative degree in the superior service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) through its harmonious, happy, contented family of 27,000 employees is able to render to 30 million people in 10 Middle Western States.

It is this spirit of service animating the entire organization which has enabled the Directors to render so praiseworthy an accounting of their stewardship to the 26,768 stockholders, not one of whom owns as much as 10 per cent of the total.

MARKETING FIRST IN BUREAU'S PLAN

National Convention Outlines Work to be Followed by Movement During Coming Year

Energetic prosecution of a nation-wide co-operative marketing program will be the watch word in Farm Bureau movement in 1923. This was determined at the annual convention held at Chicago, Dec. 11 to 14. O. E. Bradfute was unanimously elected president after J. H. Howard, who had held that office since the national organization was formed three years ago, refused to permit his name to be placed before the convention.

J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation was elected a member of the national executive committee. With him serving from the Mid-west states will be Howard Leonard of Illinois and W. H. Settle of Indiana. There are nine from other sections on the board. W. H. Walker of California was named vice president.

Mr. Bradfute has been president of the Ohio federation for several years and has been a moving spirit behind the community marketing movement in that state, where a large number of farmer-owned selling agencies have been organized under Farm Bureau leadership.

When the convention opened, there were two schools of thought; one which held that marketing should be the major theme of the organization in the future, as in the past, and the other that educational and research activities sholud be pressed. Before the convention was two days old, the marketing men were far in the majority and soon passed resolutions which placed the farm bureau more than ever at the head of the co-operative selling effort in this country.

The convention, time and again, expressed itself as determined to obtain relief for farmers, who find themselves confronted with the fact that their dollars worth are only 62 cents, while those of other industries are worth $1.54.

Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, suggested to the convention the formation of a nation-wide banking structure, patterned after the Federal Reserve system, but designed to primarily serve agriculture, that would give adequate service to farmers.

The convention pledged itself to help editors obtain relief from the burden imposed on them by the present excessive second class postage rates.

Continuation of the war on the common rust bearing barberry, the European corn borer and bovine tuberculosis was urged.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, told the delegates that only better marketing would save the thousands of good farmers, farming good land as well as they could, who have been unable to make both ends meet.

Official reports showed that while the organization has been going thru the settling process during the last year, its cash receipts had been 20 per cent more than in 1921.

During the convention, women delegates held several sessions, at which home economics problems were considered.

The convention, admittedly the most important gathering of farmers in the history of the Farm Bureau, served to clarify the atmosphere of conflicting opinions as to remedies that should be applied to the agricultural situation and outlined an aggressive campaign to be followed in 1923.

Good Roads Are Worth Their Cost

The highway is not simply a road. It is not simply a surface.

It is the assurance of the civilizing influence of better communication between sections.

It is a silent but persistent factor for the reduction of living costs.

It is a humble, but powerful foe of ignorance, for the reason that it makes easily accessible our splendid system of public schools to the people in rural districts.

It is the safeguard of our food supply. It is a guarantee to the public against the prostrating influence of industrial upheaval and interruption to distribution therefrom.

It is the popular open-air theater of enjoyment for the family.

It is the text book of nature to our people.

It is the connecting link between the home and the factory.

It is the call to the open air; the great physician who makes no charge for his services.

The people who are opposed to good roads oppose them for the same reason that some people oppose our great public school system; they are not informed.

KOTA WHEAT TRIALS SHOW FINE RESULTS

Data Furnished by Experiment Stations Indicates Good Yield and Fine Quality

Considerable interest is being shown in Kota wheat. Requests have come to the Northwest Station, Crookston, for information regarding this wheat. Prof. R. S. Runham, agronomist at Crookston, has prepared the following statement regarding this variety which will be of interest to our readers.

Kota is a common wheat resembling Preston introduced into North Dakota from Russia in 1903. The discovery of its resistance to rust was first publicly announced in 1919. Extensive investigations of this wheat have been carried on in North Dakota since that time. It was introduced into the variety trials at the Northwest Experiment station the following year, 1920.

Results in Kota Trials

The following results have been obtained at the Northwest Experiment station:

Year	Yield per acre bu. Marquis	Kota
1920	17.4	16.0
1921	15.1	10.1
1922	17.4	20.2
Average	16.6	15.4

In 1920 and 1921 the straw of Kota was very weak and subject to lodging. In 1922 the straw was considerably weaker than that of Marquis but no lodging occurred. Both Marquis and Kota were seeded at the rate of 6 pecks per acre and were planted on the same day. Kota ripened 4 days earlier than Marquis. Observations at this station show Kota to be the most resistent to the black stem rust of any common spring wheat. It becomes infected but the pustules do not develop to the size that cause serious injury.

Reports from the North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station state that: 1. "In 19 comparative trials in North Dakota for periods of from one to five years and for localities Kota has outyielded Marquis 2.7 bushels per acre."

2. "Kota was superior to Marquis in 13 of these comparisons, the average increase being 4.6 bushels per acre."

3. "Marquis was superior in the 6 remaining comparisons, four of which occurred in 1921, by 1.6 bushels per acre."

Milling and Baking Tests

The present attitude of the millers toward Kota varies since they have not had opportunity to test it on a commercial scale. Results of North Dakota milling tests show: 1. A superiority of Kota in weight per bushel. (The test weight per bushel of the 1922 crop at the Northwest Station was 61.5 pounds for Kota and 59 pounds for Marquis). 2. In five out of six samples, a larger gluten content. 3. A larger loaf volume.

Objectionable features of the wheat brought out in the tests are its yellow colored flour and its coarser texture when made into bread. At present the flour trade demands a white flour such as is produced from Marquis. Should Kota become largely grown, the attitude of the flour trade towards color would have to be changed or bleaching (which is forbidden in some states) would have to be resorted to. To change the preference of the market for white flour might require considerable time and energy.

The Kota Seed Wheat Growers, Inc.

This organization, composed of Kota Wheat growers, is offering Kota seed wheat in limited quantities at $6.75 per bushel. All purchasers must enter into contract to dispose of all their Kota crop (except a reservation of seed for their own purpose), through this organization for a term of five years. All wheat will be pooled and sold at the highest price obtainable. Each purchaser becomes a member through the purchase of this seed and the payment of $1.00. He will receive for his crop the price obtained for his grade of wheat less the cost of maintaining the association, transporting, handling, cleaning, grading and selling and 10 per cent for advertising expenses. No price is guaranteed by the organization; it will depend upon the demand for the wheat next year which cannot be foretold. Since the wheat is to be sold as seed, it must meet the requirements of seed, i. e; freedom from dirt and weed seeds and admixture of other wheats or grains.

Legion Buddies Greeted By Department Commander

Comrades of the American Legion of Minnesota:

Your Department Commander takes this opportunity to express in words that are as old as the hills, but in words that will never become trite or colorless: "A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU, ONE AND ALL"—to the "whole gang."

Christmas time is one season of the year when the souls of men shine out as radiant stars in the sky above and the whole wide world is in tune with the magic chord of "PEACE ON EARTH! GOOD WILL TO MEN!" Though we may go on our way, for three hundred and sixty-four days of the year a little inclined toward selfishness, intolerance and taking things for granted, Christmas season is one period when every regular fellow measures up to the very highest standard and exemplifies to the very highest degree the spirit of unselfishness and tolerance.

Today, with the rest of the nations in a turmoil, with other nations in the throes of hunger, strife, bitterness, dissension and war—reaping the penalty of centuries of oppression, intolerance and the spirit of destructiveness and secret diplomacy—today every loyal American as he walks the city streets or treads the country paths of our beloved country and breathes the fresh, free air of America realizes that he is living indeed in a land blessed by the Creator with countless blessings—and "THANKS GOD that he is alive in this wonderful America of our!

As we go on our separate ways on this glad Christmas morning, with hearts brimful of love toward our fellowmen, let us remember especially the sick and disabled in our hospitals. The posts at some distance away from the hospitals can at least send a message of good cheer. The buddies in the twin cities will of course visit the hospitals in company with the guardian angels of our disabled comrades, the American Legion Auxiliary. Many posts are sponsoring municipal Christmas tree celebrations for Dec. 23, at which not a single kid will be overlooked. This is real service, rich in dividends that you will hoard for all days in the treasure chest of memory. Again wishing you all a Merry Christmas, I am,

Sincerely yours,
Gerald V. Barron,
Department Commander.

MASS MEETING IS CALLED FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

Serious Light and Power Situation in City Demands Immediate Attention

Prospect of City Buying And Developing Dam Will Be One of Matters Discussed

Important That All Citizens Interested Meet at Commercial Club Rooms at 7:30

A mass meeting of the citizens has been called for next Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Commercial club rooms. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the light and power situation and get the opinion of the citizens as to the best method to adopt to remedy a serious situation.

Power Plants Overloaded

For some time past the city has been almost entirely dependent on the auxiliary power plant for its light and power. This is due largely to the low stage of the water in the river and the poor condition of the dam, which has rendered the water power plant practically useless. One of the auxiliary engines is run during the day and the other at night. With this condition existing the plant is carrying a full load and should anything happen to the engines in the auxiliary plant the city would be without light or power.

Should City Buy Dam

One of the important matters to be considered at this time is whether the city should undertake the purchase of the dam and by reconstructing it develop the water power to the maximum possibility. Another angle of the situation would be the encouragement of some of the large water power companies to come in here and develop the property. It is, in the opinion of many citizens, a matter that cannot be delayed any longer and the situation must be faced and a logical course of action decided on.

Large Atendance Desired

It is important that this meeting be well attended and all who have the best interests of the city at heart are urged to be present. By a thorough public discussion it is likely that some feasible plan of action may be decided upon.

Three Arrested And Fined For Disorderly Conduct

Henry Myers, Otto Ackerman and R. C. Kittleson paid fines of $10 each in municipal court Monday, having been placed under arrest for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. They were charged with having engaged in a fight Saturday evening on the corner of First street and LaBree avenue, being quite intoxicated. They pleaded guilty when brought before Judge Tarrant and paid their fines.

East Grand Forks Store Looted of $700 In Cash

Thieves, thought to be at least three in number, entered the Howe & Hagen cigar store in East Grand Forks early Sunday morning and robbed the place of about $700 in cash, checks and gold coins, taken from a punch board.

No clue has been found that would lead to the identity of the robbers, recording to the police

The robbery was discovered Sunday morning when Jalmer Howe, one of the owners of the cigar store, opened up for the day. He notified the police and Patrolman Routley went to the scene.

An examination showed that entrance had been gained through a rear door. A rusty auger had been used to bore a circle of holes, thus letting a section of the panel drop out. The thieves reached through this opening and unlocked the door from the inside.

The safe door had been left unlocked, only the inner door being secured. This was broken open.

Examination For Postmaster

This examination is held under the President's Order of May 10, 1921, and not under the civil service act and rules.

Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated upon their education and training, business experience and fitness.

Apply to the secretary of the board of civil service examiners at the post office in this city or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., for application Form 2241, and Form 2213 containing definite information in regard to the examination.

Applications must be properly executed on Form 2241, and filed with the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., prior to the hour of closing business on the date specified in Form 2213.

Government Insurance Has Many Benefits

Persons who were in the military or naval service during the World war may obtain death and disability insurance from the government, up to the amount they carried in the service, maximum to nthousand dollars.

Some of the benefits of government insurance are: 1. War insurance may be converted into parmanent standard forms of government insurance. 2. No charge is made in the premium for total disability benefit in the policy. 3. No limit is made as to old age in case of a disability. 4. No restrictions as to residence, travel, occupation, military and naval service. 5. Dividends are accumulated through excess interest earnings, over three and one half (3½%) plus any mortality savings, and paid to all those whose insurance has been in force more than one year.

In case of illness, premiums may be waived by insured until recovered, if proper application for same is made. 7. No matter what a man's disability may be, or its degree, provided it is due to his military service and he has not been declared a permanent total, he will be accepted, on payment of all back payments due from date of lapse, plus five per cent interest, compounded annually on each premium date. 8. After four years of premium payments on a twenty year endowment, the extended insurance value would take care of all payments of premiums for the remaining sixteen years, BUT, by so doing, the insured wolud draw only the face value of his policy.

ANNA QUALE PASSES AWAY AT HOME HERE SATURDAY MORNING

Death Came As Relief Following Several Months of Intense Suffering

The people of Thief River Falls and all who knew Miss Anna Quale, deeply mourn her death which occurred at the home of her mother in this city Saturday morning at 2:45 o'clock. Although her demise was not altogether unexpected, it came as a distinct shock to her many friends. Miss Quale, who was one of the most esteemed ladies of this city, became ill last summer with what proved to be cancer. Last fall she went to Warren where she was operated on Nov. 6 but failed to recover her health, her condition gradually declining after she returned to the home of her mother in this city shortly after Thanksgiving. The end came quietly and peacefully indicative of the splendid life she had led.

Miss Anna Juline Quale was born May 16, 1881 at Colton, S. D. She was a graduate of Yankton college, Yankton, S. D. and taught school for some time, being principal of the Oneida high school for several years. She spent three years in Los Angeles, Cal., coming to Thief River Falls in 1916 and was employed as secretary in the office of Supt. W. A. Barnard until her departure for Warren. Her work was always of the highest order and she had the distinction of being held in high esteem and adored by all who came in contact with her.

At the time of her death Miss Quale was worthy matron of the local chapter of the Eastern Star and for the past three years she was secretary of the Girls' Community club. Shortly before her demise she was presented with a Worthy Matron pin from the Eastern Stars as a token of the esteem in which she was held by the members. She was very active in all social welfare, church and community work, never failing to do her share in all worthy activities.

Deceased leaves to mourn her loss, her mother, Mrs. T. T. Quale, and three brothers, Theodore and Fred of this city, and Nels T. Quale of Fort Pierre, S. D.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran church, Rev. T. E. Sweger officiating at the obsequies. A large number of friends were present to show their last respects and many floral offerings were made by organizations and individuals of the city. The following acted as pall bearers here: Ed. Korstad, E. P. Brevig, E. M. Bennes, J. M. Bishop, H. C. Durrin and L. E. Gilhausen. The remains were taken to Colton to be interred beside the father and brother. Her mother and surviving brothers accompanied the corpse to its last resting place.

Brown, Connected With Gummer Case, Arrested

Andy Brown held last fall together with William Gummer, the latter of whom is now serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary, for the murder of Marie Wick, of Grygla, is spending another Christmas in the Cass county jail. Last year he was in the jail awaiting trial, which was later dismissed. Friday Brown was arrested charged with bootlegging. He was heard before Justice Miller Saturday and his hearing postponed until Sunday.

Members of the sheriff's office who made the arrest, claim that when arrested Brown attempted to tear up all letters and currency in his pockets and that he still had currency, marked by them.

Confectionery Reopened

POLICE ARREST TWO IN RAID ON VIGEN'S PLACE

Proprietor Released on $2000 Bond Until February Term of District Court

Officers Secure Evidence And Get Sworn Statement of Man Who Bought Drinks

Second Time Place Has Been in Arms of the Law in Past Two Months

As the result of a raid made by Night Patrolman A. D. Ralston and Chief of Police E. O. Erickson, Bennie Vigen was placed under arrest Sunday night on the charge of having intoxicating liquor in his possession. He was placed in the city jail where he remained until the following morning when he was released on a $1000 bond.

Waived Examination

On appearing before Judge N. W. Tarrant Wednesday morning Vigen waived examination and was released under a bond of $2000 to guarantee his appearance at the February term of the district court. Ole Ystesund, Vigen's bartender, was also arrested on the charge of selling intoxicating liquor. He was released until the next term of court on a $500 bond.

Drunk Causes Arrest

The raid and arrest of Vigen and his bartender came about through Ole Henely of Plummer. Henely, according to his sworn statement, came here Saturday evening to do some shopping. He became intoxicated and was placed under arrest when he attempted to get on a train at the Soo station. At the jail he made the following statement to Mayor Bratrud and Patrolman Ralston:

Ole Henely, being first duty sworn, deposes and says that I live in the village of Plummer, Minn. That on the 23rd day of December I came to Thief River Falls about 8:30 p. m.; that I went into the business place of Ben Vigen and there asked for a drink; that I was given intoxicating liquor and became drunk from the same; that I paid for each drink 30 or 35 cents; that I am making this statement of my own free will.

OLE HENELY.

In the presence of A. D. Ralston and N. W. Tarrant.

Officers Get Evidence

The raid of the Vigen establishment resulted in the officers securing a considerable quantity of "moon" all of which is now in the custody of Judge Tarant. This is the second time Vigen has been arrested for this offense in the last two months.

Gustavus Adolphus Announce School Oratorical Contest

Bulletin board posters have been received at the local high school from Gustavus Adolphus college announcing that they will foster an oratorical contest open only to high school students of this state. The prizes for the contest will be a quart size loving cup, fourteen inches high for the first prize; a pint size loving cup ten inches high for the second prize; and a string silver medal for the third prize. Over 300 high schools will compete for the coveted prizes.

According to the rules the state is divided into eight districts and an elimination contest will be held in each district. From here the winners will go to St. Peter to compete in the state contest which will be held on April 14, 1923, when the prizes will be awarded.

The contestants will construct their own orations which will add greatly to the interest of the contest. In this respect the St. Peter college has introduced a new departure which has a distinct advantage over any similar contest ever held in the state. The rules however encourage the student to obtain suggestions and advice in preparing his oration.

BUREAUS ORGANIZE MARKETS DIVISION

American Federation to Prosecute Vigorously Farmer Sales Program

A division of markets to prosecute a vigorous co-operative marketing program has been authorized by directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation. This step was taken at the first meeting of the new board, following the recent annual convention, which adopted a basic marketing policy, which placed the farm bureau actively at the head of the co-operative marketing movement in this country.

The new division will stimulate extension of farmer-owned marketing and will aim to bring about unity and co-ordination of efforts. It will be in charge of a director, yet to be selected, who will be a man of national prominence with outstanding qualifications.

At the organization meeting of the new board, of which J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is a member, steps to reduce overhead at the national office were taken. The office of treasurer, vacated by the resignation of Charles Gunnels, was consolidated with that of secretary. J. W. Coverdale was reelected secretary, as was Samuel Guard, director of the Department of Information. Salary items were reduced in several instances.

"The American Farm Bureau Federation is well started on its fifth year," said Mr. Reed on his return from the meeting. "I was pleased with the manner in which O. E. Bradfute, new president, took hold of the work. Farmers may rest assured that the administration of the organization will continue to have foremost in mind welfare of the individual producer. Our new leaders, trained in Farm Bureau work, will keep the movement, as it is, the greatest farm organization."

Invitations will not be sent to each individual graduate but all alumni are expected to be present as members of the association. The general invitation also includes the members of this year's senior class.

It is expected that every Lincoln high school graduate in Thief River Falls at least, will be on deck at the Sons of Norway hall Wednesday evening, the event to commence at 8 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM DEFEATS WARREN IN BASKETBALL GAME

First Conference Game on Local Floor Results in Close Score of 10 to 12

The local high school basketball quint defeated the Warren representatives at the auditorium at a game played last Friday evening, the final score being 10 to 12. It was the first conference contest of the season and was well played considering the fact that it is only the beginning of the season. The game was marked by many errors, several fouls being called on both teams, but Referee Tandberg from the Middle River school succeeded in keeping it a clean and fair game throughout.

Thief River Falls made four goals and four free throws while Warren put the ball through the loop five times, all of which were field baskets. The baskets made by the locals were distributed as follows: Herron 1, Sether 1, LaBree 1, C. Sorenson 1 field basket and four free throws. Warren scored only once during the first half and at no time were they ahead of the locals. Three of the opposition's baskets were made in succession during the third quarter and it almost looked as though the locals might be defeated but by tightening up and everyone playing a good brand of basketball they were able to hold them down.

Coach MacFarlane's men will meet Warren on their home floor at a later date.

This evening the high school five meets the all-stars alumni pickup in a hot contest on the auditorium floor. McGinn, a star performer for St. Thomas college, will be in the lineup and also served others of well known basketball fame in Thief River Falls.

The most important of these to this section of the state is the rural credits bill.

Special Writer For Times

The progress of the legislature on the rural credits bill, as well as other maters, will be followed by the people of this section with great interest and for this reason The Times has made arrangements for a weekly report direct from the state capital. This will be prepared by a writer who will be in attendance at all sessions and will be written from an unbiased viewpoint, free from any political prejudice. The record of the senator and representatives from the district will be followed closely and readers of The Times will be kept informed each week as to their allignment on all important measures.

An outline of the more important matters to come up at this session as presented by Charles B. Cheney, political editor for the Minneapolis Journal, is particularly interesting. It is as follows:

With the opening of the 1923 legislative session only one week off members-elect from country districts are beginning to arrive in the twin cities today to make hotel reservations and get ready for the business of the winter. In the advance guard are members who have ideas they are anxious to put over in the form of bills. They want to look up their subjects and get bills prepared for early introduction.

Interesting contents are looked for this winter on several important state matters. Subjects that will lead in the attention of the members, it was agreed today, include:

Highway legislation, with proposals for a $20,000,000 bond issue for hardsurfaced roads, for revision of the motor vehicle tax law, for a gasoline tax, and for a stateowned cement plant

Rural credits legislation, featured by a bill making the new provision of the state constitution effective, under which the state will issue bonds and lend the money on farm lands. Other bills will provide for negotiable loans on grain in country elevators and on livestock

Several Tax Bills Included

Tax bills, including a state income tax measure, a county assessor bill, new tonnage tax measures and a royalty tax on iron ore, also partial exemption of personal property and residences from taxation.

Street railway legislation, with proposals to repeal the 1921 act and others to amend it to meet various objections.

Election measures, among them an effort to repeal the 1921 preprimary convention law.

State bank guaranty bills, which passed the house two years ago but lost in the senate.

Educational bills, mainly the work of interim committees, providing better support for rural schools and increased superintendence.

Bills to curb the increase in crimes of violence, including some form of centralized peace officers' organization, and bills to make conviction of criminals more speedy and certain.

High Dam Controversy

The high dam controversy between the twin cities, which involves proposed legislation for public control of water power.

State insurance bills, including those attacking the industrial commission law of 1921. There will be a contest over state insurance of its own buildings, whether

Many Farm Organizations Plan Rallies at University

Among the score of farm organizations which will hold their annual meetings at University Farm during Farmers' and Homemakers' Short Course week, Jan. 1 to 6, is the Minnesota Federation of Farmers' Clubs which has selected Friday forenoon, January 5, for its annual session. Representatives of farm bureau units are invited by the call, just issued by R. E. Olmstead, farmers' club specialist, to take part in the proceedings. A. D. Wilson is president of the club federation and will give the opening address. Other speakers will be F. W. Peck, director of agricultural extension; W. A. Peters, Wadena county agent; Samuel Hammerbeck of Little Falls, former president of the federation; Paul Johnson, Martin county agent; E. V. Ripley, leading farmer of Hubbard county, and Mr. Olmstead.

Dairy husbandry division men of the university have assisted in preparing a program for the annual conference of creamery managers and operators which will be held in the dairy hall at University Farm Thursday, Jan. 4. Discussion will center upon the composition of butter and the importance of its control, a subject which will be presented by Prof. J. R. Keithley of the university; and the importance of creamery accounting in Minnesota, which is to be presented by Emil G. Johnson of the Minnesota Creameries' association.

E. A. Hanson, dairy extension specialist of the university, gives notice that a special conference for cow testers of the state will be held at University Farm Tuesday, January 2. How to interest the indifferent member will be the subject of a general discussion. Prof. A. B. Rayburn of the university will speak on "Essential Factors in Successful Association Supervision."

The greatest short course ever given for farmers and homemakers in Minnesota is assured. Class room work will be carried on in all leading phases of practical farming. General mass meetings, state farm bureau federation meeting, evening entertainments, suppers, and socials will serve to make up a busy week of solid instruction and entertainment for farm and town visitors.

CHANGES IN SCHOOL TAXES ARE ASKED BY STATE EDUCATOR

Prof. F. Swift Would Substitute County For District As Unit in Financing

Abandonment of the school district as the basis of taxation for supporting elementary and secondary schools in Minnesota and substitution of the county as the unit in financing is strongly recommended by Prof. Fletcher H. Swift, college of education, University of Minnesota, in a volume on school financing in California and Colorado which he has just completed.

By making such a change, he writes, Minnesota would do more to advance the cause of education than could be accomplished by any other one step.

Professor Swift's book is one of four which he has already for publication, dealing with school finances in the four major sections of the United States, the West, the South, the Northwest, and the East. According to Dr. L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, that institution is becoming a national center for the study of school finance as a result of Professor Swift's work.

"A comparison of California and Minnesota shows the former state to have a great advantage over Minnesota in raising school money," said Professor Swift. California determines in advance the amount of money elementary and secondary schools will need, and provides that sum. Minnesota, on the other hand, takes a certain sum of money and divides it as best she can. By the Minnesota method one cannot tell whether the sum is going to meet the requirements or not. Minnesota school aid, for example, goes to the various districts on the basis of the number of children who attend for at least 40 days of the school year. California on the other hand knows what each school district will get from the state and how much from the county. The state must provide $700 a year for each elementary school teacher and the county must provide an equal sum.

"Minnesota, furthermore, allows the school district to raise money and divide it among the schools in any way those in authority see fit. The county must produce $60 for every pupil in average daily attendance and the state must match this with an additional $30"

Professor Swift recommended also adoption by Minnesota of the California system of levying a uniform high school tax on all districts that do not support a high school, and distributing this money to pay tuition of students from these districts when they go elsewhere to attend a high school.

Newspaper Men Will Convene at Red Lake Falls

The Northern Minnesota Editorial Association will hold its annual meeting at Red Lake Falls, January 26-27, according to an announcement made by A. L. LaFreniere, president of the association and editor of the Grand Rapids Independent. Speakers of state and national reputation will take part in the deliberations.

Subjects to be discussed will deal largely with problems which daily confront the publishers of the press.

A. G. Rutledge is secretary of the association. Other officers are: E. H. Denu, Bemidji Pioneer, vice president; Rudolph Lee, Long Prairie Leader, J. C. Morrison, Morris Tribune, and E. L. Peterson, Pelican Rapids Press, compose the executive committe.

Poultry By the Carload

The Thief River Falls Times last week carried an advertisement of a dealer who was buying dressed poultry so that he could ship a full carload by a certain time.

The incident made the writer think that the poultry industry in that section must be a considerable factor in the farm income, and wonder if such a source of income could not be secured from poultry in this section. One great obstacle to starting a poultry industry on a large scale here, however, rests in the fact that farmers hereabouts have so long been accustomed to get the excellent prices which the local market affords that they frown on taking the market price offered by dealers or others buying poultry. However, the writer thinks that it would be better in the words of the merchant, to adopt the policy of making more money on smaller profits by increasing the volume of sales.

When poultry goes out of this section in carload lots, then the farmers raising poultry, will commence to make money.—Grand Rapids Independent.

COUNTY FAIR ASSN. RECEIVES PREMIUM MONEY FROM STATE

Treasurer Receives Check For $1377 Which is 90 Per Cent of Amount Coming

Minnesota is this week reimbursing 97 county and district agricultural societies for the money spent by them in premiums during 1922. The amount being paid is $140,104.38, of which Pennington County Agricultural Society receives $1377.45.

Warrants are being sent by the State Auditor to the treasurers of the societies in 85 of the 86 Minnesota counties. Washington county did not hold a fair during the year and therefore does not participate in the distribution.

Several years ago the legislature decided that agricultural associations which had done so much to develop and encourage the best in agriculture, should be given state aid. Comparatively small amounts were set aside for the purpose but the aid has been increased until the 1921 session appropriated $140,000.00 for the purpose, providing a maximum payment of $1700.00 to any society.

The law provides that certain specified organizations which have an annual membership of twenty-five or more, hold fairs on enclosed grounds, to which a fixed charge of admission is made, and which have paid premiums to exhibitors, shall be entitled to receive not to exceed $1700.00 from the state, but in case the amount must be divided pro-rata, to receive state aid based on a premium payment of $1700.00.

The reports from each society or association must be filed with the State Auditor before December 1st, and then he apportions the aid to the various societies.

This year a total of $196,926.00 was paid in premiums by the societies entitled to state aid. With an appropriation of $140,000.00 and a balance of $104.38, the state is reimbursing the societies to the extent of 90% of the payments which the societies themselves made, or the statutory $1700.00 maximum.

Under the operation of the statute the maximum amount received by any society this year is $1530.00.

Young Man Loses Left Eye in Serious Accident

Henry Sorenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Swan Sorenson, who reside near Thief River Falls, was the unfortunate victim of an accident last Saturday morning that cost him the loss of one eye.

The young man was working with an axe and while so doing a splinter flew up into his eye and penetrated the eyeball, with the result that attempts to save the eye were of no avails. He will lose completely the sight of the left eye, and although the right eye is also affected, it is expected that it will not be permanently injured. The victim of the accident was brought immediatey to the Swedenburg hospital clinic where he was given medical attention.

Red River Drainage Advocated by Farmer

By Bj. Bjornaraa

I have personally read very carefully the Red Lake project report with A. F. Meyer's statement. I do not see how any report could be more fair and complete. No one has ventured to question its accuracy. Mr. Meyer is an authority on hydraulic engineering problems. He represents Minnesota on the tri-state flood control problem affecting the two Dakotas and this state. He appeared for the city council of St. Paul against the water power trust in the high-dam case and at Madison recently for Wisconsin drainage commission against the Northern States Power Company. His honesty and integrity, as well as of the board members, is unquestioned.

My observations and study lead me to make the following suggestions in the interest of getting at all the facts:

1. Much has been said about War Department document No. 61. This survey is necessarily incomplete as it is based on very meager information. Engineer Dugan himself explained this in conversation we had together, that he lacked time to make a detailed examination.

2. The attitude of Indian Bureau has always been favorable to the Red Lake project as thus only can the Indian lands be drained and later alloted, which I know from personal knowledge is what the Red Lake band wants. Lateral ditches will be provided after the Red Lake river outlet is completed. Nat Head personally assured several, whom I have taken pains to see regarding this matter, that the Indians did not appear as objectors.

3. From personal knowledge I know that many both in Thief River Falls and in the townships included signed the petition against the project either without knowing anything about the matter or because they had been misled into believing that the estimated benefits were their assessment. It is a fact brought out at the hearing that the estimated cost is only 28% of the estimated benefits. The statement by the chairman of the board in last week's issue explained this. That is, by the way, a full, clear, honest, above-board statement that is convincing to anyone who wishes to know the facts.

4. I have gone to some trouble in looking into the water power benefits. At first, I frankly admit, I thought the war department report could be accepted as the basis for paying for the work. I realized, however, that this report was in error in one place in estimating the area of lands benefited, both inside and outside the Indian reservation, as the War Department report recommends that the white settler's lands should be assessed approximately the same total amount as the Indian lands. The viewers' report presented by the drainage board shows 5.7 of the cost against the Indian lands and 2.7 of the cost against the white settlers' lands. This is in accord with my observation and judgment and is a fair and equitable division based on the actual benefit. What any land owner can object to in this division of costs is more than I can understand.

5. Now regarding the water powers. The federal power commission rule which was made recently, states definitely that the water powers shall pay to the specified owners of the improvements (in this case this is the Red Lake Drainage district) "for maintenance, interest and depreciation," a sum annually for water used to be applied during a 50 year term towards paying the cost of the improvements, and forever after paying for maintenance and repairs.

A federal law backing up the state law, under which the district was organized, in turn backing up the drainage board, is definite assurance that the drainage board has power to collect rentals annually for water used by the power plants down river. They are, in fact, compelled to do so. The more power plants there are the more money will be paid to the district, thereby reducing automatically the amounts that will be paid by the land owners. This is not the thin promise that the opposition would have you believe. It is federal and state law. The value of the water will be determined annually at a court hearing where if it is shown that the board is negligent in any way, their decision will be corrected.

6. A word about assessing the water powers. Much more money will come through the rentals. In the first place, in my judgment, no better argument against lump sum assessments against existing water powers can be found than the fact that the Federal Government has not attempted any such assessment.

The more consideration I have given to this subject, the more convinced I have become that annual rentals constitute the only feasible means of assessing water power benefits.

7. At the risk of making this statement too long, I just want to add one more idea. I have taken pains to get this information since the hearing held here week before last. It refers to the use of the increased flow of water during fall and winter, therefore, is the property of the district (these means the land-owners who are assessed) and which is to be sold.

Anyone of our city officials will tell you that the city of Thief River Falls is using coal now, when if water was available it could use water. The amount paid for the water would go to the drainage district.

I have a letter from Grand Forks which goes into detail regarding their steam plants. At the present time the two power plants near Crookston which are connected up to the steam plants both at Crookston and Grand Forks furnish not more than one-fifth to one-eigth of the total demand for electric power in Grand Forks. The balance is supplied by power from the coal bin.

The power plant at Grand Forks burns annually about 18,000 tons of coal. About 8,000 tons would be used even if water was available to heat the business section through the central steam-heating system. I quote, "But for the power derived from some ten to twelve thousand tons of coal per year, electric current received over the wire from water power plants on the Red Lake River would be equally satisfactory, if said plants had such additional power to sell." The cost of 10,000 tons of lignite coal can easily be figured. If put in another way, I am informed by a reliable party, "that if the two water-power plants at Crookston should be able to double their annual output, Grand Forks could nearly or quite consume the entire excess." The estimate of its value is between $15,000 and $45,000 per year.

The demand for power will be considerably increased when the line to Fargo is completed as well as other lines under construction or planned.

This is conclusive evidence that the district will be able to dispose of the surplus water and pay from the proceeds at least one-half of the cost of the entire project within 30 years.

8. If 50-year bonds can be issued covering one-half of the cost of the improvement, then one-half the cost may fairly be assessed against water powers and will be more than paid out of annual rentals within the 50 year term. Legislation providing that this be done is favored by the drainage board. The item of maintenance sholud not be slighted. The power companies will be compelled to pay the maintenance cost indefinitely in addition to their share of the original cost. If maintenance amounts to $5,000 a year, that sum is 5% on an investment of $100,000.

Come, let us be fair in this matter. The drainage of these lands is needed. All admit that the drainage board has presented a workable plan wherein at least one-half will be paid by power companies. The board is backed by the federal law in their demand upon the power companies. The white settlers' lands will pay only 14½% and the Indian lands 35½% of the total cost, which is one-half of the assessment. This is fair and equitable to all.

In 1920 the city council, all the members of Pennington county board and nearly 50 farmers from the area flooded by the Red Lake River presented a petition to the drainage board favoring this project. This petition mentioned a far less equitable division of costs than is provided in the case now pending. Why this change of front? The improvement is as much needed now as then.

Attorney Brown Takes Issue With Advocates

By W. J. Brown

Editor of the Times,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

I do not wish to remain silent and therefore appear to agree with the communication of Consulting Engineer A. F. Meyer regarding the Red Lake Drainage Project contained in the issue of your paper of date December 21, 1922. After reading the statement of Consulting Engineer Meyer it would appear that Mr. Meyer is not only consulting engineer in this project but that he is the lawyer guiding the proceeding and the court to enforce the act. If, however, Mr. Meyer has no greater knowledge of engineering than he has of the law applicable to this project, as shown by his statements of what the law is in the article, the Drainage Board had better think it over and obtain the services of a more reliable engineer. He states in his communication.

> "Mr. Brown claims that under the proposed plan no portion of the INITIAL cost of this improvement is assessed against the power companies. This is not correct."

Then Mr. Meyer goes ahead and proves in his own statement that what I claimed is absolutely correct. As a matter of fact every farmer present and all the lawyers and the court and in fact everyone connected with the project except Mr. Meyer knows that

> "No portion of the INITIAL cost of this improvement is assessed against the power companies."

Mr. Meyer states that there is nothing in the government engineer's report to indicate that the contribution of the water powers to the improvement was to be a lump assessment of $240,000.00 and quotes the following of Document 61 to prove the opposite

> "The drainage district shall receive the apportionment from the water powers and municipal interests and shall dispose of the funds in accordance with the Minnesota drainage laws."

My limited intelligence does not comprehend how that quotation proves anything of the kind. I do know that on page 27 of Document 61 the War Engineer used the following language

> "An equitable apportionment would be based upon the proportionate benefits to be received by the various interests."

And again on page 4 the following is a report of the Engineer of the War Department concerning the payment

> "Of more importnace to the community are the questions of drainage and flood control, water-power, and water supply. It is proposed to coordinate all the interests affected and apportion the COST among them."

And again on page 5 the Engineer of the War Department says

> "10. Having studied the value of the improvement to the several interests concerned, the district engineer recommends the following apportionment of cost:
> Improvement
> Water powers ---------- $240,000
> Indian lands ------------ 236,800
> Lands outside Indian reservation ---- 248,500

This would seem to dispose of the claim of Mr. Meyer that the government plans pre-supposed that the farmers would finance the project for the benefit of the water power companies. Mr. Meyer says that he has at no time recommended that the payment of rentals by the water companies be postponed.

> "to the dim future"

and then he states that under the proposed plan which originated in his fertile mind the water power companies

> "on the Red Lake River will begin to pay annual rentals as soon as the project is completed because they would be able to lease the water for reasonable compensation."

and then further along Mr. Meyer states that under Minnesota laws the present developed water powers

> "can not be forced to use the district waters and no court can sustain a present lump assessment against those water powers."

We rise to enquire how the company can be made to use the surplus water in one case and not in the other. Mr. Meyer's legal mind is apparently crossed with his notion of the attitude of the water power companies and he has succeeded in stating just the reverse of what is true. I notice further that Mr. Meyer states

> "I propose to make the water power companies pay a larger portion of the cost of this improvement than the government engineer did."

In the first place, I do not know what power Mr. Meyer has to make any one do anything, but leaving that aside Mr. Meyer testified that the highest increased capital value that he could find resulting from the water power development was $150,000. Engineer Meyer's report on file also shows this, and so as to play absolutely safe and have a wide margin of safety in his guess, he estimates the increased capital value to be between fifty and one hundred fifty thousand dollars and under cross examination on the witness stand he could not give any closer estimate.

The Engineer of the War Department made an exhaustive study and fixed this increased value at $240,000. Comment is unnecessary.

This lawyer-engineer also states in his communication

> "I do not find anything in the Minnesota law which appears to permit a lump sum assessment against developed water powers"

I call the attention of the engineer to Section 5 of Chapter 325 of the Minnesota Laws for 1921 providing for the viewer's duties in this Red Lake drainage project, the provision being as follows:"

> "and the viewers so selected shall proceed and personally inspect and examine all lands, highways and OTHER PROPERTY likely to be affected by such improvement and make and file with the clerk a detailed statement showing the actual benefits and damages that would to individuals, property or corporations and shall include lands, roads, corporations and other property and lands OR WATER POWERS farther down the valley"

Perhaps Engineer Meyer can construe this plain English language to mean something else, but to my limited intelligence it means just what it says.

Likewise I note that in this article Mr Meyer complains that the Minnesota law does not permit a lump sum assessment against DEVELOPED WATER POWERS, whereas in his written report on file in this case, the one particular reason given for failure to compel the water power interests to pay part of the initial cost is that it is not feasible under the law to assess UNDEVELOPED WATER POWER SITES. You can trust these expert engineers whose principal life work has apparently been with, and in the interests of water power companies, to think of all of the arguments possible why these power interests should be financed at the expense of the farmers

In the article in question Mr. Meyer also states that lump sum assessment against undeveloped water powers are impracticable and yet at the hearing in this case Mr. Meyer testified under oath that the value of a known power site could be determined with mathematical accuracy. Mr. Meyer quotes the federal water power act as an argument against lump sum assessments. We call the attention of Mr. Meyer to the fact that this shows exactly the trouble with Mr. Meyer's mind in this case. The federal power act does not concern drainage but is a water power act pure and simple. Apparently in the mind of Mr. Meyer this Red Lake project is a water power project to the extent that the water power companies get the benefit and are not compelled to pay, and it is a drainage project in that the farmers getting the drainage have to pay for the benefits to the other fellow.

Mr. Meyer should know and everyone connected with the whole project should know that the water power interests will never pay one cent of the cost of this project. The fanciful theories of Mr. Meyer shown by his report and by his testimony on the stand are on a par, so far as intelligence is concerned, with his contradictory statement in your paper. It is a sad thing indeed that the Conservancy Board deem it their duty to attempt to force this project on the farmers of eight towns in Pennington County, only one town whereof is now in favor of the project, the balance of the farmers who are assessed for the benefits being practically unanimous against the project.

I am not in the habit of attempting to try my cases in the newspaper but the statement of Mr. Meyer, being in my opinion, propaganda pure and simple, is so absolutely contradictory and misleading that I feel compelled to answer the same.

Yours very truly,
WM. J. BROWN.

At The Movies

"Passing Thru"

"Passing Thru," the latest Thomas H. Ince-Paramount comedy starring Douglas MacLean, which comes to the Lyceum Theatre Saturday is the humorous tale of a young man whose willingness to assume the troubles of others involves him in serious difficulties.

Billy Barton, the leading character portrayed by Mr. MacLean, first draws a sentence to the penitentiary through having assumed the blame for a bank theft of which he was entirely innocent. Before he is placed behind the bars, however, he makes his escape in a spectacular train wreck and seeks refuge in the village of Culverton. Here, befriending a lazy mule being beaten by her master gets him into more difficulties, and his misfortunes continue to pile up until the final scenes of the story when a deluge of good luck more than evens the score.

Madge Bellamy, recently recruited to the screen by Thomas H. Ince from the New York stage, is seen as Mary Spivins, the charming object of the young man's affections. Otto Hoffman, Margaret Livingston, Edith Yorke, Louis Natheaux, Fred Bambold, Willis Robarts and others complete the cast.

"Passing Thru" was directed by William A. Seiter, under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince. Bert Cann photographed the production.

"Broadway Rose"

In "Broadway Rose," Mae Murray's latest production, to be presented by Robert Z. Leonard at the Lyceum Theatre Sunday and Monday, the famous Metro star has another of those roles which have come to be associated with her name and which provide opportunities for magnificent settings, gorgeous costumes and the dance episodes without which no Mae Murray picture is complete.

It is the story of a country girl who has become a Broadway favorite and won fame as a dancer. Admired by many men, surrounded by the flattery and luxury which comes to those who are successful in catching the adulation of the Gay White Way, Rosalie Lawrence finds her hope for happiness in the love of Hugh Thompson, whose parents are wealthy and of the socially elect.

Rosalie discovers, however, that the passage from Broadway to Fifth Avenue is not easily accomplished. The Thompsons have other plans for their son. Marriage with a Broadway dancer is not included in their social code. They have already picked out the wife for their son in Barbara Royce, a debutante of their own set. And so Rosalie consents to a secret marriage in order that there may be no break in their parents.

The results of this step involve Rosalie in a series of stirring incidents which threaten her with disaster but she eventually finds happiness.

The scenes of "Broadway Rose" are elaborate and lavish representing the playgrounds of the idle rich and the gilded haunts of New York's night life. The costumes are striking in their originality and beauty and the original dances conceived by Miss Murray add to the interest of the picture.

"Broadway Rose," a Tiffany production, directed by Robert Z. Leonard, was written by Edmund Goulding, who also wrote the scenarios of "Peacock Alley" and "Fascination," The photography is by Oliver T. Marsh and the art settings by Chas. Cadwalder.

Supporting Miss Murray is a cast of unusual excellence containing such well known players as Monte Blue, Ward Crane, Ray Bloomer, Alma Tell and Mrs. Jennings.

Wool and Mutton Prices Double in the Past Year

More than 250,000 pounds of wool, the clip from 25 Minnesota counties, was sold through the Wabasha county pool for an average of 38 cents a pound, according to County Agent Bennett of Wabasha county. The wool of University Farm, amounting to 962 pounds this year, was sold in the market for $334, or about 37 cents per pound. A year ago a clip of 2,071 pounds from the farm brought only $328. Quality and grade for the two years were about the same. University livestock men say a few sheep on every farm year after year would be profitable. They attribute the higher prices to a shortage of sheep and to the effect of the new traffic law. Prices now being paid for lamb and mutton correspond to the advance made in the prices of wool.

SECRETARY WALLACE REVIEWS COUNTRY'S FARMING SITUATION

States That Agricultural Depression is More Keenly Realized Than Ever Before

Twelve months ago most of the six million farmers of the United States were starting on the hard climb out of the valley of economical depression. They have not yet attained the heights which are bathed in the grateful sunshine of prosperity. Some, indeed, have fallen by the way. Others are still in the valley. Nevertheless, as we stop a bit and look backward we can see that very considerable ground has been gained by the majority, and we can enter the New Year with renewed hope and with that courage which comes from the realization that we are making progress.

A year ago, when speaking of the prospects for farming in 1922, I said that while there was no reason to expect boom times for the farmer in the near future, there was promise of better times, both for the farmer and for those whose business is largely dependent on him. The year has brought fulfillment of that promise. Speaking generally, times are better, much better, than a year ago, both for agriculture and for industry.

Crops have been good, on the whole. Prices of the major crops are mostly considerably higher. While there has been a corresponding advance in the prices of the things the farmer must buy, the total sum which farmers will receive for the crops of this year is greater by a billion and a half dollars or more than that which they received for the crops of last year. This will certainly mean better times on the farm, and farm folks will be able to ease up a little on the grinding economy they were forced to practice the preceding year.

The labor cost of producing the crops of 1922 was still further reduced. There were some substantial reductions in freight rates. Much helpful legislation has been enacted and more will be this winter. Interest rates are lower and the credit strain has been eased. That has made it possible for many farmers who were rather heavily involved to refund their obligations and get themselves in condition to win through.

There are still some dark spots. In some sections weather conditions were unfavorable and crops were short, and farmers in these sections are having a very hard time of it. Freight rates are still too high, especially for those who must pay for a long haul to market.

Taxes are high, but this is largely due to the increase in local taxes, over which farmers themselves must exercise control.

There has been gratifying growth in farmers' co-operative marketing associations, and more of them are being organized on a sound business basis.

Aside from the help which has been given by legislation and by administration activities, strong economic forces are at work to restore a more normal relation between agriculture and other industries.

The peril in the agricultural depression is more keenly realized by other groups than ever before, and on every hand a sincere desire is being evidenced to do what can be done safely to help the farmer better his condition.

Everything considered, we have good reason to expect still better things for agriculture in the year 1923.

Increasing Membership

Someone is supposed to have dreamed recently that the American Legion is a dying institution. Take Cambridge Post for instance, which mustered 23 members for 1922 and has already turned in the dues of 60 members for 1923. Or Greenbush, Minn., another post which has surpassed last year's mark in the race for 1923. Or Post No. 8 of St. Paul which a year ago had 39 paid up already has more than 200 members in good standing for next year. So it goes. A dying organization!

Minnesota Cow Sets New U. S. Fat Record

A new butterfat record for all the world to shoot at has been set by a Minnesota cow. From tests made for 365 days under the supervision of the university's official testing section, W. E. Peterson of University Farm, superintendent, May Walker Ollie Homestead, a six year old Holstein cow, is shown to have produced in the year 31,600 pounds of milk or 1,218 pounds of butterfat equal to 1,522 pounds of butter. This is the highest record ever made by a cow of any age or breed in America, says Mr. Petersen. The average Minnesota cow produces 160 pounds of butterfat annually; compare that figure with the 1,218 pounds produced by the record maker. May Walker Ollie Homestead is owned by the Minnesota Holstein company of Austin. She can trace her descent from a long line of high producing ancestors. The uniformity of her milk flow from month to month was one of the interesting features of the year's tests, says Mr. Petersen.

Two Minnesotans On New Dairy Committee

H. B. Nickerson of Elk River and W. F. Schilling of Northfield are two members of a new committee of nine that has been named to formulate plans for the establishment of a national dairy sales agency. The new committee was organized at a meeting of the Farmers' Dairy Marketing Committee of 11 held early in the month at Milwaukee. Both are prominently connected with the Twin City Milk Products' association.

Big Gain in Alfalfa Acreage Seen in 1923

"Do your alfalfa seed shopping early," is the advice of farm crops men at University Farm who have prepared a list of growers who have limited quantities of superior Grimm seed for sale. Prices are likely to be some higher later on, hence the desirability of laying in a stock when quotations are reasonable and the supply is fairly good. A noticeable impetus has been given alfalfa growing in widely separated parts of Minnesota. The new county of Lake of the Woods in the far north will increase its alfalfa growing area several hundred acres next year, says H. C. Lende, county agent. Wadena county farmers, to the west, have pledged themselves to sow more than 500 acres to alfalfa another year. Mille Lacs county farmers will do as well, says the agent for that county. Counties south and east are also getting the alfalfa fever.

Helping the Home Town

What are you doing to better your town,
The city you claim as your own?
Are you boosting it up or knocking it down,
Helping or letting alone?
Let us work with the people for our town,
Lend a hand with the public affairs,
For ne'er will our city know fame or renown,
If nobody bothers nor cares.

Nineteen twenty-two will be history in a few days and we are all speculating more or less on what its successor will have in store for us. The year just closing has not been an easy one. Business conditions as a rule have been far from ideal and the people themselves seem to have suffered from some sort of ingrown doubt regarding the stability of things in general. Business, particularly in this section—and it probably has been no different other places—has seemed timid and lacking its usual push and optimism. This is a war aftermath and was to be expected, perhaps, but the condition is outstaying the time which by common consent was alloted to it and is beginning to prove rather irksome. Indications are plentiful that a change for the better is in prospect. More men are at work that at any time during the year and wages are so far stabilized as to make it possible to figure on the future to some extent. Were it not for the farmer's unsatisfactory situation things would appear a great deal brighter and more solid than for some years past. And the farmer may come out all right yet. Things will be made easier for him if measures now being considered by state and nation are put in effect.

But there is very little more sense in prophesying for the future than in bemoaning the past. The year 1923 will be what we make it in a larger degree than many of us realize. The main thing is not to lose hope and courage. We have all seen much darker situations grow bright before a new year was far advanced, while at this time we have every reason to hope for a long season of prosperity and happiness, the beginning of which is already in sight.

At any rate The Times wishes at this time to thank its readers and other patrons for the patronage of the past year and at the same time wish for them unbounded prosperity during the twelve month cycle we are about to enter upon.

A NEEDED REARRANGEMENT

There is considerable demand in certain quarters that the judicial district border lines be rearranged so as to more nearly equalize the work falling upon the juges as well as for the greater expedition of legal proceedure. As the districts are now made up some judges are overworked while others have very little to do. Efforts have been made to change this at nearly all recent sessions of the legislature, but something has always prevented its being done. According to the Minneapolis Journal there is now a probability that something will come of the movement.

As an example of the haphazzard manner in which the divisions are made, the following may be referred to. The first district has a population of 18,884 for each of its two judges, while district No. 5 has one judge for a population of 73,053. The 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th districts have one judge each while the populations vary from 60,000 to 70,000. The 14th district is one of the largest ones, the population being over 120,000 and the ratio for each of the two judges 60,453. The 15th district, adjoining us on the east, has three judges with a ratio for each of 46,228.

There should be another judge in the 14th district. The chambers of Judge Watts are located at Crookston, while those of Judge Grindeland are at Warren. This makes business with the court very inconvenient for a large number of the people residing in the district and adds greatly to the costs of all matters pretaining to cuort procedure. One judge should be located nearer the eastern end of the district in the interest of both economy and efficiency. When the matter comes up for consideration this section may be depended on being heard from.

BETTER HEED THE WARNING

School authorities in Minnesota seem to have agreed that a more energetic attempt should be made to enforce the anti-cigarette law as this applies to minors, and particularly students. This law has been on the statute books for a long time but in very few places is there even an attempt at strict enforcement. So flagrant has disregard of this statute become that young boys no longer make even a pretense of avoiding detection when endulging in a "pill" or "coffin nail."

The law is sufficiently explicit to leave no excuse for its being disregarded. Its aim is to punish both the vendor and purchaser, the former being deemed the greater offender, as is seen by the wording of the law itself. Here it is:

"Any person under 18 years of age, any minor pupil, who shall smoke or use cigarets, cigars, or tobacco in any form on any public highway, street, alley, park or other lands used for public purposes, or in any public place of business, shall be arrested by an officer of the law, who may be cognizant of such offense; and further, it shall be the duty of all such officers, on complaint of one citizen, to arrest such offenders and take them before the proper court. The court shall impose a punishment at its discretion in the sum of not to exceed ten dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed five days for each offense; provided, if said minor person shall give information which may lead to the arrest of the person or persons violating section two of this act, in giving or selling to, or in any way furnishing said minor person tobacco, and shall give evidence as a witness in such proceedings against said party or parties, the court shall have power to suspend such sentence against such minor person."

WILL AID RURAL DISTRICTS

The legislative session which convenes next Tuesday will have many matters of importance to attend to, the first in line undoubtedly being the providing of machinery for making immediately effective the rural credits amendment to the constitution of the state, endorsed by a tremendous majority at the last election. This law was passed with the specific intention of helping the Minnesota farmer back on his feet, it being everywhere recognized that unless this is done there can be no hope of lasting prosperity for the people of the state.

The rural credits plan will not only make it possible for farmers to borrow money at a lower rate in interest than at present, but it also makes the process of payment much easier. Incidentally the plan will relieve the country banks of the burden of carrying such a heavy load of farm securities that it leaves them in poor condition to take care of expansion in other directions.

The amendment itself only gives the legislature the right to make loans on farm property direct, leaving the method to the legislature. There is no doubt but such a law will be passed as the need for it is generally recognized. It is a new departure in legislation in this country, although a number of the most progressive countries in Europe have for years been assisting the husbandman by some similar device.

The idea is for the state to loan the money outright to the farmer for a long term of years at a low rate of interest, providing for the repayment of the loan through the amortization system. This provides that a part of the annual interest payment shall be applied on the principal with the result that the original loan is steadily reduced and at the end of a certain period of thirty or thirty-five years—will have disappeared entirely. This general reduction of the debt will have the effect of making the borrower feel as if he is getting somewhere and thus prove a spur to his ambition.

The law will place Minnesota at the top among the states in the matter of farm legislation. Homeseekers will not be slow in recognizing that they are here offered something not yet attempted by any of the other commonwealths. It is an important departure from the generally adopted method of handling farm credits and the outcome of the experiment will be watched with keen interest by our neighbors.

A PRETTY GOOD SHOWING

The new city directorry, just published, contains a total of 2204 names of persons over 18 years of age. Multiplying this by two and one-half, which is the ratio accepted by directory publishers for arriving at the actual population, shows a total of 5510 persons in the city. This is a loss of 142 in two years—the first time a decline has been recorded since a city directory was first published. The 1920 directory showed a gain of 352 over the previous volume.

Taking everything into consideration, this is a pretty good showing. A loss of but 142 names during two of the most backward years the city has ever known can certainly not be regarded as much of a setback. It is safe to say that very few communities in this corner of the state can boast of a similar record.

Public Forum

Farmer Favors Drainage

Hazel, Minn., Dec. 19, 1922.
Editor Times:

Having signed the petition and bond for the Red Lake river project and being assessed for benefits to three quarter sections of land in Kratka township, I am naturally actively interested in the said river matter, and will appreciate the kindness of The Times for publishing my views on the same in first publication after the above date.

At the outset of the formation of the drainage district, I was greatly interested in doing my best in asking the judges in charge to appoint farmers on the commission, and why?

To guard against water power interests getting the best of the farmers on assessments for benefits. Nothing wrong in that, was there? While the particular choice of some of us was not appointed to the commission, I have now concluded the judges did an excellent job in their appointment of the four farmers and the superintendent of the Crookston farm school, which constitute the board of commissioners.

A couple of scare clouds had crept into my mind, in thinking the water power companies would be exempt from assessments and it was rumored around that we wolud be compelled to pay $5 per acre in assessments.

While the writer never was in favor of killing the project unless it was found it was dead wrong and could not be put right, he was in favor of having it made right if such could be done. It should be stated at this point that the undersigned did [illegible] with a friend on the opposition to withdraw if said party found that these up river who have for years been asking for help in this matter are willing to quit and that assurance would be given me that I would not have to pay any part of the bond in case the work was not done. But I find my friend did not succeed in getting the withdrawals of those who are very, very much more in direct need of this work than I am. I also find that no assurances have been given me for not having to pay on bond from any source. I also find after reading and considering carefully Professor Selvig's statements of explinations in The Times and Tribune in issues of last week and the week before that, that the scare clouds of water power companies going to be exempt from assessment and that the cost will be $5 per acre is completely removed from my mind.

Believing Selvig's statements to be absolutely true, I wish to put myself down as squarely in favor of the program of the drainage board as set forth in articles mentioned, and will stand by those in need of relief and will here and now ask that the work be done, but with the strict understanding that assessments be materially reduced in some cases where too high. I have had promises to that effect already and same must be complied with without fail. It shall be understood I have no authority from any one to ask reduction of assessments, or more properly, equalization of assessment, comparatively speaking, but there is in my neighborhood need for some such equalization, I believe.

Getting back to the project: we find that the war department estimated the cost of construction at $778,500, to end somewhere below Highlanding or east part of Kratka, and we find the drainage board estimate cost of construction, after very careful consideration, to be $514,000, or $253,500 less than the war department estimate of construction. In comparison to the plan of the war department we find that the conservancy board estimate comes cheaper by more than the $240,000 proposed assessment of the war department against water powers. As the project will be continued several miles farther down the river than the war department planned on more work will be done for less cost. According to the viewers report 5.7 of the cost will be against the Indian lands and 2.7 against the white settlers lands.

War department reports assess $236-000 to Indian lands, where the largest amount of all $248,500, is allotted to lands outside the reservation. In the conservancy board estimate we find on the other hand, the smallest estimated amount by far to be paid by the farmers; the Indians come in for a much larger assessment. And we are assured water powers have to pay more assessment under the conservancy board plan than they would under the war department plan. It has been estimated by the board that the water powers will in due time pay half of the costs of the project.

In view of this and that this ought to be the best time this side of our graves to get the actual construction as to price per yard, etc., do you not agree that it would be unwise to drop this work at this stage?

Please do not drop it, because I honestly believe that these depressing times is the time we can get our real money's worth in construction, and we have every right to expect better times for farmers before the first payment comes around. And as the board will sell the bonds at cheapest interest rate, on possibly 30 years' time to pay, with first 10 years only the interest, it looks like we shall have a right to expect we can better afford to do the work now than later when there is more flourishing times than now. And consequently they would charge more for construction.

The good times is the times to pay. But this is the time to do this kind of work, which is not to be paid for until in the future, when farming shall be made a paying proposition.

Considered in this light, the undersigned has concluded to trust to the conservancy board to carry out their plan as set forth in the two articles referred to herein, found in recent issues of the Thief River Falls Times and The Tribune of the same city.

BETTER ROADS NOW WITH LOWER TAXES

Highway Commissioner Outlines Plan for Bigger Immediate Gains Without Tax Increase

Go on good roads everywhere in Minnesota.

Pay less taxes now for state highway betterments.

This seemingly parodoxical proposal to be made by the state highway department of the legislature which will meet next Tuesday at the capitol in St. Paul will be adopted, according to the prophesy by Charles M. Babcock, highway commissioner. It is made both feasible and advisable, the commissioner added, by the highway bond recommendation to pass on to future years their fair shares of the cost of permanent road improvements being made now.

Commissioner Babcock repeated in brief the recommendations to be offered by the state department after careful, expert study of the situation. They are: Elimination of all unjust taxes in automobile and truck tax schedules, at the same time preserving the $18 average car tax to avoid crippling the highway program.

Reenactment of the highway reimbursement law to apply only to counties which have not profited by it and authorization of first trunk highway bonds for 1923 and 1924 of $10,000,000 each.

Authorization of trunk route street paving in towns willing to assume interest charges; removal of limitations on use of funds for hard-surfacing; requirement that all vehicles on highways display lights at night; banning of prosecutions under traffic laws for private gain and reducing the number of tax exempt cars.

Highway department recommendations were made public as plainly and as early as possible that they might be generally discussed in advance of the session," said the commissioner. "That was done with satisfaction that the better they were understood by the public the more universal support would be forthcoming.

"Many reasons can be advanced for favorable action by the legislators, and the proposals will bring results to meet best expectations—that gives confidence of their adoption. Certainly, with the public demanding lower taxes and also more adequate highways, it is time to stop the present practice of using current funds to pay the whole cost of permanent road work which will serve for many years as well as this year."

The commissioner cited official records showing that road and bridge taxes in Minnesota were reduced $1,288,000 the first year under the new highway program. He predicted that reductions will follow and that highway improvement will be more rapid at the same time. Average automobile owners are making net gains on their car taxes through savings on gasoline, tires and upkeep, he asserted. The bond plan, he said, will enable the state to give present returns in fairer proportion to the amounts that are now being provided for highway improvements.

Mr. Babcock again pointed out that St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth are supporting the highway bond proposals, although they pay about one-third of the automobile taxes and not a dollar of the fund can be spent in those cities. "With the large centers paying a big share of the cost of improving and maintaining the principal country roads in all parts of the state, there is no good reason why the country districts should not push the program and take advantage of existing conditions, he declared.

"Ramsey county and St. Paul will ask the legislature for authority to issue nearly $7,000,000 of street and road bonds, although only a small percentage of the total can be refunded from the trunk highway fund," said Mr. Babcock.

"Hennepin county and Minneapolis are pushing outside rural road improvement. They pay 18 per cent of the motor vehicle taxes in the state and have just one per cent of the trunk highway mileage—70 out of the 7,000 miles for improvement and upkeep. They pay $6 in state road aid for every dollar allotted to them, and transfer part of that dollar to adjacent counties in addition to contributing about 300,000 a year to road work in other counties over the state. Minneapolis goes further and is now helping to build better local roads in a zone radiating more than 50 miles.

"Legislative delegations from those counties in advance meetings looked favorably on the highway recommendations to hasten the building of needed roads in all parts of the state. All conditions considered, that should influence senators and representatives from other sections to give their full support to the program."

The highway commissioner said the well-informed citizen today knows the public demand for more adequate roads—that highway traffic has been increasing many times as fast as highway improvements. He knows too the great loss and waste due to poor roads—the big savings and conveniences of good roads. With the pending program put into effect, the commissioner asserted, Minnesota will forge ahead and results will justify the favorable legislative action.

Loss Due to Poor Quality Cream May be Eliminated

Analyzing the September reports of 150 co-operative creameries in Minnesota, dairymen of the agricultural extension service of the university found a difference of 15 cents a pound in prices paid the farmers for butterfat. Volume of business transacted had something to do with this variance but in the main it was traced to the difference in prices received by the creameries for butter, this difference amounting to eight and a fraction cents per pound.

Losses of this sort are unnecessary, say dairymen of the university. "There is no difference in the value of butterfat for buttermaking when it is produced by the cows," they say. "The loss in quality takes place in the handling of the milk and cream on the farm, in the delay before it is delivered to the creameries, and in the workmanship in the creameries. Milk should be run through a clean separator, the cream cooled immediately after separating and kept where the air is pure and free from odors until delivered to the creameries.

"For the highest quality butter, cream must be delivered every other day. This can be done by co-operation. The price is constantly widening between good and poor butter. The greatest danger to the success of co-operative creameries is the manufacture of low grade butter."

A Dream Town

I often dream of Chiggersville,
A pleasant place to go;
It has a church upon a hill
And has a movie show.

The people there, you may be sure,
In great contentment dwell;
For who is rich and who is poor
'Tis very hard to tell.

Their pleasures are the simple kind,
Their joys and sorrows, too;
You'll journey far before you'll find
More loyal hearts and true.

No malice ever enters there,
No evil thoughts persist;
To Chiggersville I'd gaily fare,
Did such a town exist.

Public Forum

We notice a statement in the Thief River Falls Times, issue of December 21st, stating that people have been misled into opposing the Red Lake drainage scheme and that now, having discovered the truth, there is a great change of sentiment in favor of the project.

We are in close touch with all of the territory assessed in Pennington county to pay the cost in this matter and we will state that we do not know of a single farmer in any town except the town of Hickory who has changed his mind about this since the hearing.

The undersigned committee having in charge the details of opposition to the project wish to state that the farmers have not, in any way, been misled or attempted to be misled about this matter by any one except those trying to put this project over against almost the unanimous opposition of we farmers who have to pay for it.

We farmers have been misled only by those having charge of the details of forcing this thing through.

The Conservancy Board called a meeting of interested farmers at Highlanding in June, this year. All the towns assessed were well represented. A majority of our committee was there. The whole thing was discussed. The Conservancy Board was there. Mr. O'Brien of Crookston and Mr. Boughton, the lawyer of the Conservancy Board, came with the Board and each talked to us.

Mr. O'Brien told us that the flats inside the city of Crookston were flooded by high water in the Red Lake river and that this dam at Red Lake would prevent that flooding and that this low land in the city of Crookston and other low lands along Red Lake river, subject to overflow, would be benefitted and would help to pay the cost.

That statement is all true except that this Crookston property and other low lands outside of ours is not assessed and do not help pay the cost.

Mr. Boughton publicly told us to withhold decision to oppose the project until the viewers could bring in their report and that the Conservancy Board only desired to follow the wishes of the people and did not intend to force the ditch upon the people against their will.

In spite of this, a vote was called for and at least four out of five present publicly voted on opposition to the project.

These statements or promises have not been fulfilled but the Conservancy Board has gone ahead and now insists on building the ditch.

They and those behind them are the ones, and the only ones, who have attempted to mislead us.

Those people so voting know their condition—they know and we know—the limit is reached of what we can pay. On many farms even the barn yard fouls are mortgaged to help carry the great burden we now bear.

The voice of these outsiders—not interested in our welfare—not interested in the territory affected—not interested in anything apparently but their own selfish pride of opinion—should not be listened to.

Ours is the voice of those in distress and we send it forth asking for help and mercy where we should to expect such a voice to be heard.

There is one side of this question we cannot understand and that is this:

This thing is being pressed ostensibly because of great benefits to the farming community.

Almost every farmer assessed for benefits is dead against the whole thing.

In view of this condition, why are the members of the Conservancy Board and its subsidized newspapers and other clackers so persistent in forcing this thing upon us?

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF OPPOSITON

LEGISLATURE TO HAVE IMPORTANT 90 DAY SESSION

to wipe it out after a diastrous experience, or to continue it and provide a large fund to pay fire losses

Two bodies will meet at the state capitol tomorrow to frame bills for the coming session. The house and senate interim committees on taxtion will get together to draw their reports, and the Minnesota crime commission named by Governor J. A. O. Preus will meet to act on subcommittee reports and decide on its recommendations. The state cement plant interim committee also is to meet later in the week.

Governor Preus is preparing his biennial message, which he will read to the two houses in joint session Jan. 3. The legislature opens at noon, Jan. 2, and then will organize by electing officers of the two houses.

Caucuses on Jan. 1

Caucuses the night of Jan. 1 will go far toward determining political aspects of the session. Senators will meet in St. Paul to plan their organization and pick officials. Nonpartisan league senators are to have their own meeting in Minneapolis, with league house members, to decide what tactics they will use when it comes to vote on senate and house officials, also to discuss their legislative program.

Speaker W. I. Nolan, it is expected, will receive at least 85 votes for reelection out of 131, the rest going mainly to the Nonpartisan candidate. Other house officials, including Oscar Arneson, chief clerk, have been picked but the senators will name their officials Monday night. Lieutenant Louis L. Collins, who will preside over the senate, will name its committees. An effort to organize the senate against him and take this power away fell flat some time ago.

Legislative chambers are being put in shape for work this week, and offices of the speaker and chief clerk of the house are open already.

Hard to Get Flow Back.

If a cow's milk flow is allowed to go down through neglect, poor feed or any other cause, it is almost impossible to get the flow back up to the first mark.

Milk Only Good Cows.

Milk more cows—but by all that's sensible, milk only good cows.

Cause of Stringy Milk.

Stringy milk does not occur frequently unless the cows drink water from stagnant pools, etc.

POULTRY

CLEAN EGGS ARE ESSENTIAL

Change of Nesting Material Whenever Dirty Will Help—Have Plenty Fresh Litter.

Poultrymen need not be at the nest to wipe Mrs. Biddy's feet before she enters to make her daily contribution to their profits, but if the hen house is so arranged that her feet will be clean and will not dirty the egg, it will mean added profit for him.

Dirty eggs are a second-rate product on any market; so are washed eggs. This means that the egg must be produced clean, which further means clean nests and clean feet.

Clean nests are easy—comparatively. A change of nesting material whenever it gets dirty will do away with the danger of soiling from this source, and special care must be taken to see that the birds do not roost on the edge of the nests at night.

Keeping the birds' feet clean is a much more difficult proposition. First of all it is most essential to have a clean doormat in the shape of fresh litter and plenty of it on the floor at all times; secondly, do not let the birds out on muddy days when their feet are bound to get daubed up.

Most important of all, keep the dropping boards clean. Daily scrapings are preferable, but if a poultry man feels that he has not the time for this, they should be cleaned at least twice a week. A cage of one inch or one and one-half inch poultry wire tacked under the perches and over the dropping boards will prevent the birds from walking on the boards, and incidentally will catch any eggs that are dropped in the night.

Even with this extra care, the poultryman must expect some dirty eggs, and a word of advice on how to clean them might be timely. The so-called plain dirties, those soiled by dirty feet and dirty nests, are easily cleaned with a soft, damp cloth, which should be used only on dirty spots. Be careful not to rub them dry, but to allow them to dry by standing in the air. It is very important that the gelatinous coating which seals the egg should not be soaked off, as this covering is germproof and serves as a natural means of keeping the eggs fresh.

Well Selected and Graded Eggs for Market.

MONEY FROM SUMMER FLOCKS

Seven Excellent Rules Suggested by Missouri College to Increase Profits on Eggs.

Here are seven rules suggested by the Missouri College of Agriculture that will increase the profits from the summer flock:

Produce infertile eggs by removing the roosters from the flock in the summer time.

Provide clean nests and keep eggs clean.

Do not wash eggs.

Gather eggs twice daily during the summer to prevent them from being heated by the hen.

Keep them in a cool dry place, away from the flies.

Market them at least twice each week.

Insist that they be bought on a quality, graded basis.

POULTRY NOTES

Sell surplus cockerels as soon as marketable.

Keep growing chicks and laying hens separate throughout the summer.

* * *

Remember that little chickens do not require feeding until they are forty-eight hours old.

Some folks occasionally take the roosts down and wash them with boiling soapsuds to kill all lice.

Give your hens careful attention during the molting season, and you will get many more eggs next winter.

* * *

Hens to be marketed are those that have a decidedly crooked breast-bone, scaly legs or long toe nails, or are "broken down" behind, or have abdomens that are fat and hard.

DAIRY

REPLACING OLD DAIRY STOCK

Oregon County Organization Striving to Save Animals From High-Producing Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While calves from low-producing cows are saved to maintain the herds on some farms, on other farms and in other sections, where higher-producing cattle are kept, calves from 300-pound cows by purebred bulls are often vealed because no market is found for them as dairy stock. This is an economic waste which, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, the extension organization of Coos county, Ore., is striving to eliminate.

Economic Waste to Veal Calves From High-Producing Cows.

About thirty calves from the best stock in Coos county were saved last year by arrangements made with farm bureaus of other counties to take them when two weeks old at $12 a head, crated and delivered at the express office. Arrangements also were made recently for a representative of the Klamath county extension organization to spend 30 days locating newborn calves of good stock and finding a dairyman to feed them for two weeks before shipment to farmers in his own county.

The reports also say that calves two weeks old are shipped safely as far as 500 miles, or for 36 hours' travel; day-old calves can rarely be shipped.

PUREBREDS AID MILK YIELD

Tribute to Value of Improved Sires Is Contained in Statement by J. C. McDowell.

A tribute to the value of purebred sires is contained in a recent statement made by J. C. McDowell, of the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture, who pointed out that the average production of 38,000 grade cows in cow testing associations in 1920 was 5,980 pounds of milk and 300 pounds of butter, while the average production of all cows in the United States was 4,000 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of butter. The average milk and butter yield of grade cows was 50 per cent higher than the average for all grades and scrubs taken together. The economy of production was over 100 per cent greater.

INCREASE FAT ECONOMICALLY

Best Plan Is to Put Cows on an Abundant Ration That Is Rich and Easily Digested.

In a herd of well-fed cows it is not practical to try to produce milk containing more fat by giving rich feeds; that is a pretty well-settled fact. In a herd of poorly-fed cows, though, the percentage of fat can be increased by putting the cows on abundant ration that is rich and easily digested. Tests in New York showed an increase of one-quarter of 1 per cent of fat, when the cows were kept on good feeds for two years. The increase was economical, too. There was 50 per cent increase in amount of milk produced.

WAY TO AVOID LEAKY TEATS

Good Plan to Apply Collodion After Each Milking—This Closes Up the Opening.

The only way to prevent leaky teats is to smear collodion on the end of the teat after each milking. This closes up the opening and before the next milking it must be removed. This is bothersome, but may be used to good advantage where the cow loses a quantity of milk.

INDIVIDUALITY IS ESSENTIAL

In Selecting Cow It Is Important to See That Strain Is of Large Producers.

Breed is of less importance in selecting the cow than is individuality, for in every breed there are good individuals and poor individuals. It is important, not only that the breed, but the strain or family represented be noted for large and economical production.

Provide Supplemental Feed.

If concentrated feeds are not provided to supplement the pasture, the cow must either reduce her production or draw on reserve materials from her body.

Grain Is Essential.

The feeding of grain to dairy cows on pasture is essential to sustained high production.

Give Plenty of Water.

Give the calves plenty of clean water to drink.

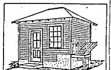
This, with the added production of Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota and Montana, gives the Northwest nearly three-fourths of the total American cheese production. Out of every dollar paid to co-operative creameries for butter fat an average of 90 cents returns to the farmer. Exhibits and demonstrations at the National Dairy Show at the Minnesota Fair Grounds, October 8 to 15, will show the farmer how better cows will double their production, lessen labor cost and increase their earnings.

DAIRY POINTS

BEST SITE FOR MILK HOUSE

Not Good Plan to Get Them Too Near Cow Barn—Must Be Clean, Airy and Dust-Proof.

Milk houses must be clean, airy dust-proof places, free from all insects and bad odors. They should not open directly into the barn, but it is equally injudicious to build them a very great distance away from the barn. Prompt removal and quick cooling are the main points to observe in handling milk. Put the milk house on a well-drained spot and away from rubbish heaps, manure piles and fly-breeding places. The outer walls, if of concrete, should be from 6 to 8 inches thick; if of brick, 9 inches; if of tile, 8 inches; if of stone, 14 to 18 inches; and if of wood frame, 6 inches.



Milk House Suitable for a Ten to Twenty-Cow Dairy.

Authorities say that particular care should be exercised in constructing milk house floors. Concrete is by far the best material for this purpose, as it resists moisture, decay and wear. Concrete floors should be built of a base made up of one part cement, three parts sharp, clean sand and five parts stone. This base should be about five inches thick and should be covered with a top coat one inch thick made by mixing one part cement and two parts sand. The top coat should be troweled hard and smooth.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY

Form of Ordinance Drawn to Guide Communities in Framing Practicable Law.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In properly safeguarding the milk supply of a community, the enactment of a suitable and enforceable law is usually the first step, according to a reprint of department bulletin 585, "A Guide for Formulating a Milk Ordinance," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk, in its composition and natural qualities, is a most useful and acceptable food, but may acquire one form or another of insanitary taint on its way from the cow to the consumer; and it is not always possible to require either producers or distributors to observe all the precautions which science has shown to be necessary, unless there is a law to back them up.

The public and officials of a city realizing this need may sometimes, in their zeal to make the new regulations strict enough, go too far and insert provisions that cannot readily be enforced or administered. Even health department officials may not be familiar with all phases of this subject, unless they have already been engaged in the enforcement of milk regulations; and in any case, whether the city is just starting milk regulation or is revising its ordinances to bring them up to date, it is desirable to take advantage of the experience of other communities.

The United States Department of Agriculture has drawn up a form of

POULTRY

NO BEST BREED OF POULTRY

Three Classes Recognized Are Egg Producers, Dual Purpose and Extremely Large Fowls.

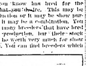
What is the best breed of chickens? That question frequently is asked by persons who are thinking of taking a plunge in the poultry business.

But there is no "best breed," according to Harry Embleton, professor of poultry husbandry at Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college.

"You can find good and poor layers, large and small birds in every breed," Embleton explains. "It is the strain more than the breed that is really the more important thing to consider."

"There are three recognized general classes of poultry," Embleton says, "the small birds or the so-called egg-producing class, the medium-sized bird or the so-called dual purpose class, and the extremely large or the meat class. There is no great distinction between the egg class or the dual so far as the egg production is concerned, for many of the medium meat breeds are good egg layers, and in the small-sized birds which are considered for egg laying only, there are oftentimes found individuals that will weigh from five to five and one-half pounds and these will make a fairly good meat bird.

"Now, in regard to the breed you would like to have, I have first to suggest that you decide upon whether you want eggs primarily or whether you want general-purpose breeds. When you have made this decision pick out the breed which you like best because this is the breed with which you will get the best results. After you have picked the breed that you like best buy your stock or eggs from a breeder whom you know has bred for the things that you desire. This may be egg production or it may be show purposes or it may be a combination. You will find many breeders that have bred for egg production, but their stock may not be worth very much for show purposes. You can find breeders which have bred for show purposes and their stock, in turn, may not be worth very much for egg production. You can find a small per cent of breeders who have combined these two qualities and of course their stock would naturally be worth more because of having this combination.



Purebred Barred Plymouth Rocks Raised by Alphonse Leppert, Irving Park, Chicago, Ill.

"But just as a matter of caution—be sure you know the breeder from whom you are buying your stock and be sure that he has the strain of birds which have the qualities which you desire."

INDICATION OF LAYING HENS

Spread of Distance Apart of Pelvic Bones Is Valuable Sign of Fowl's Condition.

As a hen stops laying there is a tendency for her to take on fat. This is noticeable in examining the pelvic bones, the two bones which can be felt as points on either side of the vent. When the hen is laying these bones become comparatively thin and flexible. When she is not laying they feel thicker and less flexible, due to the fat which has accumulated there. The spread of distance apart of these pelvic bones is also a valuable indication of whether or not the hen is laying. When laying they are wider apart than when not laying.

POULTRY NOTES

Keep charcoal where the fowls have ready access to it at all times.

See that your poultry runs and coops are clean before the little chicks begin coming.

The goose is the great holiday bird and finds ready sale on the large city markets at that time.

Get a supply of the most-needed poultry remedies and keep them on hand for emergencies.

The sooner eggs are set after being laid the better. There is no such thing as setting them too soon for best results.

* * *

Keep grit and oyster shell before the fowls, also plenty of clean water, and make sure that the fowls are not bothered with mites or lice.

DAIRY FACTS

PRACTICE OF PASTEURIZING

Dealers Know That Milk So Treated Keeps Better and Prevents Spread of Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The practice of pasteurizing milk is growing rapidly in the cities of this country, as shown by figures collected by the United States Department of Agriculture. Through pressure of health departments and through voluntary action by milk dealers, plant after plant has been switched over from raw milk. It is now generally recognized by those who have studied the problems of milk supply, that proper pasteurization does not injure the chemical or nutritive properties of milk, and that it does destroy all bacteria that may produce disease. Milk dealers know that milk so treated keeps better and satisfies customers, and that it prevents outbreaks of disease which might cast discredit on their product and injure their business.

With these facts in mind it is easy to see why the practice has grown. In 1915 only 77.8 per cent of the cities with population of more than 500,000 reported more than half of their milk pasteurized, while in 1921 every city in this class had a milk supply more than 50 per cent of which was pasteurized. In 1915 more than 10 per cent of the cities of 75,000 to 100,000 people had no pasteurized milk, but during the past year all of them had some part of the supply pasteurized.

The increase in pasteurization in small cities is particularly striking. Take, for example, those from 10,000 to 25,000 population. In 1915 about 40 per cent had pasteurized milk, but in 1921 nearly 61 per cent had it. Even in cities below 10,000 population pasteurization is becoming more common.

KEEP CREAM DURING SUMMER

If Cooled to 50 Degrees Promptly After Separating It Will Keep Several Days.

The dairyman must figure a way to keep the cream in good condition during the hot weather months. There is always someone saying "cream can't be kept sweet very long during the summer months," but it has been proven that cream cooled to 50 degrees shortly after separating can be kept sweet for several days.

To accomplish this, it is necessary to have a cooling tank. Such tanks may be bought from the dairy supply houses, but if only a small quantity of cream is produced a homemade tank will do the trick. This tank is made as follows:

Take a water barrel and around it make a box about 3 feet square by about the height of the barrel. Insert a pipe leading from the pump into the barrel extending to the bottom. An overflow pipe is then placed on the opposite side of the barrel leading to the outside of the box. This overflow pipe should be placed as high as the neck of a large cream can. The intake pipe from the pump should extend to the bottom of the barrel as the warm water then rises and overflows.

Cooling Tank for Cream.

The space between the box and the barrel is filled with sawdust or other insulator and the box finally covered to the edge of the barrel. A close fitting lid is then placed over the top of the barrel and completes the tank. When a partly filled can is set down a stick across the barrel above the can will help to hold it down.—A Miller, in the Farm and Home.

METHOD OF RAISING CALVES

Most Economical to Make Use of Good Calf Meal on Farms Where Whole Milk Is Sold.

Where whole milk is sold, undoubtedly the most economical method of raising calves is by the use of a good calf meal. Calves that have been raised properly on calf meal make just as good cows as those raised on whole milk or skim milk.

When Cow Holds Milk.

When a cow persists in holding her milk, a common remedy is to attempt to divert her attention from the operation of milking by providing some tempting food.

Drawback to Dairy.

Perhaps the greatest drawback to the dairy business is that a cow will produce a little milk, no matter what she is fed. Too many dairymen are satisfied with that little bit.

Methods Work Well.

The methods aren't the same, but one works as well as the other—culling hens and culling cows.

Be Regular With Calves.

Be regular in the various operations performed in caring for the calves.

The Spirit of Service
As the old year passes into history and men take stock of their achievements and of their weaknesses, there is stressed that spirit of service which is the soul of business
It is the Christmas spirit materialized, the spirit of Kindness, Justice, Equity and Fair Dealing, the spirit which gives body to the Golden Rule.
The spirit of service is ever present in the policies of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) permeating every phase of its activities.
The spirit of service is a principle which radiates naturally from the management and through every fibre and unit of the organization. Such a spirit is essential in a big business if the work it is designed to do be comprehensive in its scope.
It provides proper compensation for men and women who have grown old in the service.
It provides pleasant working conditions for employes
It embraces a plan whereby employes may become partners in the business, insuring a comfortable feeling of independence, thereby supplanting worry with peace of mind.
It provides a channel through which the worker in the humblest position may bring his grievance, if he has one, to the attention of the management and be sure of consideration.
These four manifestations of the Standard Oil spirit of service reflect themselves directly in developing contented employes; who work with an enthusiasm impossible to those who labor under the lash.
The material benefits of this daily application of the Christmas spirit are mirrored to a superlative degree in the superior service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) through its harmonious, happy, contented family of 27,000 employees is able to render to 30 million people in 10 Middle Western States.
It is this spirit of service animating the entire organization which has enabled the Directors to render so praiseworthy an accounting of their stewardship to the 26,708 stockholders, not one of whom owns as much as 10 per cent of the total.

Obituary

Rudolph J. Jensen

Rudolph J. Jensen, aged 36, died at the Oakland Park sanatorium Wednesday evening, Dec. 20, having suffered from a lingering illness of tuberculosis for some time. Mr. Jensen left Thief River Falls about five years ago and resided at Tolna, N. D. where he operated an elevator until last spring when he returned to this city for medical treatment and entered the sanatorium. However, the disease had progressed so far that he was beyond recovery and became gradually weaker.

Deceased was born March 28, 1886 at Moorhead, the parents being Mr. and Mrs. P. Jensen. His father died some years ago but Mrs. Jensen has made her home in this city for some time. He came here in 1900 with his parents who setted on a farm in the vicinity of Germantown where they resided until in 1906 when they moved to Thief River Falls. While here he was engaged in the livery business together with his brothers and also took part in considerable contract work. Eight years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Inez Olson of this city, to which union was born two children. Previous to his last return to Thief River Falls Mr. Jensen and his family lived at Tolna, N. D. for a period of five years. Last March he had a severe attack of influenza from which he did not fully recover.

To mourn the loss of the departed are the deceased's wife and little son, Raymond, five years old; a daughter, Lorinda Ardith, passed away last January at the age of six years. He is also survived by his mother, four sisters, Mrs. Wm. Price (Jane) of Green Forest, Ark., Mrs. B. Amberson, (Marie) of Superior, Wis., Mrs. Geo. Grace (Lenora) of Forest River, N. D., and Mrs. Ernest Bickerton (Annie) of Hulbert, Mich., and three brothers, Anton of Thief River Falls, Adolph of Deerwood, and Henry of Pekin, N. D.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the home and the Trinity Lutheran church, Rev. T. E. Sweger officiating. Interment was made at the Greenwood cemetery. A large number of friends of the deceased was in attendance at the last rites. The following acted as pall bearers: Bernhard Knudson, Ole Nesja, Sever Rustebakke, John Gullingsrud, J. J. Aga and C. M. Carlson.

Out of town relatives who were here for the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Olson from Allouez, Wis., Mrs. Ben Amberson from Superior, Wis., Mrs. George Grace from Forest River, N. D., and Adolph Jenson from Deerwood, Minn.

Mrs. Jensen states that she intends to make her home in this city during the winter months at least.

Mrs. Leopold Lyonais

Saturday afternoon occurred the death of Mrs. Leopold Lyonais of Naicam, Canada, a sister of Mrs. Carl E. Johnson, at the latter's home, 623 Horace avenue north. The cause of her death was cancer from which she had suffered for some time. Her health had been failing since last spring.

Mrs. Lyonais came to Thief River Falls about five weeks ago on her return from Rochester where she consulted physicians at the Mayo hospital. She also received medical treatment here but her condition became gradually more critical. Her mother, Mrs. R. Olson, also of Naicam, was with her for about a month and her husband, a daughter and a son arrived two weeks ago to be at her bedside when death occurred.

Deceased was born Feb. 23, 1883 at Brainerd, Minn. where she married and moved to Saskatchewan about ten years ago.

Mrs. Lyonais is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Sam Peterson, and a son aged 4, all of Naicam. Also her parents, seven sisters, including Mrs. Carl E. Johnson of this city and Mrs. Bernard Anderson of Middle River, and three brothers.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the Johnson home, interment being made in the Greenwood cemetery. Rev. T. E. Sweger of the Trinity Lutheran church conducted the services.

Jacob O. Waldal, Plummer Resident, Dies From Cancer

The following item which appeared in the Plummer Pioneer of last week will be of interest to readers in this section who knew Jacob O. Waldal, a farmer in the vicinity of Plummer, who died at his home recently. He is father of Marius Waldal who was elected to the Minnesota legislature in the fall election and is well known thruout this section.

"On last Monday morning, December 18, at the family home southwest of Plummer, occurred the death of Jakob O. Waldal. Death was caused from cancer and came after a lingering illness. The deceased was born in Norway in 1852 and came to this country in 1881, settling in Ottertail county. Later he moved on a homestead at Cisco and in 1893 he purchased his present farm at Plummer. Mr. Waldal was one of the best known and highest respected citizens in this locality and his loss will be greatly felt in the community. The funeral was held from the home Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Lerohl officiating, and interment was made in Emarville cemetery. The many beautiful floral offerings showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. Besides his host of friends, the deceased leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and five children: Alfred, Marius, George, Olga and Jennie. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved relatives."

Card of Thanks

We hereby wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our friends for the help and sympathy extended during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, also the pall bearers, and for the pretty floral offerings.

Mrs. R. J. Jensen and son Raymond.

Much Leather Used

Perhaps leather won the war. More than 580,000 mules and hawses were in Uncle Sam's Army. It took 1,673,204 nose-bags, 2,850,853 halters, 945,000 saddles and 712,510 spur-straps to equip them. Our army leather cost three quarters of a BILLION dollars. One reason for the high cost of civilian shoes following the war was that Uncle Sam called for more leather for his army than America produced, which is one reason why he had to pay more than $7 per pair for the shoes of his doughboys.

Smoking Among Children

We should very much dislike to publish a news article, relating the arrest of school children in knee pants for smoking or using tobacco in any form. But this is what's going to happen, of these youthful law violators do not stop this health wrecking practice.

That school children under 18 are smoking is a well known fact. That the parents in most instances would object seriously, if they knew it was their own lad, is also more than likely.

Under our form of government, even though it is strictly against the law, there is little to be done, without the help of parents and older people of the town. Much can be accomplished with their help.

There is a tendency on the part of the parent to realize and believe in the irregularities of other children, while close contact and sometimes misplaced faith causes them to overlook the same conditions in their own household.

Police have ordered to arrest minor smokers and citizens can be of much assistance by co-operating with the officials.

As before stated, this paper would regret exceedingly to be obliged to print news about your boy and our boy, should he be arrested for smoking or using tobacco, but if the practice continues, such steps may be deemed necessary.—Bemidji Pioneer.

COUNTY BOARD ELECTS M'GINN AS CHAIRMAN

Commissioner From Second District is Given Post of Honor by Colleagues

Three New Officials Sworn in and Dr. Swedenburg Heads County Board of Health

Two New Commissioners Enter Upon Duties; Old Ones Glad to Quit Grind

Robert McGinn of Thief River Falls, county commissioner from the second district, was elected chairman of the board at the organization meeting on Tuesday. J. S. Roy, Fourth district, was named vice chairman. The usual amount of routine business in evidence at all annual board meeting was disposed of in short order and the usual appointments made. Dr. Swedenburg was named chairman of the county board of health with Commissioners J. S. Roy and A. W. Hanson as fellow members.

But one bid for the county printing was submitted, the work being awarded to the Tribune. Complete proceedings of all meetings will, however, appear in The Times regularly while all other matters of public interest will be given in full in these columns.

The three new officers elected at the last election were sworn in and at once entered upon their duties. They are O. L. Ihle, sheriff; Fred Lorentson, register of deeds and O. R. Sande, superintendent of schools, who replace respectively W. J. LaBree, N. J. Anderson and G. M. Gunderson. Paul Midderigh was reappointed court house custodian, a position he has filled to the entire satisfaction of all for many years.

Two new county commissioners took up their duties for the first time—Emil Larson of Wylie, succeeding Gust Naplin in district No. 3, and Carl Olson succeeding O. J. Peterson in district No. 5. The latter has served on the board for eight years, during five of which he has been chairman, while Mr. Naplin voluntarily quits after one four-year term. Both expressed themselves as well pleased over the fact that they were able to delegate the responsibilities of the position to others.

Robert McGinn, the new chairman, is one of the best known citizens of this section of the state. He is president of the Farmers & Merchants bank in this city and during his long service on the board has given the affairs of the county his closest and best attention. Mr. Roy, the vice chairman, also has had a long experience on the board and is a man of sound judgment and dependable performance. The board starts out with every indication of becoming a harmonious, efficient body.

Deputy Register of Deeds

Miss Helen Huot, formerly employed in the office of the register of deeds of Red Lake county, has been named as deputy by Fred Lorentsen, who on Tuesday assumed his official duties as register in Pennington county. Miss Huot's experience in this post will prove of great assistance to the new official until he gets his bearings.

There is a total of 98.5 miles of state roads in the county on 82 miles of which maintenance work was carried on during the year. Leave For California

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Prichard Sr left last evening on an extended trip to various points along the Pacific coast, expecting to spend the winter months there. They were accompanied to the twin cities by their daughter, Mary, who is teaching at Ryder, N. D., and three sons, James, Charles and Theodore, who resume their studies at the university. After visiting a few days in the cities Mr. and Mrs. Prichard will journey on to California via the southern route, visiting with their son, Harry, at Storm Lake, Iowa, on their way. They will also spend some time visiting with Dr. Gamble and family at Willows, Cal. and with relatives at Whittier.

Oscar Paulson is Head Of Lincoln High Alumni

The annual reunion of the graduates of Thief River Falls high school took place last evening at the Sons of Norway hall, and was very much enjoyed, altho only a small representation of the Alumni association was present. While there are hundreds of alumni of the local school only about sixty were present at last evening's gathering, but those who were there state that they had a splendid time.

Francis Burns presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, George Werstlien. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Oscar Paulson, president; Roy Brown, vice president; Dreng Bjornarna, secretary; Miss Sibyl McGinn, treasurer. The retiring officers are George Werstlien, Francis Burns, Carl Gulrud and Reuben Hadrath. Various matters of interest to the maintenance and continuance of the association were discussed, the members of the '23 class taking an active part. seniors at the high school enjoyed a social time talking over schooldays episodes and exchanging reminiscences. Dancing formed the main diversion and a fine program of music was rendered by Miss Theone Waker, piano, H. S. Snyder, violin and saxophone, and Art Granum, drums. Carl Sundahl also favored the former Lincolnites with several well received vocal solos. At 11 o'clock a banquet lunch was served by Mrs. Alma Strupp.

THREE MONTHS AND $300 IS SENTENCE FOR MAKING BOOZE

Sanders Township Farmer Ganded Stiff Done by Judge Watts at Crookston

Ole Linstad of Sanders township was taken to Warren Tuesday to serve a three month's jail sentence, having pleaded guilty before Judge William Watts at Crookston, to the illicit manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. In addition to the jail term he was sentenced to pay a $300 fine. In case the fine is not paid he will serve an additional three months in jail.

Linstad was one of the men arrested in the raid last fall for operating a still in Sanders township, supplying this community with a considerable share of the moonshine peddled around, it is alleged. He is an old offender having been given a previous jail sentence.

The accused was arrested by Sheriff W. J. LaBree on Oct. 3, following a sale of moonshine to Grover Taylor, a detective. A search of his premises was made and three stills and about 20 gallons of moonshine were found as evidence. He waived preliminary and pleaded guilty before Judge Watts last week. He was put into custody at the Warren jail by Sheriff W. J. LaBree.

Several other men were arrested with Linstad last fall, their trial, according to present indications, coming before the winter term of court. One of them, Bennie Vigen, whose place was raided for the second time about two weeks ago, has three charges facing his appearance at the next court session

Linstad was accompanied to Crookston by County Attorney Theo. Quale and to Warren by former Sheriff W. J. LaBree, this being the last official act of the latter officer, who the following day handed his office over to his successor, O. L. Ihle.

Mrs. T. T. Kiland Has Fall Resulting in Broken Hip

Mrs. T. T. Kiland was the unfortunate victim of a serious accident New Year's eve when she slipped on the walk only a short distance from the house with the result that her hip was broken.

It was quite late in the evening when the accident occurred and the elderly lady being unable to get to the house only a few steps away, laid helpless on the frozen ground for several minutes before her cries were heard and aid could be rendered. She was taken to the Swendenburg clinic and given medical attention immediately. Examination showed her hip being fractured, but the attending physician states that the injury will not be permanent altho the victim will have to remain in bed for a period of about six weeks. She is reported to be getting along nicely now.

Elks to Fill Vacancies At Meeting Friday Night

An important meeting of the Elks lodge will be held on Friday evening. At that time two new officers will be installed—W. J. Brown as royal knight, and W. W. Prichard, Jr. as lectdring knight. This induction of two of the principal officers of the lodge into office at this time of year is made necessary by the removal of L. H. Lawrence, former royal knight, from the city.

Reports from the committee in charge of the recent carnival will be presented as will one from the Christmas activities committee. G. W. Connell of the latter body, says that the Elks distributed over 50 Christmas baskets to the needy in the city and that even a larger number were distributed in the outlying districts.

Lunch will be served after the installion of the new officers and a smoker enjoyed.

Miss Stebbins is a graduate from St. Mary's hospital, the Mayo institution at Rochester, where she remained for a period of five years previous to her return to this city. The new superintendent is very well fitted for her new position and the hospital is fortunate in securing her services.

BOTH SIDES OF RIVER QUESTION GIVEN HEARING

The Times Gives Statements of A. F. Meyers, Engineer, and W. J. Brown, Attorney

Former Points Out How Water Powers Will be Compelled to Pay Large Share

Mr. Brown Asserts Attempt is made to Have Farmer Stand Greatest Cost

Pursuant to its policy of wishing to be fair and impartial toward both sides in the Red Lake river drainage controversy, The Times has been glad to publish the views of proponents and objectors alike. The probabilities are that the subject will now soon be brought to a close and for that reason this paper gives space to the following letters, one written by A. F. Meyers favoring the project, and the other submitted by W. J. Brown, opposing it. Mr. Brown must have received a copy of Mr. Meyers' communication, as his article is in answer to it.

Mr. Meyers' Statement.

January 1, 1923

The Editor of The Times,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.
Dear Sir:

I have read the communication by Mr. Wm. J. Brown in your issue of December 28th. If the sarcasm and uncalled for personal criticism, and the misstatements from my report and testimony were eliminated, there would be little left of the communication.

Judging from Mr. Brown's closing paragraph he is endeavoring to talk to the court. My communication was addressed to the people of your community.

Mr. Brown's statement that my, "principal life work has apparently been with, and in the interest of, water power companies," is typical of his misstatement of facts. Out of approximately 18 years of practical engineering experience I have spent less time than two months of my time working for water power companies. I have never received a dollar from the Northern States Power company or any of the other Power companies concerned in this project.

Mr. Brown credits me with originating the proposed plan, and then when I state what the proposed plan really is, he accuses me of endeavoring to be not only engineer but lawyer and court.

Mr Brown stil persists in claiming that under the proposed plan no portion of the initial cost of the improvement is assessed against the water power companies. The record of the proceedings clearly shows that the entire costs of the jutties, estimated by the government engineers as $108,300 has been eliminated from the first cost of the improvement to be paid for out of annual rentals by the water power companies.

The undeveloped fall on the Red Lake river is three times as great as the developed fall. The undeveloped fall can only be developed under license from the Federal Water Power Commission which requires in Section 10:

> "That whatever any licensee hereunder is directly benefitted by the construction of another license, a permittee, or of the United States of a shortage reservoir or other headwater improvement, the commission shall require as a condition of the license that the licensee so benefitted shall reimburse the owner of such reservoir or other improvements for such part of the

Red Lake County Pioneer Woman Passes Away

The folowing item in last week's issue of the Red Lake Falls Gazette cronichled the death of Mrs. Con Short, a pioneer of Equality township, in the vicinity of Roland postoffice.

"Mrs. Con Short of Equality, one of the pioneer settlers of Eastern Red Lake county, died at her home Christmas night at 8 o'clock following a week's illness. She was 63 years old, having been born June 30, 1859 in Illinois. Her maiden namd was Josephine McNamara.

In 1880 she was married to Con Short in Illinois. They lived for a time in that state and later in North Dakita. Mr. Short joined the gold rush to Alaska in 1896 and that same year Mrs. Short came here alone and took up a homestead in Equality where she since resided.

Mr. Short returned from the gold fields with a fortune and later returned with another fortune before settling down to make his home in Equality. He survived his wife. They have no children. Mrs. Short is also survived by a brother, John McNamara and a sister, Mrs. George Schoffield, both of Minot, N. D. who arrived last week to be at their sister's funeral which took place at Plummer.

Great Progress Made by Legion Boys During Year

A very successful and interesting meeting of the Elmer J. Eklund post, American Legion, was held last Thursday evening at the regular quarters in the basement of the First and Peoples bank building. A large number of buddies were present and much interest was taken in the election of officers and discussions of matters relative to the organization, which includes nearly all service men in Pennington county. Following the regular business session the usual "feed" was served.

Oscar Paulson was re-elected commander of the post for the third term, the other officers being as follows: Dave Robinson, vice commander; A. W. Jardine, second vice-commander; O. R. Sande, adjutant; Verner Nelson, finance officer; Rev. Chas. Gerlinger, chaplain; Roy Brown, sergeant-at-arms. The new officers will be properly installed at the next meeting.

The club rooms are now fully equipped with furniture and other necessities for the comfort of the Legion boys and the financial status of the post is excellent, everything being paid for. The body now has equipment and furniture the value of approximately $1200, part of which was generously contributed by the merchants of the city. Most of this improvement has been made within the past eight months, which shows the rapid progess that can be made by this live organization. Plans for one of the most active years will be made at the next meeting, which will take place Jan. 13.

Fined For Assault and Battery

W. A. Bishop was fined $5 and costs by Judge Tarrant in Municipal court Friday on a charge of having assulted August Carlson following an argument at the Great Northern depot. Carlson is said to have been hit to the ground, receiving injuries in the fall. Both parties are bus drivers and the argument arose regarding their respective bus patrons.

EVIL ODOR LEADS POLICE CHIEF TO MOONSHINE PLANT

Finds All Necessary Appointments But Owners Had Made Their Getaway

An ususual and particularly disagreeable smell about the corner of Duluth avenue and fifth street lead the neighbors to enter a complaint to the police department and Chief Erickson went to investigate the matter. Gaining entrance to a building owned by Mrs Randie Gilseth at No. 421 Duluth avenue, the chief soon discovered the trouble. The place had to all appearances been the rendezvous of moonshiners, although indications were that they had not been plying their trade for some time. About two bushels of corn mash was found together with a serviceable still and all necessary peraphernalia for turning out prohibited intoxicants.

The building has been unoccupied for some time, the last tenant being Ted Jensen, a teamster in the employ of the City Dray and Fuel company. The authorities are of the opinion that the moonshiners took possession of the premises some time after his moving away, but just when cannot be exactly stated as it is probable they flourished for some time before the neighbors noticed anything wrong. Mrs. Gilseth, the owner, has been absent from the city, and naturally can throw no light on the subject. Chief Erickson has a suspicion which may result in arrests within a very short time if the evidence now being put together warrants such move.

HIGH SCHOOL AND ALL-STARS DIVIDE HOOP GAME HONOR

Good Playing and Close Scores in oth Games, But supremacy Undecided

Two snappy basketball games were played by the Thief River Falls High and a pickup quint of All Star alumni during the past week. Each team succeeding in winning a victory, making it very difficult to determine which is the stronger aggregation, unless a third game is played. Friday evening the high school regulars trounced the All Stars to the tune of 37 to 34. Part of the scores made by the alumni were made in a comeback in several minutes of extra play. The victors had the advantage, having played together thru the season while the opposition was only loosely organized, some of the members playing their first game of the season. The Sorenson boys did good work for the highites, Clifford making a large number of baskets, shot from all angles of the floor.

These former star performers comprised the pickup quint: McGinn of St. Thomas college, Penney, Larson, Kiland, Prichard, Brown and Tandberg.

The game Tuesday following a challenge by the losers of Friday's contest, told a different story regarding the final score at least. When the whistle blew the score was 21 to 19 in favor of the All Stars. The game was fast at every interval of the fracas and it is only to be regretted that there was not a larger turnout to witness the hot fight for supremacy. Practically the same lineup was in action as in the previous game, except for the absence of Sether on the high school quint and B. Barzen taking the place of C. Prichard in the All Star squad. "Webly" Ralston was also added to strengthen the team. Some excellent basket shooting was done by both aggregations, several baskets being made from dificult positions on the floor. At no time in the course of the game was either side much ahead of the other and the result was in doubt till the last whistle blew.

The high school has a very strong team this year and a successful season is looked forward to by local fans.

STATE INCOME TAX PROPOSED BY GOVERNOR

Would to a Large Extent Replace Personal Property Tax and Correct Inequalities

Early Passage of Rural Credits Law Made Mandatory by Voters at Last Election

Document Devoted Almost Entirely to Recommending Helpful Farm Legislation

A graduated income tax is among the recommendations of Governor J. A. O. Preus to the Fifty-third legislative body, which convened in joint session at noon Wednesday to hear the governor's message.

"Every state has a large class of wealthy citizens, who, in proportion to their wealth, contribute but little toward the expenses of government." Governor Preus said. "In my judgment, an income tax will reach this class of citizens more effectively than we are now doing, thus relieving to some extent the present heavy burden on real property."

Governor Preus explained that the tax students of the country are agreed that an income tax be graduated and progressive, that is, the rate should increase as the amount of income increases until a certain maximum rate is reached, and that no tax should be imposed on income barely large enough to support a man and his family under normal conditions.

Would Amend Constitution

Under the state constitution it is not possible now to legislate such a graduated income tax, and as a result the governor recommends that an amendment permitting the enactment of a graduated income tax be submitted to the people at the next general election.

This graduated income tax would be in lieu of any or all classes of personal property, and should be a supplement to, and not a substitute for, real property taxes.

Urges Rural Credits

Governor Preus also explained and commended the passage at this session and the previous session, the following laws:

Rural credits.
Co-operative marketing and its needs.
St. Lawrence deep waterway.
Taxes and the cause of tax burdens.
Taxation of royalties on iron ore.

Governor Preus called the legislators' attention to the fact that the rural credits amendment was passed by a larger vote at the last election than ever registered on any constitutional provision and said that it is the people's mandate that this session enact into law a rural credits system.

"A system must be inaugurated which will be helpful in building up splendid farming communities in this wonderful state, a law in my opinion which should be confined to actual farmers. There is no moral responsibility upon the state to aid those who are speculators in lands.

The governor commended the action of the session of the legislature two years ago for enacting the agricultural program of co-operative marketing into law, but said that these laws should be amended so as to give them a broader scope.

He cited the various agencies established under these laws and explained the beneficial functioning and advantageous results secured for the farmer.

"The co-operative policy of marketing grain must be adopted, wherever an actual saving to the producers can be effected. They must follow their grain to export or to mills. Furthermore, grain stored in bonded elevators or warehouses ought, by a rigid enforcement of existing laws, to be made a liquid asset to the farmer by the proper recognition by the state of some form of warehouse receipt which becomes negotiable in the state."

Canal Needed

Governor Preus cited the heavy losses on potatoes and immense injuries caused grain because of lack of shipping facilities as concrete evidence of the need of the St. Lawrence deep waterway.

The war, with its consequent growth in federal expenditures not only increased the burden of the federal tax, but, both directly and indirectly, added to the burden of state and local taxes, Governor Preus said in discussing the case of growing tax burdens.

A second cause of growing tax burdens, he continued, is found in the expansion of government functions in recent years. There is an ever-increasing tendency to transfer the cost of many state activities of a semi-private character from the single individual to the collective individual called "government."

This expansion of governmental function means increased public expenditures, and increased public expenditures mean increased taxes. Governor Preus cited increases in educational levies, road taxes, and local and state taxes.

As a result of these increased burdens he advised strict economy and suggested there be no revenue fund tax. He amplified his statement with information that he will give more detailed advice relative to the state's finances at a later date.

Bills Introduced

Representative L. A. Barnes of Duluth, introduced a bill in the house to permit any married woman who becomes a candidate to use the prefix "Mrs." before her name. Barnes tried to have the bill passed under suspension of the rules but this was defeated.

Among other bills to be presented in the house was the list prepared by the interim committee on agriculture, including the rural credits bill, and the bank guarantee bill.

Representative A. C. Welch of Glencoe, also re-introduced his bank guarantee bill, a copy of the South Dakota law.

The members of the farmer-labor party caucused to adopt a legislative program, which includes, besides the bank guarantee bill, a bill providing for the organization of co-operative banks, state-owned elevators and the exemption of farm improvements from taxation.

Representative Albert Lagerstedt of Sibley county appeared with a list of 11 bills. They would prohibit signs advertising cigarettes for sale; would require owners of soft drink parlors to give bond of $500, to be forefeited for any violation of the eighteenth amendment; provide for the closing of dance halls on Sunday and reduce the salaries of the governor and of other state officers $500 a year, and those of employes 10 per cent.

B. E. Dahlquist is in the city from Alexandria to attend to business matters here for a few days.

COUNCIL ADVISED TO GO AHEAD AND PLEASE EVERYBODY

No Helpful Suggestions Presented at Mass Meeting to Discuss Power Matters

The city council will have to find some way out of the power difficulty without any aid from the public. This fact was clearly proven on Tuesday evening at a meeting of citizens called for the purpose of discussing the matter. It was agreed that the power question might within a very short time become acute as the present facilities are about taxed to the limit, particularly during the winter months, but no plan for remedying the situation was presented.

The council requested this meeting in order to feel out public sentiment, but it failed of its purpose, none of those present having anything of a helpful nature to offer. President H. A. Brumund of the council presented facts to show just exactly what the power situation in the city is at this time. He said things were going along in a fairly satisfactory manner under the present load, but that not much more could be taken on. The Diesel engines have been in service quite a number of years and have given absolute satisfaction. It is to be expected, however, that they will show the strain in time and it is against this contingency the council would provide. The dam is helping along but not a great deal of dependence can be placed on it in its present state.

It was finally decided to leave the entire matter to the council without instructions or suggestions. It is probable that the first step will be the employment of competent engineers to make a survey of the entire power situation as this applies to the city and in this manner arrive at a definite point from which to work.

Man Killed at Bemidji by Great Northern Train

Ole Borreson, 35 years old, was killed Sunday noon at Bemidji by the Great Northern east bound passenger train. The victim was noticed by the train crew when the engine was only a few feet away from the man, a heavy fog hiding him from view until the train was close. Borreson was lying between the rails on the track when he was noticed by the train crew and although the engineer made every effort to stop the train before striking the man, his efforts were useless.

A coroners inquest was held Wednesday. The body was identified Wednesday by Lars Lyslo of Crosby who said he was a brother-in-law of the dead man.

Red Cross Meeting Friday

The annual meeting of the Pennington county chapter of the American Red Cross will be held at the commercial club rooms Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All reports will be submitted at this time and officers for the ensuing year elected. It is desired that all members be present.

Transportation Troubles Delay Filtration Plant

The new filtration plant will not be ready for service before the first of February, according to present indications. The building is practically completed but transportation difficulties have delayed this work considerably. Only a part of the machinery is on the ground, the remainder being somewhere enroute. Contractor C. M. Carlson, who is erecting the building, has delayed the laying of the floors until the heavier units of machinery are in place to prevent their being marred and chipped in the operation.

The plant should be ready for acceptance by Jan. 15, according to the terms of the contract, but it will be two weeks after that time before everything is in readiness.

Social At New Hall

Tomorrow evening, Jan. 5, the Sons of Norway will give a big basket social at the new quarters which is becoming a popular gathering place. The ladies are requested to bring baskets with lunch for two, coffee will be served by the lodge. Following the sale of the baskets which will be administered by Chas. Evenson, there will be a social dance.

This affair is open to the general public and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

SAPEROS ENTER GENERAL STORE FIELD SHORTLY

Decision Announced to Aid General Lines to Those Now Being Handled

Complete Stock of Dry Goods and Notions to Supplement Ready-to-Wear

Opening Date Not Yet Announced But Event Will Take Place Within Six Weeks

All impression having gotten aboard to the effect that the Thief River Falls store of the Sapero company would soon be closed in order that the entire attention of the members of the concern might be devoted to the Hibbing branch, C. S. Sapero, local manager deems it advisable to announce that so far from abandoning this field it is the intention to extend the business and add greatly to the lines carried.

The business has in the past been conducted as a strictly ready-to-wear enterprise and this continue to be the firm's leading offering. In addition there will be installed a full line of dry goods, notions and other allied wares, turning the place into a full-fledged department store. The exact date of the opening has not been announced but it is hoped the change can be made in about a month.

The Sapero store has always been one of the very best in the entire region and the announcement that it is to be converted into a department store will meet with approval on the part of its many customers. It has always been the aim of the management to carry the best obtainable in the limited line heretofore carried and this policy will be continued under the enlarged plan. C. S. Sapero will remain as the active head of the concern in Thief River Falls, the only change, being the addition of numerous classes of goods, with greatly augmented facilities for service.

The store will remain in its present quarters in the Citizens bank building, this being one of the best locations in the city, and a strong bid will at once be made for a share of the trade of this neighborhood. Whether or not anything outside of women's wear, dry goods and notions will be included in the lines offered under the new arrangement Mr. Sapero is not in a position to announce at this time. One thing is certain, however. The Sapero company is not leaving the city but rather taking steps to become more firmly entrenched here than ever.

Lands Big Contract

Isak Helseth of the Minneapolis Bridge company, returned the latter part of the week from Cass Lake and Spooner where two large bridge building contracts were awarded the Minneapolis company. The structure at Spooner, which will be a 400 foot steel bridge across the Baudette river between Baudette and Spooner, will cost $44,850, while that in the vicinity of Cass Lake will be constructed at a cost of $23,000.

New Law Firm Will Open In This City Within Month

Palmer Benson and Joseph Underdahl, attorneys, this week purchased the law library and office equipment of the late E. M. Mr. Benson has until the present time been connected with the law firm of Allen & Fletcher, while Mr. Underdahl has been associated with Everett Fraser, both well-known Minneapolis law firms. They expect to be ready to assume practice here within the next 30 days.

The deal was consummated by John Brattrud as trustee of the Stanton estate.

Injured Jumping off Train

The Erskine Echo of last week carried an item of interest to local friends of Rev. A. N. Skogerbo, formerly pastor of the Hauge Synold church of this city but now of Erskine, relating an incident which might easily have ended the pastor's life.

"Rev. A. N. Skogerboe had an experience last Wednesday night that he will not soon repeat. He was about to go north on the Soo flyer and getting to the depot just as the train started out, and thinking that they would stop for water, swung onto the steps which were closed. The train did not stop to take water and there he hung on the outside until he reached Cisco and being unable to hang on any longer had to throw himself off. In making the landing he was considerably bruised but managed to reach the Sorkness home where he was given shelter until today when he was able to be taken home."

BOTH SIDES OF RIVER QUESTION GIVEN HEARING

maintenances, and depreciation thereon as the commission may deem equitable. The proportion of such charges to be paid by any licensee shall be determined by the commission."

My testimony before the court shows that I estimated the benefit to existing and undeveloped water powers as somewhere between $20,000 and $60,000 a year, making a total estimated water power benefit, according to my testimony, ranging from $200,000 to $600,000 when annual benefits are capitalized at 10%. This is to be compared with the government estimate of $240,000.

There is nothing contradictory on the subject of assessments against undeveloped water powers in my report, in my testimony at the recent hearing, or in the statements I have made since that hearing. Mr. Brown has offered no quotations to prove his contention.

If Mr. Brown is so certain that my interpretation of the State Law regarding lump-sum assessments against water powers is wrong I wish he would point out how the District can make a lump-sum assessment and still act in conformity with Sec. 23, Chapter 13, Ex. Ses. 1919, which states that the District Board, "shall not part with the permanent control of the use of the District water."

Regarding the government plan for financing this project I quote further from Document No. 61, "The work of improvement can best be financed by the formation of a Drainage District to comprise all lands which are susceptible of benefit by existing or proposed drainage ditches."

As further evidence that the government engineers expected the water powers and municipalities to pay their apportionment in annual rentals I quote from Page 28, of the same document:

"Municipal water supply would receive benefit at Crookston and Grand Forks. As a tentative measure of benefit, take the 26,000 inhabitants as forming 6,500 families, and assess their benefit at 10 cents per family per month for three ordinary low-water months per year, giving a charge of $1,950 per year, which for the 20 years the land assessment bonds would run would produce $39,000 for the project."

This $39,000 is the first cost apportionment to be paid by the municipalities as an annual charge.

Mr. Brown refers to the "exhaustive study" made by the engineer of the War Department. According to the engineer's own report this is exactly what he did NOT make. He states, "The compilation of authoritative figures on the actual value of the benefit of flow control would require lengthly and detailed study but, estimating roughly, the benefit is— etc."

I trust that these comments may help to get the facts before those people of your community who were unable to attend the recent hearing, and who have not read the several reports on this project.

Very truly yours,
ADOLPH F. MEYER.

Mr. Brown's Answer.

Editor of the Times,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Answering the letter of Mr. Meyer, Consulting Engineer, dated Jan. 1, 1923 concerning the Red Lake project, probably appearing in this issue of your paper, will say that the whole communication is a mass of misstatements of fact, and of grasping at a straw, in a vain endeavor to justify Meyers in this nefarious plan of having a power dam and channel of huge benefit to the Water Power Interests, constructed complete and financed solely, so far as initial cost is concerned, by the farmers and farming lands along the channel.

It is inconceivable to the writer that honest men who know the facts of this unholy thing can still attempt to impose this unjustifiable burden upon the farmers' back, while the water power interests, in their entrenched power, sit silently by and applaud the efforts of this self constituted advocate.

Meyers must be self constituted in the interests of the power companies because in his communication he says he never received a dollar from these power companies, and thus it is impossible that Mr. Meyers is bought in advance, or is working in the interests and with the consent of the power companies.

As a matter of fact the communication is buncombe and propaganda pure and simple, aimed to throw dirt in the farmers' eyes, while the power interests are getting away with the goods.

Mr. Meyers is in error when he states that he testified the capitalized benefit to power interests would be between $200,000.00 and $600,000.00. His figures were "between $50,000.00 and $160,000.00." Every farmer present knows that, and the court records show it and they further show that when Meyers was being closely cross examined as to these figures, he flew to the usual port of storm of the expert when cornered on the witness stand, namely, he took refuge behind technical terms and trade expressions till he got his second wind.

Mr. Meyers tries to cloud the water further by quoting a clause in the war engineer's report concerning municipal water supply and then by reasoning therefrom, adducing some inference or evidence that will support the unrighteous plan proposed as regards the power companies.

Mr. Meyers should be able, even through his highly colored glasses, to see that municipalities are the people themselves, glad and willing to pay for benefits received, while the power interests he argues for are bands of private parties seeking to get something for nothing.

Mr. Meyers denies that the war department engineers made exhaustive study. All we have to say in reference to that is that all the testimony of all the engineers on this project showed that their own examination was very meagre and that they all relied upon the survey and report of the war engineers previously made. In fact Mr. Meyers himself testified that he never saw Red Lake or Red Lake River near the lake but two times prior to the hearing, once, several years ago, before this project was under consideration, and once after his employment herein. Mr. Meyers' mind and intelligence must be particularly acute and receptive in regard to Red Lake to enable him in that brief visit to get all the data and information he now has which is of such vast benefit to the power interests involved and of such crushing weight to the farmers' interest that Mr. Meyers employer in this matter, is supposed to represent.

Mr. Meyers sees fit to deny any close relation with the power interests and we are compelled to believe the truth of his statement that his 18 years experience as a hydraulic engineer, only two months were spent in working for power companies.

The writer cannot imagine how Meyers got 18 years experience as a water power engineer unless his relations to the water power interests were closer than his letter discloses, for the reason that it is ordinarily only the power companies who are employing water power engineers, and there is therefore not much opportunity to become highly experienced as such engineer except in the employ of such companies. Mr. Meyers' communication is so earnest along this line that the inference arises therefrom that Mr. Meyers evidently believes that some stigma or reproach would attach to him even if employed in the past by these power interests. We wish to assure Mr. Meyers that such is not the opinion of the writer.

We are glad to know, however, and I am sure the farmers paying the bills will be likewise glad to know, that Mr. Meyers is not contaminated by previous close connection with the power interests.

This will lighten the burden when the farmer, to save his land, has to put a bigger mortgage on his stock to get the money to meet this nefarious assessment or when the farmer has to go down in his sock and get two dollars to pay one dollar benefit for himself and one dollar benefit for the poor water power companies.

The fact remains, which no amount of sophistry or cleverness on the part of Mr. Meyers can remove, conceal or expain, that the conservancy board and Mr. Meyers are back of an unrighteous scheme whereby the benefits of the project accuring to the water power interests, amounting to not less than $240,000.00, accrues and is made possible by assessments upon the farmers' lands only, that the power companies pay no part of the initial cost, and do not help finance the project, that a bond issue by the county based upon these farm assessments alone is the only possible plan of getting the money to pay for the job, while sometime, after the cost is all paid by the farmers, and after the poor farmer has the assessment all paid up, perhaps, the water powers are to be compelled to contribute their share so that this board will have more money to spend elsewhere. It is a beautiful thing to contemplate but, thank God, the will of Mr. Meyers and of the conservancy board is not supreme in this matter and they are bound to fail.

Respectfully yours,
WM. J. BROWN.

NOLAN IS ELECTED SPEAKER OF HOUSE

Forty-Third Biennial Session of Minnesota Legislature Formally Opened.

St. Paul—The forty-third biennial session of the Minnesota State Legislature convened in regular order at the Minnesota State Capitol promptly at the stroke of twelve Tuesday noon.

The Senate was called to order by Lieutenant Governor Louis L. Collins, who began his second term as presiding officer of the upper branch of the legislative body. The Lieutenant Governor was sworn in by a member of the Supreme Court. The matter of naming officers of the Senate, swearing in the newly elected members and getting the routine matters disposed of consumed the entire afternoon, in order that the decks could be cleared for the annual message of the Governor Preus which was delivered to a joint session of the legislature Wednesday afternoon.

In the lower house, Secretary of State Mike Holm called the assembly to order, after which they were sworn in by Associate Justice Holt of the Supreme Court.

William I. Nolan of Minneapolis was elected speaker for the third consecutive term immediately after the members of the 43d state legislature were sworn in at noon. His election ratified the choice of a preliminary conference Nov. 21, and he was supported by practically all house members except those actively identified with the Nonpartisan league.

The rollcall on speaker was: W. I. Nolan, Minneapolis, 90. Carl M. Iverson, Ashby, supported by the Nonpartisan league, 37. L. A. Barnes, Duluth, who nominated himself, 1. C. M. Bendixen, 1.

Session Will Be Unprecedented.

The forty-third session will be unprecedented in some respects. Women will sit in the legislative body of Minnesota for the first time in the history of the state. Four women were elected to serve in the House at the November elections, as follows: Mrs. Mabeth Hurd Paige, Miss Myrtle Cain and Mrs. Sue M. Dickey Hough, all of Minneapolis, and Hannah J. Kemper, of Erhard, Minn.

Several Bills Ready.

Several important bills were already prepared by the Special Committees and were introduced at the early session Wednesday. These are following out the recommendations of the constitutional amendments submitted to the voters at the November election. Five important measures were submitted, as follows:

H. F. 1—Nimocks—Amending the statutes as to exemption from jury duty, to excuse women with families, and to exempt women from service in salacious cases.

H. F. 2—Wilkinson and others of "farm program" committee—Creating a state rural credits commission, and providing for state loans on farm lands.

H. F. 3—Wilkinson and others—Bank deposit guaranty bill.

H. F. 4—Nimocks —Amending speed laws to draw teeth of rural justices and constables, raising maximum speed to 35 miles an hour and putting rural road regulation under highway department.

H. F. 5—Nimocks — Providing permanent registration plan for voters in cities of the firstclass.

Rurals Credits Important.

The principal bill the special agricultural committee will offer will be the rural credits bill under which financial aid will be extended to farmers, as provided in the amendment to the state constitution adopted by the voters at the November election. Representative R. A. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo is chairman of the sub-committee which prepared this bill, as well as being chairman of the special committee. Other members of the subcommittee are W. I. Norton of Minneapolis and O. C. Neuman of Wheaton.

Its provisions provide for appointment by the governor of a commission of three members at salaries of $4,500 a year, to serve three year terms. One will be named for one year, another for two years, and a third for three years. After that, new appointees will be named for three-year terms.

An appropriation of $200,000 will be asked from the general fund of the state, so that the system can be financed during the first two years. When the reserve fund exceeds $210,000 after two years, the amount in excess of $200,000 will be returned to the state treasurer until $200,000 is repaid to the general fund.

Money will be loaned on improved land up to 60 per cent of the assessed value of the property and not to exceed 40 per cent of the insurable value of the improvements. The maximum loan to any one applicant would be $15,000. The amount loaned on improvements at no time would exceed 50 per cent of the amount given on the property. Bonds would be sold from time to time to care for loans approved and would draw not more than 5 per cent interest.

Borrowers would pay 6 per cent on their loans, which would cover the interest on bonds, the cost of operation and the balance to amortize the loans in about 35 years.

Chicago—Police said part of $70,000 worth of Liberty Bonds recovered from robbers were stolen from the First National Bank of Mondovi, Wis.

Rhinelander, Wis.—Thousands of bushels of potatoes, held in storage by Oneida county farmers, are being fed to hogs. Owing to the unusually low prices many growers refuse to sell their crops.

IRREGULAR MILKING IS BAD

Not Only Lessens Output, but Tends to Disturb Functional Activity of Animal.

Early milking morning or evening one day and later milking morning or evening another day not only lessens the output of milk, but tends to disturb functional activity and prevents a maximum yield for the lactation period.

MIXTURE FOR YOUNG CALVES

Ground Corn, Oats, Bran and Oilmeal Is Recommended for Those Under Six Months.

For calves under six months old in good condition and having a soft, mellow hide, a mixture of 30 pounds ground corn, 30 pounds ground oats, 30 pounds bran and 10 pounds oilmeal, fed three to five pounds daily, is recommended.

IT IS NOW OR NEVER

The conservancy and drainage program approved by the commission named to have charge of the matter will go through practically as now planned by that body or not at all. Anyone who thinks the work may be dropped for the present to be taken up at a later date and by some other organization is not very well acquainted with circumstances surrounding the case. If the Red Lake river is to be improved so as to provide an adequate outlet for flood waters it will have to be done according to the plans of the present board or dropped for another half century at least.

The federal government, which has absolute charge of the Indians' affairs, is not likely to look upon another attempt in the same direction with favor and the Indians themselves may not be in the mood to expend a vast sum of money on improving their lands at another time. Water power concerns, now looking for available sites, may not be so clamorous a few years from now—and even if they are, conditions may be so have shaped themselves as to make the present advantageous deal for the district impossible. And, further, farmers along the river will certainly be in no better shape to stand even a small assessment against their lands at a later date—particularly if floods destroy their crops a few times during the intervening period.

The opposition to the drainage and conservancy board's plan looked rather formidable at the hearing, but when analyzed and investigated it does not appear so important after all. Many of the farmers were present to protest under the mistaken notion that the published estimate of benefits where the amounts they would have to pay. It has been explained that the actual assessment would be less than one-third this sum and this has put a different aspect to the case. There were very few among these objectors who would not admit that drainage and flood control were absolutely necessary, but maintained that the cost was prohibitive, basing their statement on the supposition that they would be called upon to pay a sum equal to the entire estimated benefits. With this feature explained a large part of their opposition disappeared.

There is, of course, no knowing at this time what the final decision of the court will be, but it is certain that opposition to the project is rapidly becoming less and the probabilities are that if the petition for the improvement is knocked out now those who have been the most strenuous objectors to the enterprise will be the first to ask to have a movement started asking to have it reopened. It will then be too late. They might better do everything in their power to have the present plans of the board carried out.

WANT'S DIRECT ACTION

The Crookston Times is heartily in agreement with the idea that something should be done without delay to help the farmer out of his present difficulties, but is not at all certain that a more liberal extension of credit is the remedy. In the opinion of our neighbor the farmer is suffering from too much credit already and is now looking for some plan whereby he can pay bills contricted to date rather than for a plan which will permit him to get deeper into debt.

The Times very pertinently maintains that instead of machinery which will permit of his borrowing more money the farmers asks that he be given somewhere near a fair price for his products and that he will work his own way out of the difficulties surrounding him if this is forthcoming. The quickest, surest and safest way to accomplish this, in the opinion of our contemporary, is to establish a guaranteed price for the five great staples—wheat, corn, cotton, wool, and sugar.

The claim that such proceeding would be socialistic is met by a question as to whether it would be any more socialistic for the government to aid the farmers through a direct price-fixing plan than it is to help other industries indirectly by exactly the same means?

This newspaper has steadily maintained that it is no more unreasonable for the farmers of the country to ask to have prices of products fixed by law than [illegible] to ask for [illegible] Crookston neighbor [illegible] Practically [illegible] or another [illegible] way—will [illegible] the railroads— [illegible] reasonable to expect [illegible] industry in the [illegible] likewise at a time when [illegible] but its very life is threatened [illegible] particularly favor [illegible] position to see the fairness of the [illegible] contention.

The farmer would probably be the last man on earth to expect any specific favors from the government, but he has reached a point where he must either be helped or go under. In the latter event he will pull the entire American commercial fabric down with him. He cannot be expected to keep on swimming alone when every other industry is being assisted to keep afloat.

The Crookston paper also has a remedy. It is to fix the price of all staple products in such manner that the farmer would be sure of a certain return after the marketing season is over. It is the surplus which keeps the price down. If a certain price were established for this surplus, applicable on a specified date, the arrangement would automatically establish that price for such staple for the entire year. As an example our Crookston temporary sets forth the following situation:

"Suppose that some time in advance of the planting season the government agreed that after the first of December of that year it would purchase the surplus remaining in the farmers' hands and pay for same at say $1.35 a bushel for wheat of a certain grade, with other grades in proportion, and say 65 cents a bushel for corn. Isn't it a certainty that little if any wheat or corn would be sold that year under that price? If it were found that the surplus of wheat in the hands of the government that year was larger than the surplus of corn the prices could be reversed the succeeding year making a lower price for the wheat surplus and a higher price for corn, thus stablizing not only the price but production as well."

What is there so particularly objectionable to a plan of that kind—outside of the fact that it might be regarded as socialistic? It isn't considered socialistic to protect other industries by a tariff which prevents open competition, and it isn't considered socialistic to advocate the presenting of twenty or thirty million dollars each year to owners of ocean going vessels. The people pay the bill in the end anyway and it is highly probable that so long as they must pay they would as soon their farmers received a share of the subsidy as ship owners and manufacturers. Unless something is done along this line we are liable to find the situation vastly more socialistic than could possibly be the case in the other event.

WE DON'T NEED FATTY

There is a possibility that Fatty Arbuckle may again shine as a moving picture star, Elder Hays having intimated that he might allow the rotund comedian of unsavory repute to disport himself for the public's edification. Hays seems to think that Arbuckle is unjustly treated now that he has been legally acquitted of any complicity in the death of Virginia Rappe. Hays is mistaken.

As a matter of fact the Rappe episode was only the culminating point of a long series of rather questionable proceedings in which Arbuckle is charged with being the leading figure. Long before his arrest the impression was quite general that his morals and habits might easily be improved upon. He is an artist, of course, but there is a limit to the distance even this privileged class may go without getting themselves disliked.

As a test of the judgment and good taste of movie fans it might be all right to let him try to come back. We predict, however, that some manager with more ambition than judgment will be a lot of money out of pocket if he attempts to launch Arbuckle as a popular hero.

A STATE INCOME TAX

The outstanding recommendation in Governor Preus' message is that which would provide a graduated income tax to replace in a large measure the present personal property tax. The governor says: "Every state has a large class of wealthy citizens who, in proportion to their wealth, contribute but little toward the expense of government. In my opinion an income tax will reach this class of citizens more effectively than we are now doing, thus relieving to some extent the present heavy burden on real property." A constitutional amendment will be necessary in order to bring about this change in taxation methods and the governor believes the people should be given an opportunity to vote on it at the earliest possible moment.

This suggestion of the governor's will in all likelihiid meet the approval of all classes except those now escaping their just share of taxation through the inequitable provisions of the present law. The personal property tax as now levied is a farce and imposes a heavy burden on the person of limited means while his wealthy neighbor escapes with a comparatively small assessment in proportion to his holdings.

The governor urges on the legislature the early passage of laws which will put into effect the rural credits amendment adopted by the people at the last election. He asked that support be given to the St. Lawrence deep waterway project, maintaining that farmers of the state sustained heavy losses on grain and potatoes during the past two years because of the lack of shipping facilities.

Practically the entire message is devoted to plans for relieving the farmer. "The adverse conditions which have so seriously affected our farmers the last two years," said the governor, "cannot all be remedied by legislation, but a workable credit system, better marketing and transportation facilities, and a lessened tax burden will give some relief and place agriculture upon a sounder and more profitable basis. Whatever you can accomplish in that direction will be of benefit to the whole state."

Taxation of iron ore [illegible] with intelligence [illegible] in the state. The [illegible] of unduly [illegible] but he is undoubtedly justified in [illegible]. It is impossible [illegible] whole to prosper unless the [illegible] at his feet. This is the idea [illegible] the entire average—and it is sound [illegible]

STICK TO HER

When anyone is desirous of pointing out to someone living at a distance the desirability of this section as a place to settle, the first thing they look for is the creamery statement. This is the one thing when infalibly indicates a community's progress and prosperity. It is a far more reliable business barometer than bank statements and more dependable than factory payrolls. The community with the big cream checks is the one to which people flock, knowing that its prosperity is on a sound basis. Even under the present unsatisfactory farm outlook the man who is making his way with the least difficulty is the one who places his dependance on old bossy. She never fails when given a show and will even prevent a farmer from hitting the skids entirely when given no show at all.

WINTER SHOWS AT CROOKSTON FEB. 5-9

Meetings of Many Organizations Exhibitions and Displays Will Feature Big Show

The next event that looms up in the future is the Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' Week meetings which will be held at Crookston February 5-9. The Minnesota Crop Improvement association will hold its annual seed show also in connection with this event. Outstanding speakers have been secured for the evening programs as well as for the day sessions. Livestock sales will be held on February 8 and 9.

Prominent among the speakers who will attend are Dean W. C. Coffey, H. H. Hildoe, A. J. Glover, A. J. McGuire, A. D. Wilson and a score of others.

The railroads have granted an open rate of a fare and a half for return trip. No certificates are required.

The Red River Valley Song festival will be held on Friday evening, Feb. 9. This will be a men's chorus of 150 voices from ten or twelve communities in this section of Minnesota. Plans are being made for delegations to attend the week's events from every county in the district.

Minnesota State Fair Profits Break Records

The Minnesota state fair made a profit of $82,501.97 on the 1922 fair, according to the report of Thomas H. Canfield, secretary-general manager, filed with Governor J. A. O. Preus at the Capitol this week.

The total receipts of the fair from all sources for the year were $649,720.33. The total disbursements for the year were $546,302.29, which leaves a cash balance on hand of $103,418.04. This is $12,142.76 less than was on hand at the close of the last fiscal year.

Land, buildings and personal property of the fair are valued at $2,560,543.38, an increase in valuation of $75,938.57 over that of 1921. The increase is due to the re-investment of profits in permanent improvements, and additions to the fair grounds plant.

Cash receipts from ticket sales at outside gates, grandstand and horse show were $292,559.50, a decrease of $10,258.50 from 1921. The attendance at the outside gates was 393,444, a decrease of 37,461 under that of the preceding year. The attendance at the grandstand showed an increase of 4,703 over the previous year, the total being 168,296.

A new record for exhibitors was made, 4,720 participating, which was 314 more than a year ago. This increase was partly accounted for by the greater number of boys and girls who participated in the contests in the new Boys' and Girls' Club Work building, more than 800 children being present.

But for the excessive heat the early part of the fair, especially Labor day, the attendance record of 1921 would have been exceeded, Mr. Canfield pointed out. Despite the adverse weather and other conditions that militated against its success, the fair shows a greater profit for the year than any other fair held in the United States, thereby retaining its title of "The World's Greatest State Fair."

Retires From McIntosh Times

The McIntosh Times in its last issue announces a change of ownership and is now published by the senior member of the old firm of Hanson & Snustad. Mr. Snustad, the retiring member, will leave for Roseau to join the Roseau Printing company.

700 Words in Two Minutes

Writing 700 words in two minutes with only three errors, Nathan Behrin, of New York, a state supreme court stenographer, has broken his own world's record for stenographic notation, it was announced at the New York State Shorthand Reporters' convention. The new record was made in a contest.

Behrin's previous record was 277 words a minute for five minutes, with three errors.

HIGHWAY BOND PLAN COMMANDS SUPPORT

Well Informed Leaders Backing Highway Recommendations Before Legislature

The state highway program is commanding the hearty support of all well-informed citizens everywhere in Minesota and results from its adoption will fully justify favorable action, although the proposal does not yet enjoy unanimous approval, Chas. M. Bagcock, state highway commossioner, said on the opening Tuesday of the legislature in St. Paul.

"A few organizations in scattered parts of the state have gone on record against highway bonds, and in my opinion, it is mainly, because they have not had before them all the facts and considerations," said Commissioner Babcock. "The highway department expects to convince the senators and representatives individually that the bond plan is sound and good business and they can easily justify votes for its adoption.

"It will mean more good roads and lower taxes now," Mr. Babcock repeated, "but bond issues alone will make the combination possible. Virtually every taxpayer wants more adequate highways and less taxes and he can obtain both if he is reasonable and applies plain business principles. But he cannot expect to get increased road betterments now if he insists on going on paying yesterday's and tomorrow's shares of the expense as well as today's portion. Bonds are necessary to spread to each year its fair share of the cost of permanent work. Otherwise there is no way to escape paying from current funds the cost of many highway improvements which should have been made in the past and a large portion of those belonging rightfully to the future as much or more than to the present.

"It cannot be made too emphatic that there will not be one cent of tax raise under the bond plan. The bonds must be paid—both principal and interest—from the trunk highway fund which is limited by the state constitution to federal highway aid and motor vehicle tax revenue. Bonds will speed up highway betterments now and slow them up later in order to give immediate benefits in just proportion to present outlays. In no other way can that be done."

Commissioner Babcock said again that a law to allow benefits of the reimbursement plan to counties which have not taken advantage of it is designed mainly to even accounts and put all counties on the same footing. Then the state trunk highway bond money will enable the state to connect up many pieces of county work, to stop waste of maintenance money and to give the man who is paying today his fair share of returns for his money. The general program will provide for hard-surfacing on some heavy-traffic sections where upkeep of gravel is too expensive, he added, but the big mileages as in the past will run to grading and gravel-surfacing.

Commenting on one resolution opposing any additional trunk highway paving, Mr. Babcock asserted that it would have been as reasonable to add that bridges should be built to carry loads no heavier than one ton. A one-ton bridge is just as adequate and economical as a gravel surface on a road carrying 1500 or more vehicles a day as some of the trunk highway system," he said. "Under such traffic the maintenance costs run up to $1,200 or $1,500 a mile each season and it means plain waste of money. The sooner these sections are paved the greater will be the saving of highway funds and the better will be served their users. Graveled roads still carry the traffic on the large percentage of trunk route mileage and only gravel will be used for surfacing there, but it does not follow that gravel is the most economical and satisfactory everywhere—in some instances the reverse is true.

The highway commissioner invited inquiries from taxpayers regarding any phase of highway recommendations which are in doubt, reiterating that when fully understood the legislative program will be universally endorsed.

ONCE CYPRESS FOREST

Stumps of Colossal Trees Found in Washington Excavation.

Preserved Through Period of Time That Antedates Earliest Historical Records by at Least 16,000 Years.

Washington.—"Forty centuries look down upon you," said Napoleon to his army, drawn up before the pyramids in Egypt. In Washington today 200, perhaps 300, centuries look up at you. They look from the stumps of colossal cypress trees that grew 30 feet below the present level of the ground, away back in the geological past when the world was still in the making—even before the age of the last advance of the ice sheet which once covered the northern part of the continent.

When the steam shovelers, who are excavating the great pit for the Walker hotel on Connecticut avenue, began to strike stumps and logs of trees that were neither decayed nor fossilized, they thought they were out of luck, but when the numerous geologists and biologists of Washington heard of the discovery they considered that they were in luck. Groups of scientific men almost daily watch the progress of the excavation and marvel at the manner in which stumps, "knees," trunks, seeds, small branches and even leaves of the "wood eternal" have been preserved throughout a period of time that antedates the earliest historical records by at least 16,000 years.

The trees themselves may represent a thousand years. Their remains are found in three more or less distinct horizontal zones in what was at one time a swamp. Thus it appears that perhaps first one, then another and finally a third generation of giant cypresses, probably at least 200 years old, followed each other as the swamp gradually filled up.

Scores of stumps were found in the excavation, which covers an area of about an acre and a half, that were not less than six feet in diameter. Many were found between six and fourteen feet and the workmen assert that some of the fragments of stumps indicated that some of the trees growing in this ancient swamp were 25 feet thick, though these may have been clumps and not a single stump.

The fiber of the wood is well preserved and easily recognizable as that of cypress. Both sapwood and heartwood are preserved and in some cases even the bark. When first taken out the wood is rather heavy, being completely saturated with water. It is firm and compact, although it saws easily, and splits evenly. After a few days' exposure the water evaporates and the wood becomes very dry and light, and cracks.

The preservation of hundreds of tons of wood through such a long period must be largely attributed to the protection afforded by the water and ooze of the swamp. What happened was that the trees after dying, decayed to the level of the water of the swamp which preserved them from that point down.

Fossil trees of much greater antiquity are not uncommon, but the remains of trees still in the original organic condition, after the lapse of so long a period, are very rare. Sound wood has been found at Pompeii and wooden houses and boats up to a thousand years are not uncommon. Pious churchmen maintain that pieces of the Holy Cross are still extant.

In the National museum here is a piece of skin taken from a mastodon whose carcass was refrigerated in the remnant of a glacier in Siberia. It is pointed out that if the scientists who actually cooked and ate some of this 25,000-year-old meat, had been aware of the cypress swamp in Washington, it would have been possible to have served the mammoth steaks planked on equally antique wood.

Mary Pickford Tomorrow

The millions of readers of Frances Hodgson Burnett's world-loved novel, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," will be delighted to know that Mary Pickford in reproducing the story for the screen has preserved all its quaintness and charm, and has been especially faithful to the costumes and manners of the period depicted so vividly by the author.

As a vehicle for the lovely Mary, this story is ideal, running as it does the entire gamut of emotional drama, pathos and riotous comedy. It gives her the greatest opportunity she ever has had for the display of that brilliant genius which has so endeared her to the hearts of Mr. World and his Wife. In this play, scheduled to open Friday and Saturday at the Lyceum she has a chance to let her public see her as a mature woman and also as a boy of seven. In the world of dramatic art what could be more difficult? Not only in the same play but in the same scenes, will this greatest of all screen artists be seen in these two difficult roles.

Through the medium of double exposure, that most baffling of photographic methods, Miss Pickford is able to appear as two different characters in the same scene, thus producing the most perfect illusion possible.

The Victorian dresses, with their puff-sleeves, bustles and long trains; the thatched houses and the magnificent castle shown in this film tend to make it an achievement in pictureland.

And yet who can ever forget the rheumatic old apple-woman, the portly grocer, and the lovable bootblack who were such great cronies of Cedric Errol? The human interest and heart appeal in this picture is said to top anything ever yet translated into celluloid.

Miss Pickford will be seen in a greater variety and a more novel set of costumes in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" than in any play in which she has ever before appeared. The display of women's fashion typical of the eighties will undoubtedly prove very interesting to style devotes, especially when contrasted with the scanty attire of today.

But most appealing of will be Mary Pickford the little boy and Mary Pickford the grown-up woman. The presentation of this feature will be more elaborate than anything yet shown at the Lyceum theatre.

This picture has been recommended by the Parent-Teachers association as one well adopted for children. A large turnout of youngsters is anticipated for this second picture in the series recommended by the association.

"A Tailor Made Man"

Charles Ray will appear on the screen of the Lyceum theatre commencing Sunday and Monday in "A Tailor Made Man," his first United Artists production. This is one of the most important productions of the 1922 season and will display Ray's humanness and versatile talents in an entirely new direction.

Albert Ray, author of several original photoplays in which Charles Ray starred, adapted "A Tailor Made Man" to the screen; and Joseph De Grasse, who directed Ray in "The Old Swimmin' Hole" and "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," directed the production.

The story is the eternal story of Youth clinging tenaciously to an idea and enthusiastically seeing it through; the underlying motif is the belief in the effectuality of good clothes. Replete with wit and gayety, "A Tailor Made Man" carries an undercurrent of serious philosophy. It is said that Jacqueline Logan, Stanton Heck, Eddie Gribbon, Michael Dark, Frank Butler, Charlotte Pierce and others.

Supporting Charles Ray in this, his first venture into the field of the super-production, are: Ethel Grandin in the leading feminine role, Thomas Ricketts, Douglas Gerrard, Victor Potel, Edyth Chapman, Kate Lester, Chapman, Kate Lester, Jacqueline Logan, Stanton Heck, Eddie Gribbon, Michael Dark, Frank Butler, Charlotte Pierce, and others.

Seldom in screen history has a vehicle been selected with so definite a goal in view as was the case in choosing "A Tailor Made Man" as Charles Ray's initial photoplay production for United Artists. It was an ideal choice, as it offers the star an opportunity to display his talents to varied and utmost advantage.

From all advance reports, Mr. Ray as John Paul Bart, presser of clothes in a dingy basement tailor shop, who dares Destiny in a most unprecedented manner, outdoes his most notable past efforts.

It has been found necessary to add several episodes to the original stage play, but the psychology remains the same; and the glory of the whole dramatic piece is that it presents one of the most moving and magnificent figures in modern drama. John Paul Bart is not a superman, is not illogical, is all-too-human; but he has that plus quality within him that carries beyond where the average man would stop. His is the spirit of Youth, unswering and unshaken, sweeping all before it because of its swiftness of execution. John Paul Bart has that implacable faith in a theory; his sheer enthusiasm allows no room for doubt—the eternal distintegrater.

It is not only the tonic quality of "A Tailor Made Man" that makes it an ideal vehicle for Charles Ray, himself the incarnation of the dreamer with the courage of his convictions, but the color. For the story, beginning in a tailor shop, moves rapidly through the domains of commerce, the residences of the socially elect, and the high seas, with a denouement in the little tailor shop. Ray is seen in the humble garb of the clothes-presser and in the toga of the ultra-fashionable; and his role is endowed with wit, charm, and sympathy. The powerful dramatic situations, the underlying philosophy and the strain of ebullient humor throughout, make for a screen story that must naturally bring out the best there is in Charles Ray.

Refuses to Accept Caresses of Husband Till He Bathes

Wichita, Kan.—Charges that his wife refused to accept his caresses and that he was compelled to wash his own clothes for more than a year were made by J. W. Mrs. Owsley replied that she refused to accept his caresses until he had taken a bath, the first, she believed, in several months. The divorce decree was granted to Mrs. Owsley.

YANKS CORRUPT GERMAN POLICE

Chiefs of Two Divisions Complain of Americans Undermining Morale of Force.

LURE TRAFFIC COP FROM POST

Melodious Foreign Prisoners Stir Up Entire Neighborhood to Protest—Jailer Closes Jail and Goes on Joy Ride.

Berlin.—Heads of two police districts in Berlin have complained to Chief Richter that Americans are undermining the morale of their forces. They are unable to combat the sinister influence of the care-free foreigners.

The other night, traffic at the busy corner of Unter den Linden and Wilhelm strasse became hopelessly jammed when two Americans bound toward an expensive restaurant were suddenly stricken with pity for the poor officer who stood in the rain and cold wind managing all the traffic by himself. They invited him to accompany them and, ensconced in a cozy corner of a high-class restaurant, they bought him repeated rounds of Napoleon brandy until the policeman forgot the roaring traffic and passed an hour swapping anecdotes of the war. When he reappeared on his beat where frantic taxicab drivers were untangling their vehicles from a maze of horse cabs and omnibuses, he carried a quart of expensive liquor in his hip pocket. The inspector finally sent reinforcements to unscramble the traffic tangle.

Close Up Jail.

This offense of the Americans followed an early Sunday morning episode of two weeks before, in which a whole station was corrupted. Two Americans after a joyous Saturday night roused the exclusive West End with a ribald singing of some of America's best known barber shop symphonies. They were arrested and taken to jail. Refusing to be irritated by their arrest they prevailed upon one of the reserves to visit a nearby all night cafe and bring back champagne. With each visit of the policemen, who arranged shifts between the station house and the cafe, the melodies became more mellow and the American repertory was varied with the old German favorites.

By five o'clock in the morning the neighbors began to complain and the indignant policemen decided, upon the suggestion of the Americans, to close the jail. Accordingly they repaired to one of the uptown hotels and visiting the rooms of several friends of the Americans, who were to sail for America the same day, pronounced all their passports invalid in such an earnest manner that the sleepy guests were obliged to buy more champagne when the "joke" was discovered.

Chief Is Indignant.

When the chief of the outlying station arrived and found the place locked up he was a bit more than surprised, but when his trusted officers finally returned in taxicabs, still singing snatches of American songs and telling about the "regular fellows" they had in jail the night before, he was astounded and penned an indignant report to the police chief, suggesting that all Americans be made ineligible for at least the quiet, residential district prisons.

Thus far there has been no ruling excluding the visitors from the United States from jails.

MONSTER CAST UP BY OCEAN

Part Whale, Part Turtle, Denizen of Deep, Is Found on Coast of Peru.

Lima, Peru.—The tidal waves which recently devastated parts of the coast of Chile, cast upon the beach a strange denizen of the deep, not seen in many years. Fishermen at Lurin, 25 miles from Lima, reported a huge cetacean floundering in the shallow waters of the bay. They declared it an unknown monster of the sea and said that they had killed it.

The director of the Natural History museum of the University of San Marcos and the official taxidermist made a trip to Lurin for the purpose of studying and classifying the strange visitor. They found an animal with the body of a whale, but with a head and extremities resembling those of a turtle. After examination they came to the conclusion that it belonged to the family of balanidae cetaceans, inhabiting the south Pacific waters. It is supposed that it was carried along by the Humboldt current.

The specimen will be mounted in the museum.

The operation of the factory where the first car was produced is in the hands of a staff said to have been trained in the United States.

Better Cows Increase Earnings.

J. H. Luetmer, of Stearns County, Minnesota, starting in 1913 with scrub cattle, now has a herd producing an average of 350 pounds of butter fat per cow per year, and has a start on a pure bred herd. He is using his third pure bred sire. The first daughter of his first pure bred bull produced 10,-382 pounds of milk containing 402 pounds of butter fat, which was 3,00 pounds of milk more than her dam ever gave. The National Dairy Show to be held October 8 to 15, at the Minnesota Fair Grounds will have many parallel examples to show the benefits of better breeding.

Cows Earn $170,000,000 for State.

The cows of Minnesota, averaging 146 pounds per head of butter fat, produced $170,000,000 for Minnesota last year. The National Dairy Show, to be held at the Minnesota Fair Grounds, October 8 to 15, teaches the use of 400 to 500 pound butter fat producing cows, and if the farmers come to this educational exposition and get its value, dairying agriculture will add another $170,000,000 to the buying power of the state.

Dairying Boosts Bank Deposits.

Growth of dairying in Minnesota has increased bank deposits. Douglas County paid 1,805 creamery patrons $745,553.01 in 1917 for butter fat; in 1918 2,077 received $1,142,757.87; in 1919 receipts of 2,886 patrons totaled $1,810,036.21. The county's bank deposits in 1920 exceeded those of the previous year by $424,590. How this was accomplished will be visualized at the National Dairy Show at the Minnesota Fair Grounds October 8 to 15.

FARMERS' ILLS DUE TO FAULTY MARKETS BUREAU CHIEF SAYS

Co-operation Held Remedy by J. F. Reed in Address Before Annual Convention

Higher prices, which can be obtained through better marketing and distribution, rather than increased production is the great need in agriculture today, said J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation in his annual address before the fourth annual convention of that organization, held this week at St. Paul.

Co-operation, he said, offers the best solution for the problems, and he said "producers' organizations are going forward, in spite of all obstacles." He urged government agencies "supposedly instituted to be of service to farmers" to give more consideration to the marketing problem.

"We have," he said, "rather than over-production, a lack of proper facilities to market and distribute our products. Millions of people improperly nourished and clothed prove this statement.

"There is no disposition on the part of farmers to belittle the efforts of those who have taken over the distribution and marketing of farm products, but we do feel that those who have engaged in such work have obtained greater remuneration than those who produced the product. Such being the case, it is clear to me that our marketing system has failed to carry its share of the burden. Continued production on the present quantity basis is a liability to agriculture."

Farmers, Mr. Reed said, must learn to yield a degree of their independence of action and more truly adjust themselves to their neighbor's needs, if co-operative marketing is to accomplish the greatest possible results.

Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the convention that Farm Bureau activities at the national capitol had saved farmers more than 80 times the money paid as dues to the national organization. "Farmers are holding their congressional representatives to strict accountability," he said.

J. W. Coverdale, secretary of the national organization, discussing the Farm Bureau's job, said the first problem is to keep the movement from following unsound policies that have lead to the destruction of many promising farmer organizations.

Women's interest in the program centered around an address by Mrs. Charles Schuttler of Farmington, Mo., who talked on the importance of the farm home in the movement.

Reports were given by department heads; F. L. French, secretary, V. E. Anderson, treasurer, J. S. Jones, organization, and S. E. Elliott, news service.

The convention heard reports from all farmer-owned terminal sales agencies in the state with which the Farm Bureau is co-operating.

Sweet Clover Seen as Good Forage Crop

Recently in Pipestone county I observed a herd of cattle that were carrying an unusual amount of flesh for cattle that had no feed except pasture, while on neighboring farms most of the cattle were in rather moderate flesh. When the owner of these cattle was asked the reason he led me to a sweet clover pasture. "These 25 acres of sweet clover are the reason, he said. "These 25 acres of pasture have carried 35 animals throughout the season and I never had my livestock in such good condition at the end of the season. With the ordinary native pasture, it ordinarily takes about two acres to carry one animal. I intend to use sweet clover pasture almost entirely in the future."

The foregoing is typical of the experience of farmers here and there throughout western Minnesota, who have been using sweet clover for pasture the last year or two. Occasionally a farmer says he has had difficulty in getting his animals to eat it at the start, but we have heard of no case where there was any trouble when the cattle were turned on the sweet clover early in the spring before the other grasses had made a good start.

Sweet clover, contrary to popular belief, requires an abundant supply of lime in the soil and should be seeded only in those localities where alfalfa is known to thrive without lime. However, it stands wet feet better than alfalfa. In general, the soils of western Minnesota have an abundance of lime, and farmers in that section who have not tried sweet clover for pasture would do well to try a few acres the coming year. It may be seeded with small grain the same as other clover and grasses. About 18 pounds of unsacrified seed should be used per acre while 12 pounds of the sacrified is sufficient.

By sacrified seed, we mean seed that has been put through some machine for scratching the seed coats. Otherwise usually 20 to 40 per cent of the so-called hard seeds will not germinate the first year. Occasionally there are 60 per cent of these hard seeds. It is important in any case to make a germination test so that one may be sure to use sufficient seed to provide a good stand the first year.

If it is desired to pasture the sweet clover more than one year it is well to keep in mind that sweet clover is a biennial, or two-year plant, the same as red clover. However, we have seen several sweet clover pastures that have given good results for three or four years in succession. In this case unsacrified seed was used so that only a part of the plants grew the first year; the rest of them grew the second year and provided pasture for the third year from seeding. It is almost impossible to pasture the sweet clover so closely that it does not seed rather freely, so that if one starts with unsacrified seed he has a continuous crop of new plants that will replace those that die out.

An added advantage to sweet clover pastures is that the price of seed is the cheapest of any of the clocers. There are 2 varieties of biennial sweet clover—the white blossom and yellow blossom. The white blossom is the stronger growing variety and seems to be generally preferred.—W. L. Cavert, agricultural extension division, University of Minnesota.

12 HIGHWAY BRIDGES LET AT LOW PRICES

Contracts Awarded by State Department on Proposals Below Engineer's Estimates

Twelve new bridges in nearly as many parts of the state will be built soon under contracts awarded by Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner

J. T. Ellison, assistant commissioner and chief highway engineer, said wide competition brought prices well under advance estimates. Contracts went to the lowest bidder in each case, he said, except one where the next lowest was decided the best proposal. Mr. Ellison said that work is to be pushed and that the bridges will be put into service without unnecessary delay. The awards:

T. H. No. 1—In Owatonna, over Straight river, 1200-fot concrete bridge, 24-foot runaway and 8-foot sidewalk, to the Widell Construction Co., Mankato, at $19,989.

T. H. No. 5—At LaSeur, over Minnesota river, 400-foot steel bridge, creosoted wood block floor, to Wausau Bridge Co., Wausau, Wis., at $52,188.

T. H. No. 17—South of Marshall, double 20 foot concrete slab span, 20 foot runaway, to Bladholm Bros., Marshall, at $3,998.

Three other bridges, together with 3 miles of grading and culverts, on Trunk Highway No. 12, went to the George J. Grant Construction Co., St. Paul, on a low bid of $53,715.

Proper Feeding Will Reduce Pig Losses

Summary of a survey carried on last season by H. G. Zavoral of the university livestock extension force shows there was a loss of 32 per cent of pigs before weaning on 337 Minnesota farms. Much of this loss could be traced, says Mr. Zavoral, to improper feeding of brood sows, inadequate shelter, and general neglect. The general tendency to rely too much on corn as a constant ration for brood sows contributed materially to the heavy mortality among the new litters.

"Where too high a percentage of corn is fed to brood sows, the pigs are not likely to have normal strength and development when farrowed," says Mr. Zavoral. "Corn is all right for fattening, but it must be reenforced with other feeds and a mixture for muscle and bone building. Proper food is not all, for along with it the breeding stock should have good, clean quarters and opportunity for daily exercise."

Mr. Zavoral suggests the following rations for brood sows and gilts: (1) Corn one-half, oats one-half, tankage 8 per cent. (2) Corn one-third, oats one-third, shorts or middlings one-third, skimmilk. (3) Barley one-half, oats, one-half, tankage 8 per cent.

"The amount to be fed depends upon the condition of the sows," he says. "Ordinarily two pounds of grain for 100 pounds of live weight is sufficient. Gilts require more feed than mature sows. A good quality of alfalfa or clover hay and a mineral mixture should be self-fed. A mineral compound of one-third limestone, one-third salt, one-third bonemeal with one-half ounce of potassium iodide for 100 pounds of mixture has given satisfactory results."

Crookston-Gonvick Road Open

The snow storms early in the month have not blocked all roads to motor traffic as many people have been lead to believe. Geo. T. Hamery, president of the Farmers State Bank and Alfred Gulseth motored here this week from Crookston, covering the distance in about 2½ hours. They found the roads in better shape for auto travel than they themselves had anticipated, the only bad place encountered being between Gonvick and Winsor where they were obliged to break several drifts.—Gonvick Banner.

Sugar Beet Production Factor in Valley Industries

The Grand Forks Herald in reviewing the business and agricultural conditions of that vicinity, says, regarding the sugar beet industry, which is growing in importance also in this community:

Sugar Beets a Factor

"During the year the sugar beet industry assumed a place of importance for the people of this city and the vicinity; more than 1,200 acres were planted to sugar beets between here and Fisher, and in practically all cases where the experiment was an innovation, excellent profits were realized. Preparations are now being made for planting an acreage double of that planted during 1922, and in time to come, efforts now in progress may succeed in inducing the Minnesota Sugar Beet company of Chaska to erect a branch plant either in this city or somewhere in the immediate vicinity.

Poultry Shipments Increasing Says Crookston Times

That the raising of poultry is becoming an important item in farming operations in this section of the Red River Valley and is adding many thousands of dollars of agricultural income is shown by the increase in shipments during the past three months.

Poultry shipments made at Crookston and other points in the Red River Valley during this time have been more than double any previous year. And the prices have ranged uniformly good. The same may also be said of eggs which have furnished a profitable income and ready money during the summer and fall.

This is a region of agricultural diversification, the importance of which is becoming more and more recognized the past few years and it has done much to relieve the distress that prevails in agricultural pursuits.

University Extensive Service

Could not our community profit greatly by taking advantage of the many opportunities for entertainment and education offered through the General Extension Division of our University at Minneapolis? The Extension Division is built up primarily to extend to every community over the state the advantages in entertainment and education that are common in the University. It has built up one of the best Lyceum circuits in the state. It has hundreds of educational and entertainment films for distribution. It conducts a Drama Service Department to aid towns such as ours in putting on home talent plays. Lecturers from every department in the University are available through the Extension Division, and an expert Community Service organizer is now being sent out from there. About two hundred courses are offered by correspondence study and can be carried on here at home

Within the next few weeks a representative from the Extension Division will be in this vicinity to explain in detail every branch of their service and co-operate with us in every way possible. Let us be ready to take advantage of his visit, and of we want any specific information drop a word to the University requesting the representative to bring it to us.

Willard's Statement

E. V. Willard, state commissioner of drainage and waters, has given the Red Lake project much thought and study. He states that "The average annual benefits to present developed powers from the proposed project will range from $5,000 to $15,000. This amount will be increased by such annual rentals as will accrue from benefits to be derived from additional powers that may be developed in the future. Assuming for the purposes of this discussion that few, if any, additional powers will be developed in the twenty year period during which the district's bonds will have to be retired, and placing the average annual rentals that may be collected from the powers at a conservative estimate of $10,000 the amount that will accrue to the district from power rentals during the period in which the cost of the original project has to be paid will be $200,000. This compares with $169,400, or the amount that the powers sholud pay during the same period as their share of the costs, should the district adhere strictly to the percentage of distribution recommended by the War Department in House Document No. 61.

It should not be forgotten that the right to charge for the beneficial use of the additional or better regulated flow of waters furnished the powers does not pass out of the hands of the districts by and with the full payment of the original cost. It will continue indefinitely and it does not require the services of a mathematical wizard to determine that in the near future,—a future not so "dim" either to those whose vision enables them to see the needs of a fully developed northwestern Minnesota—when the annual income to the Red Lake Drainage & Conservancy District from powers alone may reach $50,000 and over.

No one knows better than the attorney for the objectors that it is neither rational or legal to attempt to assess benefits against water powers where no powers exist. Conversely he knows that the benefits which may be assessed against existing powers at this time as a fixed amount will represent the only revenue that the district may expect from the water power interests. No land owner to whom this matter is presented on its merits will have any doubts as to which play will bring the greater results from the powers.

Without reference to the merits of the project as a whole, or to the advisability of undertaking its construction under present economic conditions, a fair and accurate presentation of the district's position with reference to its plan for collecting power benefits and of the advantages which may be reaped by the land owners by the adoption of such a plan, is due the board."

Editor Times:

Regarding the Red Lake River Drainage project, we are rather surprised at the stand the two farmers writing in the last issue of The Times, have taken.

And it may be of interest to others to know that one lives in the extreme west end of the system and the other in the east, and further more Mr. Bjornerna is not assessed on the Red Lake River project at all, and neither is about one half of the signers of a petition printed in The Times some time ago.

But it is an assured fact that all humans are more or less selfish, and therefor we can not blame Mr. Bjornerna and the others, if they can get something for nothing, that is of benefit to them at the expense of the other fellow, they are going to work for it. But is it fair to tax a large territory or numbers of farmers who already are taxed to the limit, for to benefit a few—say less than five per cent of those assessed—and probably some large outside concerns, which we have no assurance of as yet, that they will ever pay one cent to this project?

In regard to Mr. Hofdal we should like very much to know who gave him the promise of adjustment in assessments and who has at this time authority to give such promise as most of us here in Highlanding Township are in need of adjustment in our assessments.

We will in conclusion go on record as being opposed to this project on general principals for this reason that it is a known fact that this Flood Control Project is of indirect benefit to the entire length of the Red Lake River basin and tributary thereto. But only a small portion in the extreme east end, least able to pay, is left to pay the entire cost of the project, with, as above stated, only five per cent of them directly benefitted.

Here's One in Favor

Rhoda, Minn., Dec. 27, 1922.

To The Times:

On account of sickness I was not abe to attend the drainage hearing of the Red Lake River, therefore, I hereby kindly ask you to use your best efforts to have the Red Lake and Red Lake River improved.

I have 470 acres of fine land along the Red Lake River which is rendered worthless by the overflowing of the said river. Many of my Deer Park neighbors also favor the project although they did not attend the meeting.

That selfish "bunch" that is opposing the project will some day wake up and be ashamed of the stand they took in this matter.

Hoping that the good work already done by the drainage board will not be in vain, I am,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) John L. Radniecki.

Stephen Merchants Decide to Establish Cash System

With the beginning of 1923 several of the leading merchants of Stephen have adopted a strictly cash system abolishing the 30-day credit system formerly in vogue.

The merchants entering the agreement in a published statement declare the 30-day system to be a failure. They hope, according to their statement, to be able to give the customers the benefit of the gains accruing from the new system.

Cat's Tail Frozen To Window

Numerous "once upon a time" stories have been told of animal tails being frozen to the ice or to some object, but here is an incident that occurred recently at Bemidji, absolutely modern and will meet with the approval of even the little flapper. Pussy sat on the window all of the Bemidji Automobile company all day, but not because she wanted to. Employes of the garage saw the cat there in the morning and paid no attention to her. Late in the afternoon they saw she was still there, and then an investigation ensued which revealed that the animal's tail was frozen fast to the window sill, the water dripping from the second sash above having completely enbedded the tail in ice. Pussy was chopped loose and adopted. Now she get's milk three times per day and is much at home at the garage.

A Pessimist's View of Rhym

Strike and the world strikes with you; work and you work alone. Our souls are ablaze with the Bolshovik craze, the wildest that ever was known.

Groan, and there'll be a chorus; smile and you make no hit; for we've grown long hair, and we preach despair and throw you a daily fit.

Spend and the gang will cheer you; save and you have no friend, for we throw our bucks to the birds and ducks, and borrow from all who'll lend.

Knock and you'll be a winner; boost and you'll be a frost; for the good old ways of the pre-war days are now from the program lost.

Strike and the world strikes with you; work, and you work alone; for we'd rather yell and raise blue hell than strive for an honest bone.

Rant, and you're a leader; toil and you're a nut; 'twas a bitter day when we pulled away from the old time work day rut.

Wait, and there'll be a blow up; watch and you'll see a lump; and the fads and crimes of these crazy times will go to the nation's dump—Ex.

Heard of a Highlowbrow?

S. Jay Kaufman, of the New York Globe, has invented a new term to designate the hospitable minded man—(women might be included.) He calls him a highlowbrow. He says the highbrow is a man educated beyond his capacity and a lowbrow is a guy who hates a highbrow, while a highlowbrow is just a regular fellow who tries to get good out of every good thing.

Trinity Ladies' Aid Closes Successful Year

The Ladies Aid of the Trinity Lutheran church held their annual meeting last Thursday afternoon and closed one of the most successful years in the annals of the Aid. Thruout the past year the Aid was very active which is plainly indicated by the fact that on income of over $1500 was realized during 1922. In addition to local expenditures, $260 was given to missions and $150 to the ministers' pension fund of the Lutheran church.

The show their appreciation of the efficient and faithful services of the officers, the members of the aid accorded them a raising vote of thanks. Mrs. E. A. He will remain in Thief River Falls during the home service drive which it is expected will terminate the latter part of the week, or whether the full quota has been secured.

The couple, both of whom are doctors, made their home and practiced in Greenbush for some time and by their departure leave Greenbush without a physician. It is expected, however, that someone will take up their practice in the near future.

Black's Sweet Shop Was Robbed of $20 Sun. Night

Someone quite familiar with Blacks Sweet Shop made a getaway with change amounting to the sum of $20 last Sunday night after the place had been locked up and left by the proprietors.

It appears that some youngster had entered the basement during the early part of the evening, hiding there until the proprietors had closed and left, which was not until about midnight. The change, part of which was in a purse and part in a box, and each put away in places known only to those familiar with the place, was cleaned up but no attempts had been made to take any merchandise or enter the safe, indicating that it was some youngster. Another proof of this were the footprints of the culprit in leaving the basement thru the back door. The basement door which had been locked in the evening was found unlocked in the morning, evidently having been opened from the inside.

Investigations have been made by the police but so far no clue has been found to the robbery. Indications are that only one person was connected with the theft, and the authorities have hopes of his apprehension.

Benjamin Gulseth was brought to the Swedenburg-Bowers hospital clinic from Benwood last week, having had one hand all mangled up in a saw while sawing wood at his farm home. He was given immediate medical attention and altho the hand and fingers were quite badly cut up, no amputations were necessary and the young man is improving rapidly considering the injury. Trainmaster Keene To Cities

H. D. Keene, for the past five years trainmaster of the local yards of the Soo railroad, has been promoted to trainmaster in charge of terminal at Minneapolis and entered upon his new position the first of the year. He is succeeded here by J. C. Toms, a freight conductor, who has been acting trainmaster on the Duluth-Superior division and others, and will move here soon with his family, at present residing at Crosby, Minn.

Mr. Keene has not moved his family to the mill city yet but will do so as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. The many friends of the family regret to see them leave Thief River Falls having been residents of the city for several years, and have taken an active part in the activities of the town. Mr. Keene was made local trainmaster in 1918 and has been an official of the highest degree, well deserving of the promotion.

Stork Has Busy Year in Thief River Falls 1922; Death Number Decreases

According to records available in the office of the registrar Dr. J. Beiderman, there were 143 births in the city of Thief River Falls during 1922, of which number 70 were males and 73 females, the girls leading by a small margin of three. This is an increase of seven over the number of births in the previous year, there being only 136 in 1921.

During the past year 63 deaths were recorded in the city, which is less than one half of the births, making an increase of 80 in the population of Thief River Falls. The death rate in 1922 was lower than during the previous year when there were 71 who passed to the great beyond.

Persons who were in the military or naval service during the World war may obtain death and disability insurance from the government up to the amount they carried in the service, maximum ten thousand dollars.

FINAL DRIVE TO GET SALVATION ARMY ALL QUOTA

Determined Effort Will Be Made to Raise Balance of $2700 Needed For Work Here

Prominent Men and Women Unite to Assist in Covering City for Donations

Mayor Bratrud Has Designated January 14 to 20 as Salvation Army Home Service Week

Members of the Salvation Army Executive Committee have vowed they are determined "to stay with the campaign" until every resource in raising the $2,700 quota necessary to support the Thief River Falls Salvation Army Corps has been exhausted.

Out of the $2,700 needed for 1923 work only $285 has been subscribed. This is due to the fact that reports trom workers have not even "commenced to begin" coming in.

Therefore, an official "kick-off" meeting is to be held at the Elks Club Thursday evening for all of the fifty campaign team captains, and in united effort they will put the campaign over the top on the dates of January 14 to 20, being the week set aside by Mayor John Bratrud as Salvation Army Home Service Week.

Canvassers Determined

The campaign is in the hands of 50 of the most prominent business and professional men of the city who have their supplies in readiness for action on Monday morning. The organization consists of: J. S. Arneson, Chairman; Judge N. W. Tarrant, Vice Chairman; W. W. Prichard, Jr., Treasurer; Theo. Quale, Advisory Board Chairman; C. H. Jung, Carl Christofferson, Alfred Bredeson, Nels Christiansen, T. M. Thronson, Carl Froseth, E. J. Rustad John Morgan, C. B. Larson, Dr. Milan, C. D. Gustafson, T. P. Anderson, W. J. Brown, L. R. Johnson, Thos. Austad, and others.

Mrs. F. E. Hunt has been named by the American Legion Auxiliary to form a sufficient organization to thoroughly cover the residence districts on the campaign.

A whirlwind campaign will be conducted by the Team Captains next week so that the objective of $2,700 will surely be reached.

"There is no thought of discontinuing the campaign until the full $2,700 quota has been raised" was the statement issued at campaign headquarters last night. "The organization doing the tangible good work right in Thief River Falls that the Salvation Army is doing on the very limited amount of money they have had to do with, surely must receive the hearty financial endorsement of representative citizens."

NINETY-SEVEN GET LICENSE TO MARRY DURING PAST YEAR

Records Show One Divorce Granted in County For Every Twelve Marriages

According to official records in the office of Adolf Eklund, Clerk of Court, 97 marriage licenses were issued in Pennington county during 1922. This number is 14 more than the preceding year when only 83 licenses were issued, which was the lowest number recorded since the organization of the county. 1920 however, proved to be a record year, a total of 126 couples receiving permission to marry thru the Pennington county office.

Clerk Eklund says October and December were the busiest months for Dan Cupid in the past year, with 13 and 12 marriages, respectively, while June which is considered a very popular month had only 10. March and April were light months of 5 licenses each. The complete record of the number of licenses issued during each month in 1922 follows: January, 6; February, 7; March, 6; April, 5; May, 5; June, 10; July, 8; August, 11; September, 7; October, 13; November, 7; December, 12.

The number of marriages per year in the county since its organization is as follows according to clerk of court records: 1911—94; 1912—106; 1913—96; 1914—116; 1915—123; 1916—120; 1917—110; 1918—102; 1919—107; 1920—126; 1921—83; 1922—97.

During the past year 8 divorces were granted in Pennington county according to available records in the office of Clerk of court Adolf Eklund. This is one separation for every 12 marriages during the year, there being 97 marriage license issued. This however, compares favorably with Grand Forks, for instance. In Grand Forks county, according to the Herald yesterday, there was one divorce for every seven marriages in 1922. During the year 267 marriages were performed in the county while 38 divorces were granted.

The Herald says, "There seems to be no particular rush time for divorces owing, perhaps, to the variance in causes for divorce. Desertion, it is reported, seems to be popular in the springtime, while charges of cruelty are said to arise in the winter months."

It appears that Hollywood is not the only place where divorces are desired.

FARMERS INSTITUTE WILL BE HELD HERE 2 DAYS NEXT WEEK

Problems of Farmers Will Be Discussed Under Auspices of County Farm Bureau

The Pennington county Farmers Institute will be held Thursday and Friday of next week, Jan. 17 and 18, sessions at Thief River Falls to be held Thursday at the Commercial Club Rooms. On Friday the institute will be continued at Goodridge or Mavie, the committee in charge not having decided defitely at the time of this publication.

The institute, which is held each year for the purpose of discussing and familiarizing those who attend with various farm problems rising in this industry in this community in particular, is sponsored by the local Farm Bureau county agent J. J. McCann being in direct charge. The institute will commence at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and will inlude a varied and instructive program.

Every farmer in this section should avail himself of this annual opportunity to get together with fellow farmers to discuss dairy questions, farm management, feeding and innumerable other things that come up in the successful operation of a farm. Interesting demonstrations will be made and a prominent speaker will be secured for the occasion to address the institute. It has not been decided definitely who will be here, the management conferring with several well known and able speakers at the present.

Institutes of this nature have proved of interest and value in former years and it is anticipated tht this one will be no exception. If the weather is favorable a large delegation of farmers in the surrounding vicinity are expected to be in Thief River Falls next week.

Florence and Walter Lindell left Saturday night for the cities where they will be employed.

BOND ELECTION FOR BRIDGE TO BE HELD MAR. 6

Voters will Determine if $60,000 is to be Invested in Third Street Bridge

Council Submits Matter Following Presentation of Petition With 300 Singers

Structure Would Serve People Living North of Bridge Street on East Side

A special election will be held in Thief River Falls Tuesday, March 6, for the purpose of voting on a $60,000.00 bond issue, the money to be used to cover the cost of constructing a bridge across Red Lake river at Third street. This was decided at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening.

Council Petitioned

This action by the council was taken in response to a petition signed by about three hundred citizens several weeks ago. Plans and specifications were prepared and the cost estimated by engineers at somewhat less than $60,000.00 and the matter will now be submitted to the citizens for their approval or rejection.

Result of Long Agitation

The proposed bridge would be built across the river at the foot of Third street just two blocks north of the Bridge street structure. It would serve the people on the east side of the river living north of Bridge street. Agitation for this undertaking has extended over a period of years and the matter has now reached a point where the voters will make a decision. It is likely that arguments both for and against the building of the bridge will be presented before the date set for the special election.

Pay Fines for Being Drunk and Disorderly

Ben Thompson who resides on the East side, paid a fine of $15 in Municipal court Saturday, having been arrested the previous evening by night patrolman Ralston for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He engaged in a fight in Bennie Vigen's place on Friday night and Ralston put him in jail where he remained until the next morning when he was brought before Judge Tarrant.

Carl M. Lee, a farmer south of the city, was also fined $10 in municipal court Sunday, having been arrested the night previous by Patrolman Ralston and jailed on charges of drunkenness. The next day when he appeared before Judge Tarrant he was given a sentence of $10 or ten days in jail, the fine being paid.

Fargo School of Business Repurchased by Founder

The Fargo School of Business has been sold to Prof. H. H. Aaker, founder and owner of the school when it was known as Aaker's Business college, for $10,000 by Prof. O. J. Hanson, its present head, according to an announcement made last week.

Prof. Hanson has been head of the school since the fall of 1918, having purchased it from Mr. Aaker in the spring of that year. Since that time Mr. Aaker has been in Grand Forks where he has conducted the Grand Forks Business college of which he is the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaker are moving to Fargo and Mr. Aaker will manage the Fargo school personally while Prof. W. P. Rognlie, who has been a partner of Mr. Aaker's for the past three years in the Grand Forks school will be in charge of that school.

Hurt When Kicked by Horse

Aldrick Anderson, a farmer living near Badger, was kicked by a horse and received a broken arm and other injuries about the arms and body. The man was working in the barn and suddenly the animal began kicking. Mr. Anderson was not able to get medical aid the same day but had to travel to the village the next day for treatment.

A Better Use for Moonshine

There have been recorded many and various ways of conserving water, but it remained for a South Carolina town to adopt the most novel method. On account of a long drouth, street sprinkling was abandoned, but in order to reduce the dust, moonshine whisky, thousands of gallons of which the officers of the law had been compelled to destroy after confiscation, was used in place of the water. Contemporary history does not relate how many of the citizens were found on their knees in the streets during this period.

Plummer Hotel Totally Demolished by Flames

A disastrous fire Tuesday, Jan. 2, completely destroyed the Plummer hotel owned and operated by S. J. Rice. The fire started in the second story from an unknown origin about 10 o'clock in the morning and within an hour the building was burned to the ground.

The fire engines were on the ground within a few minutes after the bell was rung, but it seems they were not in proper shape and could not be used. However, the people got busy and saved practically all of the personal property on the ground floor and some in the second story.

It was fortunate that there was no wind or it would have been almost impossible to save the telephone office and Kramer's restaurant and Rice's ice house and other buildings. The building and contents were partially covered by insurance.

Hansen on Four Committees

In committee appointments Senator C. L. Hansen was named for four important committees. He will serve on the agriculture, drainage, banks and banking and finance committees. These are four very important committees and in serving on them Senator Hansen will be in a position to work hard for a number of the progressive measures in which he is interested.

LAUNCH MOVEMENT FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF Y. M. C. A. HERE

Basement of Library Offered by Board For Use of Organization in Getting Started

The movement launched here recently for the establishment of a Young Men's Christian Association in Thief River Falls, is now well under way, the initial plans at present being in the hands of a committee composed of Supt. I. T. Simley, C. D. Gustafson and H. E. Nelson, of which Gustafson is chairman.

A meeting of a few interested persons was held at the library basement last Thursday evening and the matter discussed, resulting in the selection of the committee who will canvass the situation and propose plans for organization at a later meeting. While in the cities this week chairman Gustafson will confer with the state secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

The need of something of this nature has long been felt by the citizens of Thief River Falls, previous attempts having been made to get an organization started. The object will be to provide a place for the proper enjoyment for young men, the kind and nature of the entertainment to be provided considered quite a difficult problem to cope with, as opinion varies greatly in this respect. Every one agrees that the young must have recreation but the problem is to furnish the right kind and creating the proper environment.

The library board has consented to furnish the basement of the library building as a headquarters to start with, in order to lighten the initial financing of the project.

Plans Made for Building New Creamery at Roseau

Activity in the dairy industry in this section is indicated very strongly by the construction of several new modern creameries. A new structure will be erected in Thief River Falls this year and according to reports, definite plans have been made for the building of a new creamery at Roseau as soon as work can be started in the spring.

The construction will cost, according to present plans, about $10,000, will be thoroughly modern and patterned after the creamery building at McIntosh.

Ulen has also completed the building of a new creamery recently. At several other places also, plans are being made for further building during the coming year to properly take care of the increasing volume of dairy products.

Auto Club Will Hold Annual Meeting Monday

The Pennington county automobile club will hold its annual meeting at the commercial club rooms in Thief River Falls on Monday evening, Jan. 15, at 7:30 o'clock, announce president Stebbins and secretary Bennes. There will be election of officers for the ensuing year and transaction of other important business matters connected with the club. Plans will also be made for the coming year. The club is entitled to one delegate to the State Automobile association meeting at St. Paul which is held Feb. 6, who is sent at the expense of the state association, and this delegate will be selected at Monday's meeting. All members are urged to be present.

Many Wolf Bounties in Itasca

A considerable sum was paid to trappers and hunters in Itasca county last year, according to an article in the Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

During the year 1922, $4,102.50 was paid out to hunters, trappers and others in Itasca county who bagged one or more wolves during the 12 months, according to figures compiled by E. J. Whaling, deputy auditor. Of this total, the state pays $2,436 and the county $1,066.50.

There was a total of 329, of which 156 were male wolves, 166 females, and seven pups. The greater number of wolves are shot or trapped during the winter months, according to the deputy, so that the number of pup wolves brought in for bounty is very small as compared with the number of grown wolves.

Already this year several trappers have brought in hides for the bounty and indications point to a new high record for the number captured during the early months of this year, as there are a large number of trappers throughout the county this winter.

COUNCIL TAKES OPTION ON DAM FOR 5 MONTHS

Provides For Purchase of Property Any Time Within Period For $50,000

Engineers Will Be Employed to Make Survey of Other Possible Power Sites

Final Action Will Depend on Possibilities Shown By Findings of Experts

The city council at its regular meeting Tuesday evening voted to take an option on the dam for a period of five months. The option gives the city the privilege of purchasing the property any time within that period for the sum of $50,000.00.

Action Follows Mass Meeting

This action followed the mass meeting of citizens held at the Commercial club rooms last week. At that time it was voted to leave the matter entirely to the council to do as they deemed in the best interest of the city.

Will Employ Engineer

It is the intention of the council to secure the services of a reliable engineering firm and have a thorough investigation made of the water power possibilities in this vicinity. Surveys will be made of at least two other sites besides that where the dam is now located. This will be for the purpose of determining where the greatest amount of power can be developed and any action by the council to purchase the dam or buy another site will depend entirely on the findings reported by the engineers employed.

Power Situation Serious

Many regard the power situation in the city as extremely serious and feel that something must be done very soon to prevent a costly breakdown of the present power facilities and provide for the future. The big difference of opinion with the citizens generally seems to be as to whether anything of this kind should be undertaken by the municipality or through private concerns that might be interested in coming in here.

Insane Gully Man Submits When Taken by Six Men

The Gully Advance of last week relates the misfortune of Swen Krogh, a prominent farmer of that community, who became insane recently. The following is the story as it appeared in the Advance:

Last Friday evening Swen Krogh a prominent farmer living north of this village, became mentally deranged and a party, consisting of Rev. Amundson, Oscar Thor, Constable Ivan M. Griffin, Halvor Hovet, Oscar Bourman and Albert Kopperdahl, partly by persuasion and partly by force, succeeded in clothing him at his home, where he was found lying on the bed in a nude condition talking and acting strangely, and showed him to town. At times he showed fighting spirit and it was necessary to make use of ropes. Upon reaching this place he was placed under the influence of a hypodermic and started for Crookston. Harry Melby drove the party consisting of the patient, Constable Griffin, Oscar Bourman, and Halvor Hovet to Fosston where all but Hovet took the train for Crookston.

After a short examination Mr. Krogh was sent to Fergus Falls for treatment.

"The Mollycoddle"

In giving to the public his latest screen effort, "The Mollycoddle," a United Artists release, Douglas Fairbanks presents the most costly motion picture of his career, representing an expenditure of more than a half million dollars. The picture will be presented at the Lyceum Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

The enormous cost of "The Mollycoddle" was due to the star's desire to continue the policy he inaugurated when he became an independent producer and member of the "Big Four." At that time he declared that money would be secondary and that it would be his aim with each succeeding production to eclipse all previous efforts.

Tremendous sets add to the numerous features of "The Mollycoddle" and it was because of the great amount of construction work that was required that this production totalled up to several hundred thousand dollars, more in cost than any previous output from the Fairbanks' studio.

Among the more noticeable of the "sets" in this picture is an exact reproduction of Monte Carlo and the historical and famous Casino, the playground of the world's idle rich.

MEDICAL AUTHORITIES PRONOUNCE COMMON COLD DEADLIEST ENEMY

FORERUNNER OF DANGEROUS DISEASES SUCH AS GRIPPE, INFLUENZA, PNEUMONIA

WARNING TO THE PUBLIC IS ISSUED

"DON'T NEGLECT A COLD—TAKE INSTANT STEPS TO CHECK AND CURE IT."

NEW HOME TREATMENT DISCOVERED

Because the common cold is your deadliest enemy and because by its elimination many lives can be saved each year, a movement is now on foot to persuade every family to provide itself with a suitable remedy. Simultaneously comes the announcement by the Muco-Solvent laboratory of the discovery of a very pleasant ointment, or salve, for home use. This salve, applied in the nostrils, is said to break up a cold at once.

Physicians' records will shew that every year there are needless cases of pneumonia resulting from the neglect of a cold. By the use of this new preparation a great deal of suffering and grief may be avoided. If you have a cold or any member of your family has a cold, go immediately to the nearest druggist and ask for Muco-Solvent Salve. It comes in small glass jars and costs only a quarter.

Simple Home Remedy

There is nothing complicated in its use, neither does it interfere with any medicine you may be taking.

The cold being in its first stages, all that is necessary is to apply Muco-Solvent Salve in each nostril with the finger, then sniff it hard; the nose and head will open immediately and great relief will follow.

Muco-Solvent Salve is very pleasant, soothing and healing, containing as it does oils of turpentine, eucalyptus, menthol crystals, etc., in a base of refined petroleum jelly. It is not greasy nor will it stain the clothing.

If the cold has reached the secondary stage, but has not reached the chest, it is still easily handled. Melt a small quantity in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the vapors that arise. The vapors are very powerful (though pleasant) and will clear the head almost instantly. Repeat three times at fifteen minutes intervals, meanwhile applying salve in each nostril and rubbing on throat and upper lip.

Children's Colds

Children's colds are decidedly more dangerous than those of adults and until Muco-Solvent Salve was discovered probably more difficult to treat because the child's stomach so often rebels against strong medicines. But Muco-Solvent Salve is applied externally and the treatment is so pleasant that the child immediately feels better.

Apply the salves in each nostril, rub on throat and chest then cover the chest with white or red flannel which has been warmed. If this does not show instant results, melt Muco-Solvent Salve in a spoon and let it be inhaled until the nasal passages are opened, then keep them open by applying more salve up each nostril. Keep bowels open with castor oil or any light laxative.

FOR DEEP SEATED CHEST COLDS

Quick Relief Secured by the Use of Muco-Solvent Salve and Muco-Solvent Liquid

Under ordinary conditions children's colds respond at once to this treatment and disappear in a few hours. Great care should be exercised to avoid drafts and wet feet in winter, and when out at play the child's chest should be well protected. Muco-Solvent Salve should be used freely upon the first indications and the coming cold immediately thwarted. Children can learn to use this new salve themselves and for that reason a jar of it should always be kept in the house, especially as it is to be had of any druggist and costs only 25 cents.

Deep seated colds in head and chest must be treated at once. A good laxative must be given and the patient should go to bed. Apply Muco-Solvent Salve to nostrils and rub thickly on chest, afterward covering with warm flannel. Arrange bed covers in such a manner that patient will breathe the vapors from the salve. Procure a bottle of Muco-Solvent Liquid and administer proper dose according to directions at two or three hour intervals.

Quick relief will usually follow this treatment with the patient in high spirits next morning.

DR. L. W. GIFFIN, Neenah, Wis.

Every community has at least one physician whose unselfish interest in the matters of public health should be given recognition. Dr. Giffin specialized in cases of sore throat, croup and diphtheria. He labored incessantly during the epidemic of 1893 and saved many lives. He discovered a means of loosening the phlegm or mucus which gathers in cases of cold, croup and dangerous diseases.

Used Same Prescription for Many Years

Dr. Giffin standardized his prescription and used it in his practice for years. It became known as Muco-Solvent and for many years has been known to druggists in general though not advertised like "patent" medicines usually are. Today Muco-Solvent (liquid) is used as a specific for suppurative and inflammatory diseases of the mucous membrane, such as colds, croup, catarrh, etc. Our readers can get it of any druggist in 75c and $1.50 bottles.

MOTHER

Don't Neglect Baby's Cold. Get Muco-Solvent Quick

Baby's cold can be treated safely and effectively with Muco Salve. Simply apply a little in each nostril. It will vaporize, baby will breathe the fumes, his little head will clear and he will crow exultantly.

Should this not produce immediate results, place warm cloths to the chest to open the pores, then apply Muco Salve thickly, covering with soft flannels. Muco-Solvent Salve has great penetrating properties, and is said to dispel congestion and inflammation.

Bad colds of children and adults are driven out quickly by such common sense treatment without the use of nostrums or harmful drugs. Muco-Solvent Salve is sold by druggists at 25 cents per jar. We are very certain you can get it at Lambert's Drug Store, F. J. Stebbins or J. P. Curtis.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By M. W. Odland

While the newspapers always devote more space and play up with bigger headlines the first week of the legislative session, less important work is done by the lawmakers during that week than is done during some of the later weeks. The opening week of the Forty-third session of the Minnesota legislature brought forth nothing of unusual importance, either from the standpoint of legislation or politics. There have been no really epoch making events, nothing startling or unexpected.

With respect to the organization of both branches, the expected happened. W. I. Nolan, who was placed in nomination for a third term as speaker, by a majority of the representatives-elect at a caucus held November 21 last, was elected by a vote of 90 to 36 over the Non-partisan League and Labor candidate, Carl M. Iverson, the young farmer member from Grant county. In the senate the same old leaders, that for many years have bossed the job, took charge of the organization work, leaving nothing to chance or accident—or Non-partisan Leaguers. It would seem wonderfully strange if F. E. Putnam of Blue Earth, A. J. Rockne of Goodhue, George H. Sullivan of Washington, J. D. Sullivan of Stearns, and one or two others, should not entirely and calmly assume control of the senate at the very outset. It comes so natural for them to do it. And, let it be said, they do it with impressive grace and ability, being among the brainiest men that ever bossed a legislative assembly in the Northwest.

George W. Peachey of Mankato was re-elected secretary of the senate without opposition, and Oscar Arneson of St. Paul was accorded a similar honor in the house. Both are veterans at the job and are highly esteemed by the members without regard to faction. The various committee clerks, door-keepers, and other employees of the house and the senate will not be announced for a few days. There will be from forty to fifty in each branch.

There is every indication that there will be less bitterness of feeling between the League and Labor forces and the "regulars" at this session than prevailed two and four years ago. Both factions realize that something must be done to improve conditions, if such improvements can be accomplished by means of legislation, and they realize also that teamwork and fair play must prevail if they are to succeed.

And the members of the legislature are not the only ones concerned with the affairs of government who realize this. Gov. Preus shows that he has had an awakening by the tone of his biennial message, delivered to the legislature Wednesday noon. It is easily the most progressive, the most statesman-like message presented to the Minnesota legislature since the days of John A. Johnson and can scarcely fail as a spur to action in behalf of the people, by the lawmakers. Foremost among the governor's recommendations are these:

A state rural credits law, providing long-time loans to farmers at a low rate of interest on the amortization plan. Only actual farmers should be granted loans—not land speculators.

A co-operative plan of marketing, especially of grain, should be adopted and the state should render the fullest aid possible to bring this about.

Expenditures for state highways should not be further increased until normal conditions have been restored.

The schools must be aided, as in the past, but "fads and frills of doubtful utility" should be eliminated.

There should be a state tax on iron ore royalties. This would bring in vast sums of money from non-resident capitalists.

A constitutional amendment should be submitted to the people, providing for a state graduated income tax. In such a tax there would be a differentiation between incomes earned by labor and those resulting from investments, and there should be reasonable exemptions.

There should be no further increase in public tax burdens until the taxpayer is better able to meet such an increase.

The introduction of bills began in the house Wednesday and in the senate on Thursday. Rep. Frank Nimocks dropped the first bill into the hopper of the legislative mill in the house; Sen. Jas. D. Denegre of St. Paul did likewise in the senate. Usually about 2500 bills are introduced in the two houses during a session, which means that a great deal of time is wasted in the consideration of impractical or nonconsequential legislation. Rep. N. T. Moen of Fergus Falls has a plan which he thinks would have a tendency to cure this evil. He would limit the number of bills that a member can introduce under his own name to five; if he must needs introduce more, he must get them presented by committee bills.

The League and Labor members have held two caucuses during the week to consider plans and measures. Their program will not be as radical during the present session as it was two and four years ago. Among other things, they propose to fight for the adoption of the following:

Raising the tonnage tax on iron ore from 6 to 10 per cent.

A new tax of 10 per cent on iron ore royalties.

A state rural credits system.

Submission to the people of an amendment to the constitution authorizing state owned storage facilities.

Repeal of the pre-primary convention law.

Repeal of the Brooks-Coleman street railway act.

Repeal of the tax limitation act aimed at the iron range cities and villages, enacted two years ago.

Amending of the state automobile tax so as to provide a fairer taxation as between cheap and expensive cars.

Barring of oleomargarine from the state institutions.

Proper financing of state fire insurance on public buildings.

Consolidation of all public offices and activities so far as possible in the interest of economy and efficiency.

A state cement factory to furnish cement for state highways.

Reduction of the tax on farm improvements and small homes to the fullest extent allowed by the state constitution.

A state hail insurance plan similar to the North Dakota system.

State water-power regulation with a view of preserving this common heritage from private profiteering and exploitation.

For the first time in the history of Minnesota women occupy seats in the state legislature. There are none in the senate, but four in the house. They are: Mrs. Hannah J. Kempher of Otter Tail county; Mrs. Mabeth Hurd Paige, Mrs. Sue M. Dickey Hough and Miss Myrtle A. Cain, all of Hennepin. These fair legislators attracted the lion's share of attention on the opening day and have already won the respect of their male associates because of the good judgment they have shown in refusing to accept special consideration—as, for instance, in the selection of permanent seats. Mrs. Hough won the distinction of delivering the first speech. Strange to say, her remarks were in support of her motion to permit smoking in the house chamber.

The house members of the legislature are the two civil war veterans, John B. Hompe of Deer Creek, and H. A. Wilkinson of Lake Elmo. Mr. Hompe is also a legislative veteran, as well as war veteran, having served during seven sessions in the past, the first in 1889, forty-four years ago.

(Mr. Odland's letters will be a feature of the The Times while the legislature is in session.)

Mr. Aubol Replies to Mr. Brown

St. Hilaire, Minn., Jan. 9, 1923.

To the Editor of The Times:

In last week's paper Mr. W. J. Brown of your city makes a personal attack on Mr. A. F. Meyers, consulting engineer, and upon the drainage board in accusing them of favoring an "unrighteous scheme." He goes so far as to implore the aid of the Almighty when he closes with the words, "Thank God, etc." A more unfair and untruthful accusation against Mr. Meyers and the members of the board has never been made. And to connect the holy name of God with such misstatements is going too far.

The time has come when I, for one, want to speak right out. I know the other members of the board feel the same way if we could but meet and discuss Mr. Brown's unfair methods and unjustified attacks. These attacks will not harm in the least Mr. Meyers, Mr. Walker, the board's engineer, Mr. Boughton, the board's attorney, Mr. Willard, the state drainage commissioner, nor Messrs. Nelson, Selvig, Johnson and Paskewitz, co-members with me on the drainage board, because people know that not one of them would favor any "unrighteous scheme."

Mr. Brown has not denied that he circulated a petition for the Red Lake River improvement that had on it nearly 50 signatures, besides the city council of Thief River Falls and Pennington county board. This petition is on record in the present court case. He will not deny that he made an attack on the drainage board at a commercial club meeting for delays in getting the Red Lake project started. He will not deny that he has, in season and out of season, attacked the drainage board, criticized it, made slurring remarks about its members, insinuated they are all bought by the water power trust (although he is careful to say he has no proof of this). Why all this abuse, why all this mud-slinging?

I thought the court hearing was the place either to prove or to disprove that the river improvement is necessary; that it has been demanded for many years; that the necessary United States law has been passed, permitting the Indian lands to bear their share; that the cost of the improvement is not excessive; that the cost against the white settlers' lands is much less than the farmers had thought would be the case and that the board's plan places the maximum burden possible on the water power companies in selling surplus flood waters to them annually for all time to come instead of giving the present power plants for a small sum, as an initial assessment, the use of increased water flow permanently.

Mr. Brown in arguing for a small present-time assessment wants the board to give the companies the use of increased flow of water absolutely free of charge after their initial payments are made. Or in other words to give them several hundred thousands of dollars. He may succeed in throwing sand into the eyes of some.

The members of the board have studied this matter for over two years, knowing they would have to make a decision. They have consulted several eminent men whose character and integrity no one doubts. As a result the board members know that a much larger share of the cost will be paid by the power companies under the annual rental plan. The United States law requires that plan. The Minnesota law does the same.

Can any thinking person believe that the water power companies will be permitted to use increased flow of water free against a federal law, a state law and five honest, honorable men on the board itself?

I have personally been very sorry that many of my fellow-farmers have evidently been misled. I do not believe I am violating anyone's confidence when I say that at least a dozen farmers interested in this work, came to me after the hearing and urged my support to have the work ordered. One man (I can give his name at any time, under oath, if required) said he was perfectly willing to stand $1000 total assessment. The estimated benefits on his land were $1300 which he said he had been told he would have to pay. Instead of $1300, he would pay only $364, with at least one-half of that paid, before the last bond matured, by the power companies.

Another man who lives in Reiner township when he learned how small his assessment really was, became fearful that the unthinking and selfish agitation against the work might possibly result in its not being ordered. Many others feel the same.

The members of the board have carried on the proceedings according to the law. That they should be accused of being "unrighteous" by Mr. Brown is going too far. I feel like writing more at this point but I am not going into personalities.

My record is open and above-board. I have lived in Pennington county for a good many years. I know what the drainage board has done. The records of its meetings are public property. The Red Lake project was submitted to the court for its decision. The facts have been explained to the people. Whether he wills so or not, Mr. Brown will fail in his purely selfish and personal attack on the board and those who are misled by him will realize their mistake.

I close with these last sentences written carefully and with full consideration: The Red Lake project is an absolute proved necessity. No one has denied this. When completed it will prove to be a blessing. Its final cost to the farmer will be far less than is now estimated. The present calamity-howlers crying against it will be saying, after it is completed and has proved its value, "I helped with this," a few years from now.

Yours respectfully,
Ed. A. Aubol.

Charley J. Nelson

Charley J. Nelson died Friday afternoon, December 29th, at the home of his father, John P. Nelson, in the Crocker Cundy Addition in Roxbury, after a long illness from tuberculosis and asthma.

Deceased, who was thirty-eight years of age at the time of his death, was born at the homestead of his father a mile and a half north of St. Hilaire, and has grown to manhood in this community. He was the only son, and his death at this time when his aged parents depended so much on his efforts and assistance, is particularly sad. While a small infant his mother died, and he was cared for during his first years by Mr. and Mrs. Wash Adams.

After attaining manhood, Charley Nelson engaged to a considerable extent in contract work here. Most of the concrete work about St. Hilaire including some of the new school, stand as monuments of his handiwork. He was well liked by all with whom he associated, and he leaves many friends, besides his aged father and stepmother, to mourn his death.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon by Rev. C. M. Grimsrud from the Norwegian Lutheran church, and interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the former Nelson farm north of St. Hilaire. Sympathy of many friends is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson in their bereavement.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

The funeral was held from the Catholic church and interment made in the Lambert cemetery.

Deceased is survived by four children: Mrs. Marrie Fournier, Adolor Lacoursiere, Joe Lacoursiere, Philrum Lacoursiere and four brothers, Frank Lacoursiere of this village, Philip Lacoursiere and M. Lacoursiere, both residents of Canada, and one sister, Mrs. Staline Lamie of Mass.—Oklee Herald.

After Christmas vacation as after every other vacation there were a number of students who live out of town who did not return to school until half a day or a day late. These people evidently do not realize what effect their individual absence has on the school as a whole. But when half a dozen or more are absent from each class, it slows up the work, and consequently the first day of school after a vacation is more or less a farce. Thus the people who return late not only lose a day of school for themselves, which many of them can not afford to lose, but they are also holding back those who are desirous of getting back to work. After as long a vacation as we have had now, there are but few instances where it is inexpedient for the student to return in time to start school immediately after work is resumed.

You say you have no enemies. If this is a fact, then you should be ashamed of yourself, for you have never stood up for right against wrong, you have never protected the weak against the bully, you have never even dared to protect your own rights against persecution. Had you done these things you would have made enemies. Even if you had done none of these things, but achieved a little more success in your business than your neighbor, if your children were a little brighter in school or a little better behaved out of school, you would have made enemies; for failure hates success. The man who has no enemies should be ashamed of himself.—Ex.

Mr. Powley has on display a necktie acquired during the Yule season. He states that this was exactly what he needed, his old one being badly frayed on the edges. The current opinion however is that he is trying to get away with the same one improved by a washing and mending.

IT JUST COMES NATURAL

Why do Seniors always boast?
It just comes natural.
Like the dark brown tint on a nice pork roast,
It just comes natural.
Like the blue in the skies or the blush on the rose,
Like the brains in your head or the hole in your clothes,
It just comes natural.
Why do we always the Seniors miss?
It just comes natural.
Like the bullfrog's croak or the blow-snake's hiss,
It just comes natural.
Like the tear in your eye when all's gone wrong,
Like the joy in your heart when lifes but a song,
It just comes natural.
Why will the Seniors miss dear old High?
It just comes natural.
Like the millions of germs on the wing of a fly,
It just comes natural.
Like the scores of hosts on the cobweb's lace,
Like the little wee nose and the mole on your face,
It just comes natural.
Why must we bid them a sad farewell?
It just comes natural.
Like the moss covered bucket that hung in the well
It just comes natural.
They've won all honors in debating and such
But then, after all, that isn't so much.
It just comes natural

FOSSTON HERE FOR BIG GAME OF SEASON FRIDAY, JANUARY 12

Locals Out to Recover District Championship Held by Rival 8 out of 11 Consecutive Years; Seniors to Sell Sweets

For the past years Fosston high school basketball team has been the stumbling-block for Thief River Falls, but the boys this year are out to avenge the defeat suffered at the hands of Fosston in last year's close game. Fosston has two of last year's men back in the squad and the others are all good basketball men such as Fosston has the reputation of producing. They have held the district championship of this district eight times out of the eleven conference years and are out to defend their honor.

Our boys are out to develop a championship team and in order to do this they must defeat all comers. Four of last year's men are back, all eligible, and in the pink of condition with the exception of Herron who injured his ankle in practice recently. However, he expects to be able to be in the game Friday.

Coach MacFarlane expressed himself to the effect that the boys show considerable improvement over former games having been in hard training all during the holiday vacation.

With Stanley Sorenson as their captain and LaBree, C. Sorenson, Schutt, and Herron in the line-up, a fast game is anticipated.

Captain Sorenson, running guard, was an all-district player last year, being chosen for that position by reason of the fact that he is a fast reliable player, and has had four years of experience in basketball.

Basketball games have not been attended as well this season as in former years. Let's all turn out and support the team that represents not only the High School but the city of Thief River Falls. If this is done the boys will undoubtedly have a much easier time to attain the championship of this district. We have the team, the coach, the school, and now what we are looking for is the whole-hearted support of every basketball enthusiast in Thief River Falls.

Defeat Warren, Split With Alumni All-Stars

On Thursday, December 21th the local basketball squad avenged the defeat received from the Greenbush aggregation the week before, when they took the Warrenites into camp with a score of ten to twelve. The Warren bunch showed form and speed and did some very neat work on long shots, but our boys were superior in team work which was the direct cause of the victory.

The Smith-Hughes and the Sophomores played a very fast preliminary that resulted in a defeat for the Smith-Hughes squad.

The All-Star Alumni team met the high school team on the auditorium floor in a fast game, on Thursday December 28. The All-Star team seemed to have the game well in hand from the start, making four baskets in succession but then our boys got down to work and before the final whistle blew had attained a very nice lead, which resulted in victory.

The All-Stars did not receive this defeat with favor and issued a challenge that the high school could not repeat. This challenge was accepted and the teams met again on Tuesday January second. During the lapse of time betuween games the All-Stars had been together and worked out a little more team work, this giving them the upper hand in the second game. But the High School team had the crowd in suspense all during the last quarter when the score was 19 to 21 in favor of the All-Stars. This was the final score neither team scoring during the last ten minutes of play.

The crowds at these games were not large and the support was not the best that this city has to give, so let's all turn out and support our boys in the coming games of the season the same as teams of the past have been supported.

Alumni Renew Old Ties at Annual Reunion

Last Wednesday I spent the evening at the Sons of Norway hall when I was most royally entertained by some people called alumni. It was a most select crowd. I thought there would be about 200-300 people there, but I guess they didn't want any more than about fifty. It only set me back fifty cents you see, as I went on half fare, and the rest paid a dollar. I had fifty cents worth of fun and I have a lingering suspicion that the others had their money's worth watching me try to dance.

I had lots of fun trying to dance only I would have felt better if the people on the davenports hadn't laughed so much at me. I can't help that I was forgetful so as to put party shoes on when I should have worn dancing shoes.

Finally they had a business meeting, and Oscar Paulson beat Roy Brown to it in getting to be president. Next they nominated Dreng for vice president. Dreng said he didn't want it, so they told him he wouldn't have to do any work as they had a good president elected, and he didn't look like he had one foot in the grave either. The joke was on Dreng, he didn't get to be vice president, but Roy Brown did. Next time they voted, Dreng Bjornaran was made secretary and Sybil McGinn treasurer. Rusty made a good move in his talk that was seconded by Morlan Bishop and likewise did Bishop, but I do believe I've forgotten who seconded his idea. They talked some more and finally Stanton Dahlen moved that Mrs. Strupp, chief instigator of refreshments, be given full sway and it was seconded by the chair itself. They played "It's Three O'clock in the Morning" and ended in on "Home Sweet Home" at 1:30 a. m. I had a swell time and slept well the rest of the week.

A SENIOR

Changes to be Made in Curriculum Next Semester

In the Freshmen class the Commercial Arithmetic pupils will have penmanship and spelling, and the girls who are now enrolled for cooking will take sewing. There will also be new classes in English I, Algebra and Commercial Geography for the new students who will be promoted to High School at the end of the first semester.

The Sophomores and Seniors will have a number of changes. Civics will take the place of American History. Economics will be followed by Sociology and Typewriting II by Commercial Law. Solid Geometry will take the place of Higher Algebra.

Walter Olson returned Monday to resume his responsibility as a senior. Mr. Olson reports a big haul for Christmas including a complete set of handkerchiefs and several non-destructible neckties.

If you would make good you must understand that the work which counts is the work in hand—it's the things you've done that show what you can, not the bigger and better things you plan. The work you do NOW must be done right if you reach your goal or your utmost height—so keep your aim but watch your step, doing your part each day with pep—for it's not what you do but how you do it that counts in making good.—School of Printing News.

Cconcerning Chemistry

Ola often wondered why
Acids trouble Alkali—
Ila in a manner placid.
Fed the cat boracic acid,
Whereupon the cat grew frantic,
Executing many an antic.
"Oh," cried Ila, overjoyed,
"Pussy is an alkaloid."

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and deepest condolence to the innocent public for their patient pursual of our page before and after our recent vacation from which we have now fully recovered.

THE PROGRESS STAFF

New Instructor Secured to Fill Vacancy Left By Resignation of Stavig

Morris Bye, principal of York High School, York, North Dakota, acting in that capacity for four years, has been secured to replace Miss Agnes Stavig who resigned her position just before the holidays as instructor of Norse and English III.

Mr. Bye is a graduate of Concordia College of Moorhead, Minn. He was active in athletics at Concordia, being captain of the Basket Ball Team.

He arrived from his home in the southern part of the state Friday, and commenced his new duties Monday.

Prowler Advanced Rapidly During Holiday Season

Several members of the Prowler staff, and the senior advisor, Mr. Powley, spent the most of their vacation working in the school annual.

As a result of this earnest application to duty, the Prowler is rapidly assuming a definite shape, and the work on it is being dispatched in a thoroughly businesslike way.

At the present writing, all the organization pictures are in, all but one of the senior individual pictures are in, practically all the faculty are in, and the snapshots are coming in in ever-increasing numbers. The last mentioned will constitute what is easily the most popular part of any annual. For this reason, the various members of the staff are going in the selection and mounting of snaps.

As the work is viewed at present, the plans of the staff to get the annual to press by March first, bid fair to be realized; and if nothing unexpected turns up, the Prowler '23 will be in the hands of its purchasers at least a month earlier than has been the case in previous years.

First Semester Closes Jan. 19; Exams. Thurs., Fri.

The first semester will come to a close on Friday, January 19th and the second semester will commence Monday, January 22. The change from one semester to the other will take place with practically no interruption in the school work. Those students who have been carrying one semester subjects will be excused from their classes to take the state board examinations at the appointed hours. Otherwise the classes will go on as usual. There will be two hour final examination in American History, Higher Algebra, Com. Arithmetic, and Economics. In all other subjects the regular six weeks examinations will be given on the first three days of next week so as not to interfere with the state board examinations which come on Thursday and Friday. The examination schedule is as follows:

Thursday, Jan. 18. At 9:00—Higher Algebra, Com. Arithmetic. At 2:00 Economics.

Friday, Jan. 19. At 9:00—American History.

What Colleges Are For

What will be gained by going to college is a big question in the mind of every young person before enrolling at any institution of higher learning. Dean F. D. Farrell, in a recent article in the Kansas Agricultural Student tells of many mistaken ideas that a student has regarding a college education when he says: "Most students go to college knowing several things which are not so. One of the commonest of these misconceptions is that the chief purpose of a college education is to enable its possessor to make more money. Another is that a college degree is a license to live without working. A third is that colleges are maintained primarily for the benefit of their students rather than for the many times greater number of people who are not so fortunate, but who, nevertheless, pay more of the cost of keeping the colleges going. Some students are so unfortunate as to carry one or more of these fallacious ideas through college, and a few graduates retain some of them throughout life."

Then he gives the real idea of what a college is for when he says: "Colleges are maintained chiefly for the purpose of supplying the world with a thing of which it never has enough. That thing is capable leadership. Because it is always scarce and always in demand, leadership is highpriced. It is more difficult to find a good foreman than it is to find men to work under him, and that is the only reason why the foreman receives the higher pay. Going to college helps a man to develop intellectual power, technical ability, and spiritual strength. These are the principal qualities of leadership. Students who develop these qualities to a high degree become leaders and subsequently are rewarded according to the character of service they render. You need not be anxious about your rewards. If you give excellent service, remembering always that this requires hard work and, not infrequently, hard fighting, you cannot escape the rewards, even if you try to do so.—Industrial Collegian.

Farings of the Faculty

During Christmas Vacation

Christmas vacation was celebrated in various places by the high school faculty.

Mr. McFarlane spent most of his vacation among the dates and palms of Thief River, but took a special vacation to visit at Grand Forks.

Miss Maude Johnson traveled first to Red Wing. After a brief visit at this place she proceeded to Minneapolis. She tells of many wonderful concerts, musical programs, and plays, etc. which she enjoyed.

Miss Katherine MacNaif spent the first week of vacation at her home at Sabin. She also spent a few days at Fosston and Moorhead visiting friends and returned on Friday to Thief River to resume work with the debaters.

Mr. Stanley Powley spent his vacation in this city. As senior advisor he worked a large share of the time on the 1923 Prowler. He was also one of the most popular guests at all the Christmas festivities of the younger set.

Miss Thompson and Miss Skinner returned to this city Saturday after spending the holidays under the shelter of the family tree in Mahnomen and Grand Forks, respectively.

Mr. Harner spent his vacation with his family in Cloquet.

Miss Birong, teacher of science and mathematics, visited during the holidays at the home of her brother in Minneapolis.

Take Inventory Now

The second semester draws near, and it is well that we stop and look back over what we have done, and what we have not done. School authorities provide, if our own common sense does not tell us, that a certain amount of work must be done by each student during the school year. Simple reasoning informs us that the best possible way to do this is to do it as it comes along, to get each lesson or assignment as it is received, and thus to accomplish a certain amount of work every day.

If this is not done, the last half of the school year will find us floundering, with more work that we can accomplish, and with a hopeless outlook for graduation.

A 'day of reckoning' will come. Retribution, though not swift, is sure. Failures, loss of credits, and elimination as candidates for graduation are the penalties for slip-shod work during the school year, particularly during the first semester. Next week the examinations for half year subjects will be given, and proof of having worked, or not having worked, will be available.

Now is the time to stop and 'take stock' of your position. Now is the time to remedy any false start, and to insure, through conscientious work during the second semester, the success of the school year.

Alumni Activities

Phyllis Curtis, of the class of '19; Leo Ihle '20, and Ruby Bennes '22 returned on Jan. 3 to Minneapolis to resume their work at the University of Minnesota, after spending the holidays season at their respective homes in this city.

Ruby Anderson, class of '20, who is attending Oberlin Conservatory, Oberlin, Ohio, spent Christmas vacation with her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson of this city.

Leland Schuster '20 and Gordon LaBree '2 students at the University of N. D. returned to the "old home town" for vacation.

Dennis McGinn returned to St. Thomas College, St. Paul on Friday after spending two weeks vacation at home.

Elmer Tandberg, principal of the Middle River High School, and a member of the Thief River class of 1917, spent the holidays at his home in this city.

Other alumni who visited under the parental roof were Elinor Dahlen '19, who teaches at Fosston, Harold Smithers '21, a student at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Indiana, and Elnor Oevrland '19, now attending St. Olaf College.

LOCAL DEBATORS SCHEDULED TO MEET ROSEAU HERE JANUARY 19

Question of Growing Interest Expected to Draw Record Crowd; Coach Reports Great Progress Since Last Debate

Friday, the 19th, the Thief River Falls high school debating team will engage in their second contest in the race for the state debating championship, when they meet Roseau in the local high school auditorium. Considering the satisfaction with which the debate with Red Lake Falls was received, the growing tenseness as the elimination process goes on, and the fact that Roseau defeated the locals in a similar contest last year, this discussion on the advisability of establishing an Industrial Court in the state of Minnesota promises to be one of the best drawing cards the high school has to offer this year.

The issue of settling labor disputes by law is becoming of greater interest every day. The question of whether or not strikes are justified, and their comparative effect on the public are some of the questions that must arise in a discussion of this subject.

Roseau, as aforementioned, won over the Lincoln debaters last year; but in the ensuing contest forfeited their chance to Crookston. This year Roseau has progressed thus far in the debating race, partly by reason of Warroad's forfeiture of their chance. For this reason, it would seem, from a disinterested point of view, that Thief River Falls has the best chance to continue in the eliminations. However, no one can prophesy what will happen when the two teams meet.

Warblings

List! I am a worthless poet, and my rhymes can ne'er be sold,
And my cheeks are getting scrawny where the bones are coming through.
I am getting old and gray, too, and I have a little fold
Which is just a place for poets, and not for the likes of you.
I have strugged long and vainly to concoct the kind of verse
That would strike the public squarely where their dinner ought to be.
But my efforts have been thankless, and I feel an empty purse
In the little ragged pockets of my twice-made-over jeans.
I was young once, and ambitious, just like ordinary men;
And I used to fall in love, too, just like boys will always do;
And I had a rosy vision of the future. Ah! And then Came the vain desire for versing—and the bills were always due!
That was forty years or more ago. I'm learning every day
That the honorable 'profesh' isn't what it ought to be;
That the job of writing rhymes is worse than Biographers say;
That the world forgets her poets—and this is no place for me.

Bright Sayings of the Seniors

Ernest Barzen—Hot dog eat my cat.
Russel Anderson—Turn around ya litta girl.
Ruth Knutson—Oh my conscience galore.
Lucile Curtis—Tardy permit please!
Herbert Johnson—Aw, Gwan!
Allison B. Stitt—Oh freeze your teeth and give your tongue a sleigh ride.
Myrtle Hegeland—Oh bunk.
Hank Mellum—Ya sure day!
Lydia Dahlen—Hurry up, Lucile, you are so slow.
Viola Buringrud—Make it snappy!

The Progress staff, together with the rest of the school, has had a two week vacation. Many of us want to continue our blissful period of irresponsibility after our day of grace is over, and consequently we may not return to standard for a short time. But we hope that improvements in the course of time will prove to our readers that we profit by our vacations as well as anyone else.

Short Course at U Farm Creates Interest in State

Dan Doyle, farmer of Green Island, Sibley county, was the first to register for work in the Farmers' and Homemakers' short course at University farm the week of January 1 to 6. Men and women from 15 different states, and 70 or more counties of the 87 in Minnesota, were represented in the registrations either in the great short course for farm folks or for work in the special short courses for cereal chemists, operators of creameries and for farmers and mechanics interested in power farming. One who signed himself "a traveler from Sweden" enrolled for general short course work. Other remote districts represented were Oregon and several provinces in Canada and various eastern states. St. Louis county, the new county of Lake of the Woods, Kittson, Beltrami, Itasca, Koochiching, and Clearwater, all in the north, sent good sized delegations. Houston, the southeasternmost county, and Rock, in the southwestern corner of the state, were represented. Aitkin, Pine, Steele, Dakota, Stearns, Goodhue, Washington, Ramsey, and Hennepin had splendid delegations present.

"I was delighted with the attendance and the interest taken in class work and the general exercises," said Dr. A. V. Storm, director of short courses. "The spirit shown by our visitors was remarkable in the face of the various conditions now affecting farming. These farm men and women were here for a purpose and we bent every energy to make their stay pleasant and profitable."

Outstanding events of the course were the opening features Monday, followed by the state farm bureau sessions on Tuesday, the various meetings of livestock breeders and other farm organizations, and the farmers' and homemakers' supper Friday evening, January 5. Leading college men and farm bureau officials gave addresses each day throughout the week. Class room work was carried on in all phases of general farming. Special programs of work were provided homemakers.

The short course was not well attended by representatives of this section, although communities in this northern part of the state sent quite large delegations. John Boo of Thief River Falls, and Melvin Ihle of Viking were among those who attended from this immediate vicinity. They were very well pleased with the course, having opportunity to hear various agricultural and community problems discussed by able and well informed men and seeing instructive demonstrations being performed by experts.
